Many Prominent Educators Will Attend Convention.

Plans for the annual meeting of the Southern Science Teachers, which will meet here at the Carolina Inn on Friday and Saturday, April 3 and 4, have recently been completed by the Institute for Research in Social Science. QUEEN OF MAY TO RULE THE CAMPUS

Carnival Beauty Will Be Royally Feted.

CAROLINA CARNIVAL
Nominations for Beauty Queen Now Being Made.

On May 15 some lucky girl will reign supreme at Chapel Hill, escorted by a happy Carolina student, and royally supported by a train of the nine prettiest girls in the state and their student escorts.

In a stupendous pageant of color, a riot of glamor and glitter, that lucky girl will be crowned queen of Carolina's Carnival, and the dignity and importance of the affair will be seen when the governor of the state walks out with his retinue to officiate at the beautiful coronation ceremony.

On an enormous platform, smothered with flowers and bedecked with gaily colored banners, that state beauty will be crowned as the May queen, to become ruler of the students' hearts and the Carolina Carnival.

At the baseball game that afternoon there will be constructed for this First Lady of the Hill and the gubernatorial party, a gorgeously decorated box in the center of the grandstand.

The queen will be royally dined at the Carolina Inn at 6 that afternoon. The Lavender and Gold Room will be in special readiness for Her Highness and party.

At the big Carnival Ball at the "Fetzer Coliseum" the festivities will entirely revolve around this newly-crowned regal beauty, and throughout it all, some lucky Carolina ball will be her escort and know that he nominated her for this honor, and that his girl is the center of such attraction and the cynosure of such ovation.

Any man in the student body may, not later than April 20th, put up the name of his sweetheart or girl friend. In presenting her name he must turn in her picture, her address, the school or college she attended, and her age. She must be a resident of North Carolina. When nominations close, a committee of six Chapel Hill ladies will select from this bunch of beauty 20 girls whom they consider the prettiest and best representative of the "Ideal Carolina Girl."

These 20 pictures will be arranged in a "Queens' Gallery" and prominently displayed on the campus for a week, as well as being syndicated in the state newspapers. After a week's display, a primary election will be held, the whole campus voting, to decide the 10 prettiest girls.

A final election, a week later, will decide the Queen of the Carnival, the nine remaining beauties to be her maids of honor.

WEIL LECTURES BY WHITE WILL BEGIN ON FRIDAY

Annual Series of Lectures to Be Delivered by Kansas Newspaper Editor.

FINAL LECTURE SUNDAY
Is Novelist, Biographer, Editor, Publisher and Politician and Exerts Powerful Nation-Wide Influence.

The Weil lectures this year, which are to be delivered by William Allen White on April 3, 4 and 5, will probably be the most significant series since the establishment of the foundation in 1914. Mr. White is preeminently fitted for the discussion of American citizenship, as he has been engaged in national politics for over 30 years and has a remarkably comprehensive conception of the American people and their civic and social life.

William Allen White is one of the most popular writers in the journalistic field today. He is a novelist, a biographer, an editor, a publisher, and a politician. His influence has been felt all over the states in the national elections. He has stirred the nation with his fights for freedom of speech and against the Ku Klux Klan. He has written editorials that have started the people thinking and kept them thinking.

Mr. White first attracted national attention through an editorial, "What's the Matter With Kansas?" written August, 1896, in the midst of the McKinley-Bryan campaign. It was reprinted in nearly every Republican newspaper in the United States, and Mark Hanna, chairman of the Republican National committee, said he used the editorial more widely than any other campaign document in the campaign. The editorial represents conservatism in its full and perfect flower. Since this time he has maintained his position as a national factor and has

JUNIOR CLASS TO CLEAN UP CAMPUS

Will Have Charge of Annual Clean Up Week.

FORDHAM WILL SPEAK
Dances and Convention Makes Clean Campus Desirable.

In an effort to improve the appearance of the campus, the junior class will launch its annual clean-up campaign beginning next week. Jeff B. Fordham, president of the junior class and nominee for the presidency of the student body, will speak in chapel this week and fully explain the purpose of the movement.

Next week is the last before the Easter holidays, and it is desired that the campus be in its best condition during the Easter dances which begin on Tuesday, April 14. Following the holidays, the national convention of Deans and Advisers of Men gather here and visitors will come to the Hill from all parts of the country. The convention is scheduled at a time when the campus is at its height in beauty and the University especially desires that the students co-operate in making the campus look as beautiful as possible.

The chief aims of the clean-up week is to put an end to the throwing of paper and other trash from dormitory windows and to insist upon students following the walks instead of cutting across the grass.

