

Sargent To Speak Tuesday Morning

Mr. Noel Sargent, Manager of the Industrial Relations Department of the National Association of Manufacturers will speak today at 12:00 o'clock at 112 Saunders on some phases of harbor problems. Mr. Sargent will also speak at 11:00 o'clock this morning in the North room of the Law Building. Mr. Sargent is an interesting and able speaker and is thoroughly competent to deal with his subject. His lectures are always a source of delight. All who are interested in the subject are cordially invited to attend these lectures.

Eleanor Jones, the seven-year-old daughter of Howard Mumford Jones of the University faculty, is in Chapel Hill for the spring. At present she is with the Roysters, but later she will be with her father at the Hibbard home. John and Peggy Hibbard have been ill for several days.

DUKE FROSH WIN FROM TAR BABIES

Red Devils Victorious in Slugfest by 12-11 Score.

VERITABLE TRACK MEET

Finlater, of Carolina, Is Individual Slugging Ace of Game.

The Duke Freshmen emerged victorious from a slugfest with the University of North Carolina Frosh on Emcison Field Friday afternoon to the tune of 12-11. The game was featured by the hitting of Finlater for the Tar Babies. He hit two homers and a single out of four times at bat, one homer drove in two men in the seventh with two on, and the other cleared the loaded bases in the ninth.

The Duke Freshmen were out-hit by the Tar Babies by the count of 9-12, but frequent errors behind Thomas and Ellison accounted for the Duke counters. Duke started her scoring in the fourth when eight runners crossed the pan after hitting Thomas freely. The Red Devils also managed to push two more runs across in the sixth and seventh frames. Wyrick, Burton, and Rowe starred at the bat for the visitors, getting two bingles each.

The Tar Babies pushed across five runs in the seventh after having registered in the first and fifth. A desperate ninth inning rally garnered only four runs, which fell short of tying the score. Besides capturing batting honors for the day, Finlater made a beautiful peg in the first semester to cut off McCarthy at the plate.

U. DELEGATION ATTENDS GREENSBORO MEETING

Pres. Chase and Other Professors Attend Conference for Social Service Just Preceding Easter Holidays.

The University of North Carolina was well represented at a meeting of the North Carolina Conference for Social Service which convened at the O. Henry Hotel in Greensboro just preceding the Easter holidays. Among those who attended from the University were: Dr. Harry W. Chase, Professor J. F. Steiner, Messrs. Roy M. Brown, L. M. Brooks, A. F. Raper, and F. S. Wilder.

Dr. Chase was the chief speaker of the Thursday afternoon session. His subject was "Leadership in Democracy." Dr. Chase's address was thoroughly enjoyed by all those who heard it and was very interesting.

At the Friday morning session, Professor J. F. Steiner, of the Sociology Department of the University, addressed the meeting on "Outstanding Needs of Our Prisoners." Professor Steiner also presided at the Friday afternoon session.

Mr. F. S. Wilder, a teaching fellow in the University Department of Sociology, addressed the conference on Friday afternoon. His subject was "Analysis of Crime as Shown by Superior Court Records." Mr. L. M. Brooks was also on the Friday afternoon program. The subject of his address was "The Financial Cost of Crime in North Carolina." Mr. A. F. Raper gave an address on "Case Study of Certain Prisoners."

HOT CONTEST PREDICTED

53 High Schools Entered in 13th Annual Championship Series.

Final arrangements will be made for the Thirteenth Annual State Championship in baseball for North Carolina High Schools this week. The championship contests will take place in the latter part of April and the first of May. There is a total of fifty-three schools entering the race, and the final game between the winners in the east and the winners in the west will be played at Chapel Hill about May 15.

A conference of the faculty managers of all teams entering the eastern championship series will be held in Raleigh today; and a similar conference of the faculty managers of all the teams entering the western championship series will be held in Salisbury Wednesday. These conferences will arrange the schedule of the championship series, east and west, for the purpose of selecting through a process of elimination two teams which shall decide the championship.

