Hal Kemp's Orchestra and Carolina String Orchestra Furnish Music.

WINSTON IS TOASTMASTER

President Chase, Archibald Henderson, and Dean Ferson Also Make Speeches.

Tuesday night the second year class of the law school held its annual banquet at the Carolina Inn. The program for the evening was unusually delightful, consisting of a number of addresses by the State's foremost men, interspersed with varied musical selections.

Dinner, served to the accompaniment of Hal Kemp's Orchestra, was very cleverly arranged. The menu consisted of dishes having names derived from law terms. Equity pickles, carriers de celery, fried civil procedure potatoes, and evidence de lettuce salad with thousand brief dressing were prominent features of the menu.

Tom White, president of the second year law class, extended a welcome to the members of the class, then introduced M. L. Ferson, Dean of the Law School. Dean Ferson welcomed the speakers of the evening in behalf of the Law School, and expressed his gratitude for the interest in the Law School shown by these men. Dean Ferson then presented the class to the speakers as one composed of earnest, industrious men, for whom a bright future is prophesied.

"These men have been worked hard and well trained. I am perfectly willing that you men get your impressions of the Law School from this class," said Dean Ferson.

Judge Winston, toastmaster of the evening, cited four stakes of law practice which he had observed during his experience in that profession. The first stage, existing during the time of his father, was an age of severe, persistent study of law principles. Court decisions were few, but they were strong and vigorous in regard to rights of man. Following this stage came the time of the code system. Codes of law were made by men who were unsympathetic with the principles which Americans hold most dear. These codes were very exacting in the minor details of the law, and were professed to promote the ease of deciding law suits. However, the old generation received this system very unkindly. A system of cited authority followed the code system. Finally the practise of law has come down to the age of organization.

The influences of the former ages have been outgrown and the principles of political organization are paramount today.

Judge Winston gave to the students at the banquet several principles by which the highest type of men of the profession are guided. Having had his license to practise law for forty-two years, he realizes from experience that no state needs clear thinking, high principle, and state loving attorneys more than North Carolina. "A future of great service is open to the members of this class if you are men such as Dean Ferson has said you

PHILLIPS ADDRESSES RELIGIOUS WORKERS

"The University Student At Work In The Local Church," is Subject of Interesting Discussion.

The Religious Workers' Council held its December meeting at 6:00 supper Tuesday evening in the Parish House of the Episcopal church. A paper was presented by J. G. Phillips, assistant to the Methodist pastor, on "The University Student at Work in the Local Church."

Mr. Phillips' paper was of special interest to the group and showed extensive thought and work on the subject. He pursued the following outline in taking up the subject: the present situation; basis for evolving a plan for student work in the local church; method of building the plan; present deficiencies in student religious work; meeting present deficiencies; visible results of meeting the needs; organization and administration; students at work; and what the critic might say about the plan.

A summary of the plan suggested by Mr. Phillips to remedy the present situation follows. First, some one person will be Director of Student Religious Activity and will give complete devotion to the success of the plan. Second, associated with the Director, would be a Student Council composed of four officers elected from the larger group by themselves and of leaders of the different departments of activity. This Council would have charge of all general administrative work.

PICK ALL-STATE FRESHMAN TEAM

Five Tar Babies Are Placed on Mythical Eleven.

FOARD NAMED CAPTAIN

Lowe And Pritchard Are Selected to Coach All-State Pick.

By W. P. RAGAN
During the intervening period between the end of the football season and the start of the basketball campaign, the favorite pastime of sports scribes is to pick mythical teams. All-State College and High School elevens have been chosen but as yet no All-Freshmen team has been selected.

Judging by observation and by closely following the various yearling teams of the state, the Tar Heel has endeavored to pick an All-Freshman team. Carolina without a doubt had the best first year team in the state as is evidenced by the fact that they defeated the State Wolf Cubs by an overwhelming score while State made a very creditable showing against the other freshman teams of the state. Wake Forest probably had the next best team and for this reason the Tar Babies and the Little Deacons get the most men on the mythical All-Freshman team.