It is probable that a janitor's contest similar to the one used last year will be inaugurated again this spring. Last year several prizes were offered to the janitors keeping their dormitory in the most sanitary condition. The contest was regarded as a thorough success and it may be resorted to again this year in order to put the campus in the best possible condition.

Bernard Speaks in Chapel Tuesday

"Gutzon Borglum is one of the ten great sculptors in the world," stated Dr. W. S. Bernard in chapel Tuesday morning when he urged all freshmen to attend the Borglum lectures last night and to bring a contribution with them.

Dr. Bernard deplored the treatment accorded the Confederate veterans in the South and added that a contribution would be taken up at the lecture for the old soldiers of Orange county. The magnificence of the memorial undertaken by the famous sculptor was also interestingly told, and the recent controversy in Atlanta briefly touched upon by the professor.

An inter-fraternity bridge tournament is taking place between the various Greek letter fraternities at the University of Chicago. At the present writing over 60 games have been held.

Rogers is speaking in behalf of Amphoterthen, a campus organization devoted to the interests of problems of citizenship and government. The order is lending its endorsement to the idea that students should vote in the elections.

First Public Performance Tonight At 8:30

66 MEN COMPOSE CAST
Six Man Harp Team Will Render Popular and Classical Music As Feature.

WILL STAGE BIG RADIUM SCENE
Revue Opens With a Beautiful Rose Garden—Take-Off On Carolina Playmakers in Second Act.

Well, boys, tonight's the night. Carolina's biggest show is here.

The Di Minstrel-Revue will be given tonight and tomorrow night in Memorial hall at 8:30 p.m., and will be the first combination show given here. For weeks the huge company of 66 has been toiling every night, and tonight will see the results of their stupendous undertaking. More startling effects, more dazzling scenery, more gorgeous costumes, more original novelties, and more unique specialties will be seen in this show than have ever been attempted here before. There will be seven complete changes of scenery and costumes. There are approximately 90 costumes used in this production and the scenery is said to be valued at about $4,000.

The first act is a beautiful rose garden scene in which over 35 people figure. Twenty black-faces are seen, including three "high-brown mammas." This act is crammed full of songs, jokes, drills, ballads, lighting effects, specialties, etc. Some very efficient critics have reviewed the dress rehearsals and say that this act, as well as the entire show, is nearer the professional smoothness and professional atmosphere than any amateur show they ever saw.

The second act is made up of six "Big Time" specialties. The first one is a screaming 15-minute "take-off" on the Carolina Playmakers, written by Kike Kyser. The parts in this skit are taken by all the "old-timers" in the Playmaker organization. All the lines of the skit and the plot are made by using the names of all the plays presented by the Playmakers. The names are listed below and if you will read them and familiarize yourself with them, the skit will be enjoyed much more. The names are: Mama, Agatha, The Lord's Will, Gaius and Galus, Jr., Peggy, Trista, Dogwood Buses, The Younger, The Vamp, Chatham Rabbit, Waffles for Breakfast, The Black Rooster, In Dixon's Kitchen, Wilbur's Cousin, The Berry Pickers, The Miser, The Bearded Buckle, Politician in Horse Cove, The Wheel, Fixin's, Blackbeard, Pirate of the Carolina Coast, Nat Maccon's Game, The Old Men of Edenton, The Last of the Lowries, The Third Night, The Return of Buck Gavin, Dod Gast Ye Both, When Witches Ride, The Hag, Wrack P'int, Off Nag's Head, The Fighting Corporal, What Will Barbara Say, The Honor of Bonava, Reward Offered, Who Pays the Reaping, Scuffle-town Outlaws.

DEBATERS DEFEAT WEST VIRGINIANS

Tar Heels Get 2-1 Decision Over Mountaineers.

HAD STRONG OPPONENT
Jonas, Chappell and Justus Composed Carolina Team.

Carolina's negative debating team defeated West Virginia University by a two-to-one decision of the judges in the annual dual debate between the two institutions, held Monday night in Morgantown, W. Va., according to a telegram received by M. M. Young, secretary-treasurer of the debate council.

The query was, Resolved—That Congress by a two-thirds vote shall be empowered to override decisions of the Supreme court declaring Congressional acts unconstitutional. The Tar Heels were represented by Charles R. Jonas, Sidney G. Chappell and Ernest L. Justus. West Virginia, defending the affirmative, was represented by Hugo F. Blumenburg, Robert T. Donley and Harry L. Snyder, Jr.

Carolina debating adherents consider this victory to be a fitting climax to the Tar Heel record of victories so far this year. Carolina has won all four of its contest debates, having defeated South Carolina, William and Mary, Kentucky, and West Virginia. The West Virginia victory is considered especially brilliant, in as much as the Mountaineer debating team had but recently taken a tour to the Pacific coast, covering 20 states, and debating 10 Universities on this same question. They defended both sides of the query.
