Tar Heels Upset Dope and By Series of Brilliant Runs Crush V. M. I.; Score 28 to 0

ON EMERSON FIELD

Ferrell, Young, Shuford and McPherson Score Touchdowns for Carolina—Thrilled Spectators

YOUNG IS STAR OF GAME

Nabers Plays Great Game for V. M. I.—Smooth Precision of Carolina Machine

Carolina surprised her most ardent supporters by defeating V. M. I. 28 to 0 on Emerson Field Saturday.

Brilliant runs by Ferrell, Young, Shuford, and McPherson figured largely in the points amassed by Carolina's gridiron aggregation in the contest. The final score is no accurate definition of the strength of the two teams, as Carolina's tallies came as the result of three spectacular runs and one forward pass. Only twice did Carolina succeed in carrying the ball within the keydef's seven yard line on short line plays. Once the keydets obtained the pigskin by holding Carolina for downs on the three yard line. In the other instance, Carolina scored when, on the fourth down, Furches whipped an accurate pass to Shuford who then proceeded to plunge across the goal line for a touchdown.

Ferrell Scores

Despite the fact that two of our leading North Carolina dailies state the facts differently, it was Ferrell who in the early part of the first period twisted through left tackle and, aided by the excellent interference of Ellison, Jenkins, McMurray, Warren and Shuler, ran 62 yards to register Carolina's first touchdown. Hackney droppicked the point after touchdown.

This score was the only tally during the first half. The initial two periods, with the exception of Ferrell's run, were waged on almost even terms. Carolina registered five first downs to three for V. M. I.

Until the last minute the third quarter was a terrific melee. V. M. I. was forced to adopt defensive tactics, with the exception of several ineffective passes; but succeeded in holding the Tar Heels in check. Seconds

Get Your Directory?

New Booklet Being Distributed—Copies Obtainable at Y. M. C. A.

The directory of students, faculty, and clerical force of the University and city directory of Chapel Hill, published annually by the Y. M. C. A., came from the press last week, and was distributed free to dormitory rooms, fraternity houses, offices on the campus, homes in the town, and places of business, by Saturday. There was a slight delay in the publishing of the directories, due to amount of work required to make this year's directory more complete and correct than any previous issue.

Besides the names, home addresses, and local addresses of students and citizens of Chapel Hill, the directory contains fraternity lists, directory of the faculty by schools, Chapel Hill Ministers, and School Teachers. A copy of the directory will be furnished to any individual who may call for it at the Y. M. C. A. office.

GAINS 140 YARDS

Tom Young gained more ground in the V. M. I. game than the whole V. M. I. team gained by end runs, line plunges and forward passes.

PLAYMAKERS TO LEAVE THURSDAY FOR HEAVY TOUR

Will Present Goldsmith's "She Stoops To Conquer" In East Carolina

12 TOWNS IN ITINERARY

Party of 21 To Travel By Special Bus—Entertainments Planned for Playmakers

The Carolina Playmakers will leave November 11 for their tour and will present Oliver Goldsmith's comedy "She Stoops to Conquer," in the eastern part of the state. The party of twenty-one people will leave the "Hill" by bus Thursday and return November 24, traveling by special chartered bus.

The Playmakers will play twelve towns in eleven days, this is made possible by the fact that they will give a matinee performance at Nashville and a night performance in Spring Hope, both November 15. The Playmakers are planning on giving a matinee and night performance in Scotland Neck.

Entertainment for the Playmakers is being planned in the different towns in which they will visit. Edenton has already sent word that the town will be thrown open to the Playmakers, and they will have to pay for nothing while in their city, the Playmakers are to wear orange masks to distinguish themselves while in their city. The Rotarian Club is also to give a luncheon for the Playmakers.

The Playmakers are carrying a distinguished cast on their first tour of the year. They have also selected a fine old comedy of Goldsmith's and the people in Chapel Hill are looking forward with much pleasure to the presentation of the production here during the first of December. The cast is as follows, J. W. Harden as Mr. Hardcastle; Miss Eral Thompson as Mrs. Hardcastle; Miss Margaret Ellis as Miss Hardcastle; Mrs. Lenore McFadden as Miss Neville; Shep

BIBLE GROUPS TO END DISCUSSIONS

Tomorrow Evening's Gatherings Will Terminate Program of the Six Meetings

TOPICS FOR DISCUSSION

The forty-four religious discussion groups, which were organized five weeks ago on each floor of practically every dormitory on the campus, have been meeting for one-half hour every Wednesday night with an average attendance of 480 students a week.

The series of six meetings, conducted by the Y. M. C. A. Committee on Religious Work, of which J. O. Allison is chairman, and J. O. Evans, secretary, will be brought to a close with the meeting tomorrow night. The final report is to be turned in to the Y. M. C. A. office by 4:30 Thursday, when the tabulation will be begun to determine the group entitled to be entertained at a banquet for the highest percentage of attendance during the series. Last year the banquet was given to one of the groups in Vance dormitory.

This year, in making out the questions for discussion, Mr. Comer has chosen broad topics and has outlined discussions of general interest to the students. Reports show that the largest groups are those of the second floor of Mangum with 24 members, and the first floor of "J" with 21 members. The average

COLLEGE OF LIBERAL ARTS GIVES BROAD BACKGROUND SAYS HIBBARD

Purpose of A. B. School Is To Give Cultural and Not Professional or Vocational Training—System of Majors and Electives Is Explained

By Walter Spearman

What is the use of a College of Liberal Arts? Just what does the College of Liberal Arts in the University of North Carolina accomplish? Does it prepare a man for a practical life? Is it merely a vat in which the student is dipped in order to receive a veneer of the so-called "culture"? Does it give a thorough education or a smattering of knowledge?

