

TAR HEELS TO MEET STATE CINDERPATH TEAM HERE

In the longer sprint, he came up strong in the four-forty and finished second to Goodkykantz, of Davidson. Sides has done ten flat in the century, and he will probably force Gus McPherson to go under the traditional time of ten to get the top honors this afternoon.

Another test will prove interesting to the Carolina students in the State Meet, and that is "Red" Pritchett's first trial at the two mile grind this year. Pritchett ran the long race last year for the Tar Baby team and ran it well all the season, but Coach Fetzer has been using him on the mile as Elliott's partner this spring in the earliest meets. However, the Carolina mentor plans to use the lanky Greensboro youth in the longest race in the Southern Meet, and the race this afternoon will show what he can do.

The field events too will bring forth some good dope. Jack McDowell, State's sophomore star, who set a new State Record of 6 feet 5-8 inches in the high jump last week and who holds the World's Interscholastic Record of 6 feet 1 inch, will again take a crack at the North Carolina mark. He also does around 22 feet in the broad jump. Other field men who will furnish feature performance are Fordham, Williams, and Newcomb, Tar Heel weight star.

An added attraction for the afternoon will be a dual meet between the Duke Freshies and the Tar Baby track aggregation. The events of the Varsity and Freshman competition will be intermixed, that is the two meets will come off in unison, so the loyal track follower who is lucky enough to be present will receive that rarest of all bargains—a double header. In addition the appearance of the local lads will be their first exhibition against creditable competition on Emerson field. The Freshies have been in three meets so far this year. In their first contest they conquered the Charlotte High tracksters. In their next trial they bowed to the Duke Freshmen at Durham, and in the Meet for Freshmen Cindermen of all the State Colleges they finished in third place.

Couch Dale Ransom has been working hard with his men in the desire to avenge the last defeat at the hands of the little Blue Devils. Carolina was conquered to the tune of 76-49 in this past meeting.

While on the western trip the boys were entertained by receptions, dances and other social functions and especially while in the mountain city were they entertained in supreme fashion.

From the glee club authorities comes the news that the glee club will continue their rehearsals for several weeks yet. They will rehearse on Monday and Thursday nights. - Julian Starr—Secretary.
- Ernest Young—Business Manager.

It is hoped that all plans will be completed by the first of June.

A great many new men are expected to try out for the club. Anyone who is interested and has some singing talent is especially urged to attend the remaining rehearsals of the present term.

The club will elect officers in a week or so. All men eligible to vote will be sent notices through the mail. All men who are on the roll of the club at present are entitled to vote for the new officers for '26 and '27.

ACCOUNTANTS IN ANNUAL MEETING THIS WEEK

Charlotte chamber of commerce, was one of the principal speakers at the banquet at the Carolina Inn Thursday evening. In his address he stated that the day of specialization is here, and he predicted that the next five years would bring the greatest progress the world has ever known.

L. J. Mann, of the North Carolina Co-operative Cotton Growers Association, another speaker of the evening, declared that the South is paying a penalty of $350,000,000 yearly because of overproduction in cotton. He urged the creation of sentiment in favor of the Haugen bill, now before Congress, which would provide a revolving fund to relieve the farmers.

The accountants met in a business session yesterday morning. They then joined the delegates of the North Carolina Bankers Association in a barbecue dinner at the Chapel Hill Country Club.

DR. HENDERSON SPEAKS AT VIRGINIA SEMINAR

stitutions concerned into closer relationship through exchange of ideas in regard to all vital problems affecting a modern university.

In the Seminar Dr. Henderson spoke about the Theory of Relativity and its Applications. These meetings were attended by members of the faculties and advanced students in mathematics, physics, and astronomy.

Dr. Henderson delivered a popular address, "Science and the Modern World", to the general university assembled in Cabell Hall. He first explains the utility of science and how it has developed. He points out that when most of the theories of mathematics were put forward, they were thought to be useless, but afterwards found important applications. In general the first part of his lecture deals with the explanation of the remarkable modern theories that have been advanced in science.

In the second part of the lecture Dr. Henderson tells of his own dealings with science and his opinions about the theories. "Today," he said, "we are confronted by three great problems, problems bequeathed to us by the scientific efflorescence and mechanistic quality of this new century. First, there is the great discrepancy to be bridged over between the super-intellects of the scientists and the mental stagnation of the average mind. In the second place, the human being of today, through the influence of mechanistic technic in an age of science, is becoming Robotized to an alarming extent. Last of all, science today raises ghosts of disquiet which haunt our visions of the future."

Practically every record has been beaten by a wide margin in the quarter of a century of competition, and every year the Conference athletes will be gunning for a new record in the big two day meet at Chapel Hill Friday and Saturday, May 14 and 15. Track fans of the State will have the opportunity of seeing the best the South can offer, and will see another Carolina team fighting to bring the Southern title back to the Hill after a twenty-five year interval.