Next to football, a baseball state championship is the most coveted athletic honor a high school can win, and past contests have never failed to be colorful events. Shelby High School has won the championship for the last two years in succession, and if reports which are coming from Casey Morris can be relied upon, the western school is out this year to report the past season's feat. Regardless of any advanced dope, the coming championship series should prove of great benefit to all North Carolina high schools, and the University faculty committee is doing everything in its power to make the contest a success—even praying that J. Pluvius will be sick on May 15th and unable to attend the game.

Below is a list of the fifty-three high schools entering the championship race, and also a list of the champions of the past.

ways in which it might show its influence. The Lord knows a little opposition would not be amiss at present in this place where over two thousand supposedly intelligent students are herded together like sheep, shorn of all individuality and made to conform to a sorry pattern which is at best only a "cut-and-dried" type of mollycoddle.

We sit on class day by day and listen to a lot of sleep producing automatons string out a messy conglomeration of beautiful theories and other bunk which we are expected to absorb as a sponge absorbs water. If we try to advance any new opinions of our own, the professors, trustees, and good people back home arise in holy horror and shout us down. They call us radicals, agnostics, upstarts, and puerile stragglers from the path of divine authority invested in all elderly people, whom all young people should obey faithfully and unquestionably.

A few daring unorganized men have tried in vain to buck the authority and bring about better conditions here. Compulsory class attendance is no longer required of all students. But it is still required of nearly all. Regulations are not quite so strict as formerly. But nothing real has been accomplished. If the E. U. E. brethren really have an organization, we should like to see them come out in the open and help us demonstrate a little of that opposition of which they boast.

"Come to Carolina,"—A recent issue of the TAR HEEL was sent to all high school seniors in the state so that, we presume, they might get some idea of the thought and interests of this dear old institution and likewise be guided in their choice of a place to enter next fall to begin the four-year loaf or grind, according to their inheritance or inclinations.

We have always had the kindest regard for all High Schoolers. May the annual graduation exercises be grander this year than ever before. And when the usual number elects to be with us when the leaves of autumn fall again upon this fair campus where the freshmen "sass" the sophs and refuse to wear freshman caps, we shall welcome them with open arms and do our best to protect the poor sophomores from injury.

BLUEBEARD'S SEVEN WIVES

A real novelty is promed "Pick" patrons when "Bluebeard's Seven Wives" comes to the Pickwick Theatre, tonight only. Here we have the delightful droll tale of a bank clerk who is suddenly made over into a great screen lover by a fast working press agent. The publicity man evolves a scheme to make him a Bluebeard of the screen, by "marrying" him to seven wives. But John at the height of his fame, runs away and weeds his wheateake throwing sweetheart. Ben Yyon does the best work of his career as John Hart alias Don Juan Hartez and he is supported by an excellent cast, including Lois Wilson, Blanche Sweet, Sam Hardy, Dick Bernard.

The story of an actor who married his way to fame. They tried to marry him to seven wives to make him famous as a modern Bluebeard—but he ran away with his waitress sweetheart.

PLAYMAKERS SEE EDENTON RELICS

Spend Very Delightful Hour in Historic Old Town While Waiting for Repairs to Be Made.

The Carolina Playmakers on their recent tour met with an accident while getting off the Edenton ferry and were obliged to stay in Edenton an hour while waiting for the completion of repairs. Edenton, one of the historic towns of North Carolina and the home of the Edenton Tea Party, proved an interesting place in which to while away an hour. The home of Mrs. Elizabeth King in which the famous Tea Party was held on the 25th of October, 1774, has during recent years been destroyed, but the Playmakers saw the next best thing, a bronze tea pot on an iron pedestal which now marks the site where the ancient building once stood. They also visited

The old St. Paul's church which is the oldest church in the state with the exception of the church at Bath. It was in this church, two weeks before the Continental Congress had formally declared independence, that the vestry met and protested against the English taxation. In the graveyard by the church are buried Governors Charles Eden, for whom the town was named, Henderson Walker, and Thomas Pollock. The Playmakers saw the original slab which was placed as a memorial to Governor Eden and which still marks his grave. It is made of slate, set in brownstone, and has shown itself more capable of withstanding the ravages of time than many of the marble monuments of lesser age.