In the College of Liberal Arts for the first two years the student follows a definite course of study, consisting of work in English, foreign languages, history, mathematics, and science. By his junior year he must decide what special line of study he would like to pursue and choose that for his "major". This elective system used in the junior and senior year allows a man to specialize in one of three fields of work: Language and Literature; Philosophy, Political and Social Sciences; or Mathematics, Natural Sciences, Psychology. From his major department the student must take three to five courses each of his last two years. His other courses are to be selected at his choice save that he must choose one course from each of the other departments.

This elective system of specialization tends to pattern the Liberal Arts College after the professional schools; it leads away from the function of Liberal Arts education and yet cannot hope to attain the vocational perfection of the true professional school. This fact is probably the cause of the withdrawal of many students from

CONCERT GOERS DELIGHTED WITH THE TROXELLS

Charles Troxell, Tenor, and Daughter Miss Helena Troxell Give Second Concert

YOUNG PIANIST SCORES

Miss Troxell, 12 Years Old, Makes Hit with Audience and Is Roudly Applauded

By J. O. Marshall

The University Music Department presented in Memorial Hall, Sunday afternoon, its second concert of the season before a fairly large audience of faculty members and local concertgoers. The usual handful of students was in attendance.

Charles Troxell, tenor, began the concert with the recitative "And God Created Man," and the aria "In Native Worth" from Haydn's "The Creation." Haydn, it will be remembered, came well within the classic school, and though life was precarious—the Turks threatened all Europe and the Holy Roman Empire tottered—there is in his works none of the sentimentalization of tragedy that so dominates the romantic movement. This selection shows consideration, for Mr. Troxell is a mature artist; he had a satisfying and extensive technical command over both the Haydn and his second group, which was composed of more or less realistic program compositions. He

LIBRARY RESERVES DEBATE MATERIAL

Books and Pamphlets Used in Debates Are Reserved at Desk

The library authorities have announced that several books and pamphlets have been placed on reserve at the desk for the use of debaters. Candidates for the intercollegiate debate on "Modification of the Volstead Act", the Mary D. Wright debate on "Direct primaries", and the Freshman intersociety debate on "The cancellation of inter-allied debts" can gain much valuable information by the use of these new books and pamphlets.

Preliminaries for all of the debates mentioned will take place in the next few days. References to reserve material and other material available in the library will be found posted on the revolving bulletin board at the end of the circulation desk.

TAR BABIES LOSE TO STATE FROSH

Inability to Break Up Wolflets Passes Largely Responsible for 14 to 6 Defeat

TOUCHDOWN BY FENNER

The Carolina freshmen waited too long to show a sustained drive in the game with the State College freshmen at Raleigh, Saturday, and went down to defeat by the score of 14 to 6.

State had things pretty much its own way during the first half and shoved over their two touchdowns in this part of the game. The Tar Babies came back with a vengeance in the last half, scored a touchdown, and kept the ball in State territory until the end of the game. Two forward passes grounded behind State's goal line are examples of the Tar Babies' offensive threats in the latter part of the game.

Once again, as in the South Carolina game two weeks ago, the Tar Babies' inability to break up forward passes cost them a victory. In the beginning of the second quarter, Whisenant, Tar Baby safety man, and a State end caught a long forward pass together on Carolina's six yard line, but according to the rules the ball was in the possession of the offensive team. That play was the break. On the very next try, Warren of State skirted left end for the remaining six yards and a

HARRIERS WIN IN MEET HERE WITH DUKE AND STATE

Elliot Leads in Varsity Cross Country Race With State Trackmen

DEFEAT DUKE IN RELAY

Tar Baby Cross Country Men Led by Barkley When Defeat State Frosh

The University of North Carolina's track athletes made a clean sweep of a series of events on Emerson Field Saturday between halves of the Carolina V. M. I. football game by defeating the Varsity and Freshman cross country teams from State College and by winning from Duke University in a mile relay race.

Coach Dale Ranson established definite proof of the Tar Heel's superiority in state track athletics by the easy manner in which both Varsity and Freshman proteges ran away from competition. The first six men to finish in the Carolina-State four and a quarter mile grind were all Tar Heels. Galen Elliott holder of the Southern mile record, led the whole pack of runners home in the remarkable time of twenty-one minutes, eight seconds. "Art" Daniels, Carolina cross country captain, followed Elliott over the finish line ten seconds later. The final score of the meet was 15 to 48, low score winning. The order in which the runners finished: Elliott (C), Daniels (C), Brown (C), Cox (C), Pritchard (C), Chance (S), Kendilon (S), Goodwin (C), Hoyle (S), Brimley (S), Rogers (S), ? (S), ? (S), ? (S).

The Tar Baby cross country men maintained the precedent set by the Varsity and defeated the State freshmen by the score of 18 to 45. Barkley, cake race

CHEERIOS TO GIVE SHOW FOR FUNDS

Cheering Group Stage Revue to Defray Part of Expenses of Virginia Trip

ATTEND DAVIDSON GAME

The Cheerios, having completed their work on the home field for this football season, are now pointing to a huge demonstration in foreign territory. Practically every man is going to Davidson, and the entire body is going to Virginia in a group on a special train. It is to this game that the organization is directing most of its plans. About two-thirds of this group are self-help students. However, there is not one man that has not pledged to pay as much as possible of his expenses for the trip. The remainder of the expenses is being raised by the Cheerios so that every member will be there to represent Carolina in its fight for victory on Thanksgiving day.

One means of raising the necessary funds is a show to be sponsored by the Cheerios to be given Monday night before Thanksgiving. The faculty Committee has granted permission for this entertainment to be presented, and several organizations have pledged their support in making it a success. The show will be in the form of