SOCIAL CALENDAR BUSY NEXT WEEK

The Order of the Graft has arranged their second dance of the Spring quarter for Saturday night. The time could not be more suitable, for with the Southern Track Meet in the afternoon and other activities of the week-end, an excellent crowd should be here to attend the dance. The Zeta Psi dance, also set for Saturday evening, will be a gala occasion with which to conclude the week's festivities. The large number of visiting girls which will be on the Hill for the week-end combined with the music of Hal Kemp's orchestra will undoubtedly make the dance a memorable occasion.

All those who have joy, prepare to spread it next week-end for never before in a long time has such a multiplicity of social functions deluged the campus and it likely that it will be an equally long time before such a rich season of entertainment will again visit the Hill.

Ingram held well in the close plays when Bowman had singled, and Beard and Marshall had tripled. The remaining batters of the round, he struck out. Some wild pitching in other innings bequeathed the other scoring of the Virginia freshmen.

All this serves to give the Deacons an edge in the dope for today's game, but the tale might be made to read different tonight if Odell Sapp can control his curves, and the Tar Heel infield will give him a little steady support.

A good many of the Carolina students are expected to be on hand at Wake Forest this afternoon when the Ump hollers "Play bawl," and interest will be at the highest pitch to witness what promises to be a pitcher's battle between the Deacon hurling ace and the lanky Tar Heel sophomore chunker, Odell Sapp.

GIRLS SUCCESSFULLY INVADE BUCCANEER

Girls' Number of Campus Comic Magazine Reveals a Wealth of Feminine Wit and Talent.

(By the Reviewer)

The Girls' Number of the Carolina Buccaneer now floods the campus with its "Flaming Mamie" cover and its choice samples of feminine wit. The co-eds have proved themselves at least equal to the masculine "pirates" both in originality of work and in the wise selection of exchanges from other college comics. The male element on the campus no longer has a monopoly on the bandying of words or subtlety of expression; and as for puns, why we think the girls have the advantage upon the boys! Never have we seen such a deluge of puns. As the campus-comic might say "Yea, verily, there is a pun upon pun."

The recent campus elections came in for their share of humor, but this humor was never personal or rancorous. Fortunately the Buccaneer realizes that it can best retain its prestige and popularity by refraining from dealing in personalities. The personal hits in "The Boy Scouts in Memoriam" should not be objected to and indeed were skillfully handled.

Most of the illustrations in this number seem to be the work of the regular staff, but perhaps it would be too much to ask of the co-eds that they furnish the drawings as well as the wit.

At first we were prone to marvel at the abundance of "catty" jokes in this particular issue and wondered whether that was because this was the girls' number. But after due consideration we decided that such a conclusion would be most uncalled for. Perhaps those particular jokes were only fillers put in at the last moment by the boys.

The Buccaneer should be commended for the admirable stand it has taken concerning the quality of its contributions. A college comic fills an important niche in campus life and receives the attention of the entire student body. As a privileged campus organ it should uphold the high standards of the college and should reflect nothing but credit upon its alma mater. The Buccaneer is assuming its responsibility seriously and its editors are to be congratulated upon their production of a clean campus comic. The popularity of the Buccaneer proves that such popularity is not dependent upon the publication of risque stories and questionable jokes. Long may the Buccaneer live and may it always be known as the clean comic that it now is.

AMERICAN MERCURY LAUDS UNIVERSITY

"North Carolina" by Nell Battle Lewis, Is One of the Features of the Recent May Issue.

An article in the May issue of American Mercury, rivaling "Hatrack" for local interest, appeared under the title of "North Carolina," by Nell Battle Lewis, of the Raleigh News and Observer. In this article the author touched upon the many phases of development in the State and also pointed out the rapid progress made by educational institutions within its borders.

In reference to the University, Miss Lewis writes:

"The center of intellectual activity in North Carolina at present is—as no doubt it should be—the State University. The University has profited largely by the recent increase in State expenditures for education, and its expansion, physically and intellectually, has been marked. It shows a vigorous spirit of criticism in local affairs—one of the surest and most encouraging signs that the old Southern defense-mechanism is breaking down. The leading exponent of this new spirit is Gerald W. Johnson, director of the School of Journalism and author of numerous critical papers. It is expressed, too, in the magazine, Social Forces, edited by Howard W. Odum, director of the School of Public Welfare. In the anti-evolution fight in the General Assembly of 1925, President H. W. Chase, of the University, alone of the presidents of the State's four higher educational institutions, appeared at the committee hearing in suave and civilized protest against the bill. Naturally enough—President Chase having been born in Massachusetts—the Fundamentalists cried out upon him as 'a damned Yankee who's ruining our boys!'"

She also approved the stand of President William Lewis Poteat, of Wake Forest College, in his fight against the ultra-conservative faction in the Baptist church which seeks to have him removed from office. In her description of the annual State Baptist Convention, she compared it with the Kentucky Derby as being "the liveliest sporting event in the commonwealth."

When hoop skirts and the Virginia Reel were in vogue, and loving hands at home-fashioned Grandfather's home-spuns for the prom... even in those days, Anheuser-Busch was nationally known to good fellows. And today... when feminine heads are bobbed and shingled, and we dance the Charleston in expensively tailored clothes to the stirring strains of a jazz orchestra...