It is to be doubted whether there was another yearling line in the South that was as strong as that of the Tar Babies. From end to end it averaged around 190 pounds, which is more than a great many varsity elevens can boast of. When on the defense this line was practically impenetrable, while on the offensive it charged like seven rushing bulls. There was very little ground gained through the line from actual scrimmage and almost every touchdown that was registered against the Tar Babies came as the result of some freak play or by means of the aerial route. In view of the fact that the Carolina yearlings had such a strong defense, four of her players are placed on the All-Freshman team.

The remainder of the line is composed of Wake Forest players. Although their front line defense was lighter than that of the Tar Babies, it was one that charged furiously and tackled viciously. Without a doubt, it ranked as the second best freshman line in the State. No other first year line in the state could come near those of Carolina and Wake Forest.

Could these Wake Forest and Carolina men be placed together in the line

PLAYWRIGHT TO SPEAK SATURDAY

Carolina Alumnus Lectures Saturday in Playmaker Theatre.

HARRY HATCHER HUGHES

Has Established Widespread Reputation as Playwright and Teacher.

At 8:30 o'clock Saturday evening Harvey Hatcher Hughes will speak in the Playmakers Theatre. He will be the third public lecturer of the series which is being given here this year, the other two being Barrett Clark and Frederick Warde. The public is cordially invited to attend this last lecture before Christmas of a series which brings to us distinguished and authoritative speakers on the theatre and the drama.

Mr. Hughes is a Carolina graduate, having received his A. B. degree here in 1907. Besides being the most distinguished of our alumni who are interested in drama, he has an enviable national reputation as a playwright. His play, Hell Bent for Heaven not only won the Pulitzer prize year before last but it also gained international fame; it has been translated into German and will soon be produced in Germany. Raint is another of his plays which has received favorable comment. Most of this author's plays are laid in western North Carolina, his birth place.

Tonight Mr. Hughes will address the North Carolina Literary and Historical Society on The American Theatre Today in Raleigh; tomorrow night he will deliver an address at Duke University.

At present the playwright is a member of the faculty of Columbia University, where he has been located for the past several years.

CHERNAVSKY TRIO

Jan, Leo, and Mischel Cherniavsky, three noted Hungarian brothers who will give a concert here Friday evening in Memorial Hall.

CHERNAVSKY TRIO TO GIVE CONCERT

In Memorial Hall Tomorrow Evening at 8:30.

ALL FAMOUS MUSICIANS

Three Brothers Have Achieved Great Reputation As Soloists.

Music lovers of the community and state will be treated to a concert of extraordinary quality when the Cherniavsky trio appear here Friday evening at 8:30 in Memorial Hall.

The three brothers, Leo, Jan, and Mischel are internationally famous in their roles of violinist, pianist, and violoncello respectively. Having been highly lauded by the greatest critics of all parts of the world, the three brothers are now making their fourth tour of this country. Everywhere the concerts of the trio have met with much praise. These musicians are considered masters in their individual fields. Nesbitt, that celebrated Epicurus of music, said of Mischel, when the artist was a mere boy: "In little Mischel Cherniavsky the world may one day recognize its greatest 'cellist.'" And many critics declare that prediction now fulfilled; nor does either of the highly praised musician's brothers rank lower in his particular class than does the 'cellist in his.

Considered as a trio, the brothers have had a most eventful and brilliant career.

Members of a family of nine unusually gifted children, Jan, Leo, and Mischel received their initial lessons in music from their father, Abraham Cherniavsky, a musical scholar and pre-eminent conductor of the Ukraine. When they made their first tour of Russia at a remarkably early age, the premature development of their fine faculties and the really extraordinary brilliance of their work made their name a household word. They achieved success without parallel in the musical history of their country and then, encouraged by the highest praise of critics, decided that there were more spheres to conquer.

