HIGHER COST FOR STUDENTS' ROOM WILL BE DECIDED FRIDAY MORNING

Governor McLean Wants Rents Increased in Order to Slice Appropriations Request

(By E. J. Evans)

The eyes of the student body will be turned towards Raleigh tomorrow morning, when the University executive committee meets to consider the proposal of Governor McLean and the State Budget Commission to increase the dormitory rents. This raise in rent, of course, will mean simply an encouragement for private enterprises to come in and erect rooming houses which could be rented to students at a profit.

The dormitory rent situation is just another indication that the University of North Carolina is not going to get the appropriations it asked for this year. Governor McLean, ex-officio chairman of the University executive committee, did not attend the meeting of his committee when it presented its request to the Budget Commission for a forty-three per cent increase in its appropriation. After the request had been made, he stated that appropriations should go to elementary education instead of higher education. Also the Governor and the Budget commission have suggested that if rents are raised in the Dormitories and private rooming houses come in to take the place of the dormitory, the problem of housing the students will be taken from the hands of the University authorities, and the appropriations for permanent improvements can be reduced. Things look bad for the appropriations!

While the students are somewhat interested in whether or not the appropriations will be granted, they are naturally more interested in the new plan to increase dormitory rents. Although the Governor and N. A. Townsend, both on the executive committee of the University, have expressed their willingness to adopt the high rent method as one way of reducing appropriations, it is the firm belief of the writer that strong objections to the new rent policy will be encountered at the meeting of the executive committee tomorrow.

The executive committee is handling a very important problem tomorrow, and the University students are eagerly awaiting developments that might completely change college life and college organization.

Council Is Postponed

The Religious Worker's Council has been postponed until next Thursday, November 18. The postponement is due to the absence of several Council members.

TAR HEEL BUSINESS MEN MEET TONIGHT

There will be a very important meeting of the entire business staff of the TAR HEEL Thursday night at 8:30 in the business office. There will be some very necessary matters discussed and it is urged that all men be present.

STATE DISOBEYS THE CONSTITUTION SAYS DR. KNIGHT

At Burlington in Speech About North Carolina School System

Dr. Edgar W. Knight, of the University of North Carolina, delivered an address in Burlington Tuesday night; his subject was "Training Parents as an Aid in Solving North Carolina's Educational Problems."

In his address he convincingly showed his audience many of the defects in the educational system of the state and made a plea for their correction.

"North Carolina is backward educationally," said Dr. Knight, "because the state has not observed the clear command of the constitution and has refused to provide and maintain for all the children that school system which the fundamental law of the state requires. The arrangement devised for securing school funds is haphazard, our school law is defective and chaotic, the state lacks a comprehensive and intelligent plan for training and rewarding a wholesome supply of teachers, there are many administrative handicaps, and short school terms, ill-prepared and uninspiring teachers, school managers who are deficient in vision and leadership, a multitude of educational inequalities within the same counties. All these can be removed if the state should do its manifest duty."

Dr. Knight pointed out that one of the best ways of correcting these faults was for the parents to see that the educational system of the state functions as it should.

Juniors Meet Today

All junior class members of the German Club are requested to be present at Memorial Hall at 1:30 today, as an election of leaders and assistant leaders for the junior Prom, and the marshalls and assistant for commencement dances will be held at that hour. Since these officers are very important to the dances, all such members of the German Club are urged to be present.

MANY USES FOR NEW EAST DURING ITS HISTORY, DISCLOSED BY WRITER

Structure Was Built During the "Gold Rush" Period of the University's life—May be Finished by Christmas

(By J. R. DeJournette)

The reconstruction of New East gives occasion to recall the high lights of history connected with this old building, and to bring back the memory of the romance which it holds for those who were in the University of North Carolina at the time it was built, in 1859, and the following eventful years.

New East has been used as a dormitory, society hall, Phi Society, library, biology department, and geology department. It was built for use as a dormitory when first the number of students who attended the University began to increase. Prior to 1850 the largest number never exceeded 170. Old West and South dormitories were sufficient to accommodate every student for a long time, but by 1856 the tremendous enrollment of 456 students began to crowd the campus.

