PARAGRAPHS

On to Wake Forest!

Will the Notre Dame system produce "Four Horsemen" today?

In losing his crown, does Dempsey believe it is more blessed to give than to receive?

Kike Kyser promises something new in cheerleading today. As Jeff would say, interesting if true.

We are anxiously waiting for the coaches to open up the bag today and turn loose a bunch of tricks. Students really know about as little about the team as the other viewers will know before the game starts.

Will it be a game of tricks or straight football? We live to learn and learn to live. As we live we shall learn.

"Coaches whipping large squad into shape for Baptist game," reads a headline in the last issue. Whipping, literally speaking, said one scribe.

More about democracy. The North Carolina Club has named its series of papers, "The Problems of Democracy in North Carolina." Is democracy receiving so much attention now because of the elections of Senators and Representatives this fall?

Probably the most widely read magazine article among college students this year has been H. G. Wells' "The four years in college are wasted," in the September number of Cosmopolitan. Says the El Paso Times, "Although Mr. Wells claims that the four years at college are wasted, there are few better ways for a father to receive an education."

Students don't stay here very long without hearing the cogno-men, Mr. C. T. Woolen. Jake Wade, sports editor of the Charlotte Observer, was here a few days ago and in his correspondence to the Observer he interpreted the full name to be Mr. Cash-Taking Woolen.

BEHIND THE TEAM

The Carolina varsity eleven gets its first test under fire today. The winning of the Wake Forest game is important enough, but of far more importance is the showing that this year's squad makes under the new coaching system.

The Tar Heels are beginning the season under a handicap such as few Carolina teams have ever faced. Despite the abundance of material, most of it is green and a new system is being assimilated. Those who have watched the Tar Heels in practice are particularly well pleased with the showing made to date, considering the distance that had to be covered. The men have been coached hard and worked hard and yet they are showing a fighting spirit that has satisfied the most enthusiastic spectators at the secret sessions.

It is common knowledge that it takes time to master completely a new football system. True, Carolina's rival today is playing under a new system, too, but it is also true that Wake Forest will play with most of the 1925 regulars back in the line-up.

The coaches have had a big task in trying to build up a team that would do credit to the University. The finest cooperation possible has existed between the menators and even the most pessimistic viewer is ready to applaud them for their work.

The Tar Heel has confidence in the showing that Carolina will make today. Win or lose, we believe the team will put up a fight that the student body will be proud of. We have reason to feel the fellows are going to do their best, and that's as much as anybody can ask.

COOPERATION NEEDED

Since the return of the students to the University this fall Cheerleader Kike Kyser and his eight assistants have been busy working out new yells, songs, and stunts to be used in putting cheering on a higher plane this year. The chief promises that cheering is to take on an entirely new aspect, so far as the leaders are concerned.

Kike says that the students have been claiming that they would cooperate in cheering if given good cheerleaders. He says further that the men have done their part in the preliminary work and are going to give the best in themselves to bring about a revival in cheering.

So today will tell the tale. Many of the upperclassmen have apparently gotten the idea that cheering is for freshmen only and assume an air of indifference when called upon by the cheerleaders to support the team.

Every student with the Carolina spirit from the august senior down to the verdant freshman should cooperate today and do his part to make cheering the success it should be.

OPEN FORUM LETTER

To the Editor of the Tar Heel:

Dear sir:
My weekly column, which you so courageously authorized me to write for Thursday's issue, was literally drawn and quartered by some Terrible Turk of an editor. And since my name appeared above one utterly foreign paragraph, I seize upon this opportunity, with tooth and nail, to disown some neighbor's bad offspring. One entire paragraph devoted to the freshmen of this good University, was thrown out by the villain. But my last words to them were summarized thus: "In this day of grin-songs, vice will be found in abundance. Of course it is usually worth what it costs."

Now that makes a column, already weak from more operations than Irving Cobb ever knew a genuine appeal for the enrollment of this writer in Keeley Institute. And it makes me fear for my very physical integrity by the doctrine it enunciates. Vice is worth what we pay for it—that's what the freshmen are told. Socrates swigged the hemlock for corrupting the morals of the youth of his day; but even he was never so rash as to encourage the young to invest in wild oats!

The heading "nostalgia" was out of place above that paragraph. The words "in this day of grin-songs" belonged to another paragraph. And may I correct the vice sentence? It should read: "Good advice is usually worth what it costs."

ACTUAL TEACHER TRAINING TO BEGIN

$75,000 Will Furnish Department Heads for High School

For the first time in the history of the University, students who are preparing to be teachers have a chance to get some real experience by teaching in the Chapel Hill High School under the supervision of new department heads. These department heads came to the High School this year under a fund of $75,000 given by the Education board for the purpose of employing six men for five years at $15,000 each year. At the end of the five years the University will take up the work and continue the training that students are receiving now.

The new teachers under this plan are head of the High School departments in English, Mathematics, Natural Sciences, Latin, French and History. Three of the teachers will take up their work in the fall of 1927 when they will return from a leave of absence, during this time they will make better preparations for teaching. The teachers who are now in their respective places are the heads of the English, Mathematics and French departments.

Champion Skaters Appear In "Fascinating Youth"

Norval Baptie, world's champion speed and fancy skater, his partner, Gladys Lamb, known as "Pavlowa on Skates," and an ice ballet of 18 skaters are seen in the Paramount Junior Stars' picture, "Fascinating Youth," which comes to the Pickwick Theatre today.

The famous skaters, who performed at the new Madison Square Garden, appear in an ice carnival at Mountain Inn, the Winter resort hotel around which the action of Byron Morgan's story centers.

The skating was done in the studio on a glass floor, specially prepared from a secret formula. Technical experts were called in for construction. The skaters declared it equal to real ice in smoothness.

The established speed records in both speed and fancy skating. He retired about five years ago from speed competition, undefeated after more than twenty years. During that time he established speed records at six distances. His feat of jumping over twelve barrels forward and ten barrels backwards on skates is still unequalled.

Atwood and Nash Architects for Peace Institute

Atwood and Nash, the University architects, have been retained as architects for the new buildings of Peace Institute in Raleigh. A library and two new dormitories are to be erected. B. N. Duke has pledged $25,000, Captain Nathan O'Berry of Goldsboro has pledged $10,000, the alumni of the Institute have contributed $10,000 toward the library, and a campaign to raise the rest of the necessary $300,000 will be launched next month.