Since 1901 they have ranged every quarter of the globe and have been acknowledged in five continents as belonging to the first rank of executive artists. In Germany, Austria, England, the United States, Canada (where they were naturalized as British subjects on the 1st of May, 1922), Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India, China, Japan and South America, they have enlisted a large following of enthusiasts.

SOPER TO DELIVER SERMON SUNDAY

Dean of School of Religion of Duke University.

SUNDAY EVENING AT 8:30

Dr. Soper Was Formerly Professor In Northwestern University.

The second sermon of the year will be preached Sunday night at 7:30 o'clock in Gerrard Hall by Dr. Edmund L. Soper, Dean of the School of Religion at Duke University.

Dr. Soper is little known in North Carolina, having come among other professors that Duke is obtaining from various parts of the United States in the expansion program that has been made possible by J. B. Duke's endowment. He comes from Northwestern University where he was a member of the faculty. There he proved himself to be a preacher of exceptional ability, and the Duke University students have been greatly pleased with his sermons this fall. The University, through the University Sermon Committee, of which Dr. Toy is head, has invited him to deliver the sermon here Sunday.

The last University sermon was preached during the first week of school by Rev. Harry M. North, pastor of the First Methodist church of Rocky Mount. The next will be preached January 17 by Bishop Darst, Episcopal minister of the Eastern Carolina Diocese. None will be held in February but likely one in March. There is no definite time for holding the University sermons but there are usually two each quarter.

LAW SCHOOL FACULTY GETS GIFT FROM WEST COMPANY

A gift donated to the law school by the West Publishing Company has just been received. The gift consists of a set of books for each member of the law school faculty. An announcement of the gift was made some time ago but the books have just arrived. These books are valued at several thousand dollars and the law school considers itself very fortunate to be the recipient of this gift.

STUDENT BALLOT ON NEW PLAN OF CLASS FINANCING

Will Be Held Tomorrow—Leading Campus Organizations Endorse Proposed Plan.

STUDENTS URGED TO VOTE

Present Method of Collecting and Handling Class Funds Inefficient—Blanket Fee Proposed.

The present system of class finance is not satisfactory, and is unfair to the best element of the student body. The opportunity to change this condition will be given to every student on Friday, and it is the duty of every man to register his approval or disapproval of the plan.

At the present time about thirty per cent or more of the student body does not pay any class dues, leaving the two thirds the duty of entire class support. The treasurers have always made honest efforts to collect class dues, but have met with small success. The size of the student body makes it practically impossible to see more than half of the students when a drive is put on, and it is often inconvenient to pay at that particular time.

As a result of these conditions, class presidents and treasurers are always more or less handicapped in working out the year's program, and class activities have suffered.

Contrary to recognized principles of good business many class treasurers have not kept satisfactory records of the funds entrusted and there is no auditing of books and publication of same. The change in treasurers or the failure to return of the preceding treasurer, often results in the loss of records and sometimes in a loss of funds.

Under the proposed plan class dues are to be paid to the University treasurer at the beginning of each quarter in the amounts of one, one, two, and four dollars respectively for the freshman sophomore, junior, and senior classes. The dues this year are to be paid one-half for each of the two remaining quarters.

The funds so obtained are to be placed in the hands of the University treasurer, and will be kept in a separate account similar to that of the Publications Union. Expenditures will be made upon the written order of the proper class officials, and the books audited by the University auditor. A public statement will be issued in the Tar Heel as to the financial condition of each class. Any funds remaining at the end of the year along with the year's records will be kept over the summer for the incoming treasurer.

Under this plan the class officers will know definitely how much they can spend for the various class activities, will have records of preceding years, and will be in a position to map out a consistent program or the whole year. It is expected that this will also result in better attendance at class smokers, in view of the fact that it will not be necessary to make charges for them.

The proposed plan will provide for a reduction of fees, a sensible method

Within the week of January 4-9 call at the treasurer's office and make settlement of your bill. Failure to attend to

PATTEN WILL REMAIN HERE ANOTHER YEAR

Methodist Conference Permits Him to Remain Another Year to Further His Work Among Students.