SENIORS TO APPLY FOR THEIR DEGREES

All seniors in the A. B. school who are candidates for a degree any time this year must make a formal application to their Dean, according to a regulation of the University. Dean Hibbard has also asked that all men in any way doubtful about their work make an appointment with him at an early date.

PHI IN FAVOR OF HAVING FACULTY DEBATING COACH

Resolution to Ostracize Collegiate Fords is Defeated

A motion that the present condition of debating at the University is deplorable and requires the services of a coach was heartily approved at the meeting of the Phi Assembly, Tuesday night.

Mr. Covington introduced the question and spoke of the apparent need of some faculty leader here who will revive interest in an almost lost art. In the stress placed upon athletics, we have unfortunately relegated debating to a minor position in the student's life. The situation has reached a pitiful stage, according to the speaker, when during the past year we were victorious in but two of thirteen intercollegiate debates. The fault of our debaters lies almost entirely in their obvious lack of modern training, it was stated. Messers Haynes, Harrell, and Crew, in defense of this motion, spoke of the favorable support that the faculty is giving this idea and further stressed the many benefits to be derived by interested students.

The opposition, supplied by Messers W. Kelley and Whitley, concerned itself chiefly with the finances of supplying a coach. It was stated that the pittance granted the debate council was hardly adequate for its own needs without the additional burden of a coach. An added and unwelcome fee to the student body will be necessary if

Howell Attends Meeting of American Universities' Association

At Evanston, Illinois from November 11 to 13

Dr. A. C. Howell, Dean of the University Graduate School, left this week to attend the annual meeting of the Association of American Universities at Evanston, Illinois. The conference lasts from November 11 to 13, during which time the delegates will be entertained by Northwestern University with dinners, receptions, and a big football game to be played at the dedication of the new stadium.

Membership in the Association of American Universities is limited to the most important of American universities. The University of North Carolina held the presidency of this body last year. Since Dr. Chase was unable to attend the conference of last year. Dr. Royster, Dean of the Graduate School, attended and presided over the meetings for the University of North Carolina.

The following universities make up the entire membership: California; Catholic; Chicago; Clark; Columbia; Cornell; Harvard; Illinois; Indiana; Iowa; Johns Hopkins; Kansas; Minnesota; Nebraska; North Carolina; Northwestern; Ohio State; Pennsylvania; Princeton; Stanford; Virginia; Washington; Wisconsin; and Yale.

LICENSED BAWDY HOUSES DEBATED BY DI SENATE

Senators May Again Invite Governor Al Smith to Speak Here

In one of the most interesting and well attended meetings in years, the Di Senate engaged in a discussion of the licensing of bawdy houses in North Carolina last Tuesday night that proved so interesting and so productive of argument that the discussion of the bill was held over until the next meeting in order to allow complete discussion of the bill by all senators.

The bill was sponsored by the Ways and Means Committee, and was presented by Senator Eaton. The senator declared that he was not entirely convinced of the merits of the question, but brought it up as being one extremely vital and holding interest for every Senator. It was worded, Resolved: that the Dialectic Senate go on record as recommending a law requiring the licensing of all bawdy houses in North Carolina. Many of the speakers showed considerable forethought in their addresses, and all had varying views of the problem to offer. Among those upholding the measure were Senators Brown, Block, Norwood, and Kartus. The opponents were numerous, among the most outstanding being Senators Mogulescu, Kennett, Bledsoe, Hudgins, Neal, and Cameron.

After nearly two hours of warm discussion of the measure, Senator Kennett moved that it be tabled until the next meeting for further discussion.

Senator Kennett was empowered by the Senate to reopen the question of inviting Governor Al Smith to address the senate. An attempt of this nature was made last year which just fell short of success. It was felt that an invitation at this time will receive more consideration than ever.

The following bills were introduced: Resolved: that the Dialectic Senate go on record as recommending that steps be taken to provide for the reduction of the status of athletics in American colleges and universities to that of any other activity—Senator Kennett; Resolved: that the Dialectic Senate recommend that the student council procedure should be changed to one resembling that of the Superior Court of North Carolina, thus allowing the defendant the right of public trial and that of presenting his own defence—Senator Williams.