The announcement that Rev. Walter Patten will remain another year to further his work among the Carolina students and to complete the present building program of the Methodists will find much favor with the students. In granting this extension of another year for the Methodist pastor to remain here the North Carolina Methodist Conference gracefully acquiesced to a warm local sentiment.

Coming here for his second tenure of office having formerly been pastor here from 1913-1917—in 1921, Rev. Patten has unceasingly striven to impress the State Methodist with the distressing need for a new modern church to house the local congregation and to properly care for the spiritual needs of the 750 Methodist students in the University. It was not until last year that the Eastern and Western Methodist conferences decided to appropriate the necessary funds with which to construct the handsome colonial edifice now nearing completion. And at the recent conference it was decided that no one would be as able to carry the work to a successful finish as the man who has striven so strenuously for the new church as Rev. Patten.

Rev. Patten is now trying to show the Methodist Conferences the need for the establishment of an incorporated Wesley Foundation here. He said "the glaring need here in the University is some kind of religious training. The discussion groups in the dormitories the movement begun by the Y is excellent; but it is my sincere hope and belief that by next September there will be a professor here, not maintained by the University, but supported by the Wesleyan Foundation and the North Carolina conferences will give several religious courses of college calibre for interested students." Such in short is the purpose of the Wesleyan Foundation. The first Wesleyan Foundation Professorship was established in 1823 at the University of Illinois for the purpose of giving adequate religious instruction at a non-denominational school. Since that time there have been about twenty-five of the Professorships established, most of them being located at State Universities. For the past twelve months Mr. Patten has been working without cessation, planning, and trying to influence the two State conferences, and it seems as though his goal will be reached by the beginning of the 1927 college year.

When Rev. Patten came to Chapel Hill in 1921, the local church could boast of a membership of only 185, there are now 280 members. Dr. Bernard's class of 100 University men has also grown tremendously during the four year period. With the completion of the new church Mr. Patten hopes to have everyone of the 750, the largest denominational figures of any of the

RANDOLPH CLUB WILL HOLD BIG CONVENTION

Gathering of All Randolph County Students Will Take Place in Asheboro on December 23.

A committee of Carolina students representing practically every town in Randolph county met Friday night to complete arrangements for what will be the first convention of Randolph Students ever held.

The main idea of this gathering, which will be held in the Court House at Asheboro on the last Wednesday before Christmas, is to get all the college students of the county together in a body and, if possible, to affect a conference of Randolph students that will meet together at least once a year for general entertainment and to discuss matters of interest to the students and the county.

All the secretaries of the different Randolph county clubs in colleges that could be reached have been asked for an opinion on the matter, and all are heartily in favor of the plan. It has been impossible to reach some of the Randolph students, but every college student from Randolph is invited and expected to be present. Invitations will be mailed to all whose addresses can be learned, but as it will be impossible to mail out individual invitations to every one, notices of the meeting are being sent to the county papers, and it is hoped that those who fail to receive written invitations will read these notices and make it a point to attend the Convention.

Each County Club Secretary is expected to be responsible for a short program for that college. Some one from each college will be expected to make a brief talk about his or her college. In addition there will be refreshments furnished by the Randolph county club in the University. A program committee has been appointed from the members of this club, and it is hoped that there will not be a dull moment during the convention.

The main purpose of the convention is to affect a closer spirit of friendship and co-operation among the students of the county. Just before the close of the gathering, R. P. Routh, Carolina student from Franklinville, will offer a proposal for the organization of all college students from Randolph county. If this proposal meets with success, a committee will be appointed to arrange for a similar meeting next year.

Eight o'clock Wednesday evening, Dec. 23, has been selected as the time most suitable for the majority of the students. The Randolph county Court House is the largest in that section, so there is no doubt of there being plenty of room. Several Asheboro ladies will be invited to act as chaperones.

The members of the Randolph County club of the University, who are sponsoring the Convention do not expect anything elaborate this year, but if the gathering is enough of a success to warrant its continuance, it is hoped to have a meeting next year on a much larger scale.