BOND TO DELIVER ARMISTICE DAY ADDRESS HERE

In Memorial Hall at 10:30—Classes Suspended from 11-12

The Armistice Day exercises will be held this morning at 10:30 in Memorial Hall under the joint auspices of the University and the local post of the American Legion. The program is extensive, and is said to be worthy of the occasion. Judge W. W. Bond, Edenton, will make the address and president Chase will preside.

All classes will be suspended from eleven until twelve o'clock for the exercises. At eleven there will be a period of silence lasting two minutes, in honor of the war dead.

As the audience assembles the University band will render martial airs. The exercises will open with an invocation by the Rev. A. S. Lawrence, chaplain of the local Legion post. The national hymn will be sung, then Dean Hibbard will read the roll of the University dead. J. O. Harmon, commander, will give the roll of dead from his post. Taps will sound, and the two minute silence will follow.

Judge Bond will make an address, and the exercises will be closed by singing the national anthem, followed by the benediction.

TAR BABY TEAM PLAYS MARYLAND FROSH SATURDAY

On Emerson Field—Rain Hinders Workouts

The Carolina Tar Babies make their first appearance before the University student body Saturday when they bump up against the fast moving Maryland freshman football team on Emerson field.

Last year the Carolina freshmen opened their season with an easy victory over the lads from Maryland by the score of 21 to 0. The game was played on rain-soaked ground that slowed up both teams considerably. Judging from present indications, it looks as if this year's game will have as its stage another rain-soaked Emerson field.

The Tar Babies are all on edge for Saturday's contest and are particularly eager to make amends to their coaches for the licking handed them by the State College frosh at Raleigh

WOMAN LOBBYIST SHOWS EVIL OF 'DIRTY POLITICS'

To North Carolina Club Monday Night in Discussion of Feminine Role in Legislative Affairs

Believing that "through persistence and publicity the program of the League of Woman Voters will eventually be enacted by the State Legislature," Mrs. Mary O. Cowper, Durham, delighted her audience at the North Carolina Club meeting Monday evening with her interesting and informative discussion of politics and the role which woman is playing in public life. Mrs. Cowper is Regional Director of the League, and has just completed an extensive tour through the South in an effort to rouse the citizenry from its lethargic state.

Her talk was chiefly concerned with the bills which the League of Woman Voters had brought before the legislature during the past three years. The varied discussions, which she had with the law-makers in her effort to arouse some support for the proposals she was sponsoring, formed an interesting background for her analysis of why they had or had not been passed by the House.

Role of Women

Admitting at the outset that women still had a great deal to learn about politics before they would be able to understand and cope with the so-called diplomatic dealings of the two major parties, Mrs. Cowper defined the League of Woman Voters as "a non-partisan organization attempting to study politics in a scientific fashion, primarily interested in advancing the cause of good government."

"The Legislature, in spite of the unanimous demands of the woman's clubs affiliated with the League, has steadfastly refused to pass—or in some cases even consider—the proposals which have been brought before them. Our measures cannot be considered extravagant, radical or too advanced for the state because they have all been adopted elsewhere, but in spite of all this we have so far met with little success. But we are persistent—witness our seventy-five year fight for equal suffrage—and we will stand by the guns until our efforts are—as they must some day be—rewarded."

Mrs. Cowper then reviewed the program which has been before the Legislature for the past three years. Speaking of the Australian ballot, she said, "Certainly you can all see that a change in the methods of voting is necessary, and yet I am very sorry to say that in the last election, when the issue was before the voters, Chapel Hill and Durham, the two leading university towns, expressed their disapproval of the bill. Why? I am at a loss to understand it."

"Rotten politics were responsible for its defeat in the last session of the Legislature when the opposition won by but a single vote."

"Eight Hour Law"

The League seems to be particularly incensed over the defeat of the bill providing for an eight-hour day for women and children in industry. They have continually called for an adequate survey which would determine the number of women and children employed in fac-
