

CONSIDER CHANGE OF SPRING RECESS FOR COMING YEAR

Calendar Committee Voted Tie On Changing Holidays To Follow End of Winter Quarter.

NEXT YEAR'S CALENDAR

A faculty committee, appointed to draft a calendar providing a greater equality among the three terms and possibly a shifting of the spring vacation to a period between the winter and spring quarters, has prepared its report to be submitted at the next meeting of the faculty.

The actual teaching days, including examinations, for each quarter on this new basis is as follows: Fall 75, Winter 64, Spring 64. The committee was divided on the question of the place for the Easter holidays, but as here printed the spring vacation falls between the winter and spring quarters.

Members of the Committee on Schedule are: T. J. Wilson, Jr.; D. D. Carroll; G. M. Braune; A. H. Patterson; and Addison Hibbard.

The calendar as suggested by the committee for 1927-1928:

SEVEN GRADUATES OF UNIVERSITY AT HARVARD

The following graduates of the University of North Carolina are at present enrolled in the Harvard Business School, according to an announcement from the office of the Dean of the School: Thomas Campen, James L. Coker, III, Charles Gold, Harold Lineberger, Benton Pipkin, Abel Shuford, Jr., and Abram Solomon.

All seniors in the School of Education, who are expecting to graduate by the end of the winter quarter, should see both the Registrar and Dean Walker immediately to get a check on his or her courses.

HERE and THERE in the SPORTS-WORLD

By L. N. B.

The snow had begun in the morning, And busily all the day, Had been heaping street and campus For the soph'more-freshman fray.

Of all the winter sports, snowball fighting is the most ancient and is built on the most primitive of instincts. How many of us would turn from a real old-fashioned snowball battle to take part in so tame a sport as basketball or ice hockey. Basketball, boxing, wrestling and other sports have their following here on the "Hill," but just wait until the annual sophomore-freshman snow battle for the thrill of the year.

Old-timers back on the "Hill" tell of the great snow battles that featured every winter in the "good old days." Even Tar Heels of a vintage as late as our own Class of 1927 can tell of one of the historic battles of recent years.

Back in "Twenty-seven's" verdant year everyone had given up hopes of a snow, and all the plans of both the frosh and the sophs for the annual scrap seemed destined to go for naught. But late in February a real snow came, much like the one that covers the campus today. That afternoon, beginning at Swain Hall after dinner, hostilities were declared in earnest; and for five hours the battle raged. Up and down the campus, into the Arboretum and back again, the frosh hordes swept their enemies before them. However the center of hostilities was around the flag-pole between Old West and Old East. There the freshmen defended their flag until long after sunset, finally yielding to the attack of the three upper classes combined to drop their flag. That battle will live long in the memory of participants, but with such a quantity of ammunition as graces the campus today who knows but another of the "great scraps" is due this year.

And May the Best Class Win!
But to turn from "sports as is sports" to the more formal "athletics," the eyes of the South are turned on Carolina this year. The question going over Dixie is "Can the Tar Heels repeat?" Four Southern titles in five years is a great record, and many think the mere matter of winning a Conference crown has become a habit. At any rate, the Tar Heels are the "dark horses" this year.

"Gone are the days" of Jack Cobb, Billy Devin, Bill Dodderer, that trio who wrote three heroic chapters in the Book of Southern Basketball, and who knows what Carolina has this winter. Not even the students themselves can say, although they did see the quintet lick Durham "Y" to a frazzle.

Perhaps though it is best that Carolina start among the "unknown," for it is often the steeds of darker hue that nose out in the end; and to win unexpectedly is a greater glory.

While Captain Hackney's men go on their way unsung, North Carolina boasts another quint that is stepping into the spotlight this year. Gus Tebell's "Red Terrors" from N. C. State left a mighty good impression in Atlanta last March, and they present an almost unbroken front again this season.

Their only loss was Captain Fletcher Dickens, but in "Dick" they lost one of the cleverest little forwards of recent years. Coach Tebell can put five men on the floor this year, all over six feet tall, and height is a great advantage in the cage

CHEERIOS ACTIVE WINTER QUARTER

Group Meets Monday Night To Lay Plans for Basketball.

The winter activities of the Cheerios will be discussed at a meeting which has been called by Charlie Thomas, chief of the Cheerios, to take place at Gerard Hall Monday night at 7:30. The officials announce that all members of the organization are urged to be present and others who wish to qualify for any vacant places left by former members who have left school.

Among the items of interest on their program for the basketball season will be stunt performances in which the Cheerios will engage at the most important games of the season.

The activities of the Cheerios during the winter athletic season will be to some extent different from their appearances at the football games, but the officials have said it would not differ in enthusiasm.

Cheerleader Kyke Kyser will be on hand at the first meeting.

RELIGIOUS WORKERS COUNCIL TO MEET SOON

The Religious Workers Council will hold its first meeting of the year at a dinner in the Episcopal Parish House, Thursday at 6:00 p. m. The subject of this meeting will be, "Sunday School work in Chapel Hill with respect to student participation."

The outline of the subject under consideration is roughly as follows:

1, Adequate record system of attendance and proper follow up; 2, organization forms; 3, teachers and courses; 4, publicity; 5, finances; 6, social entertainment features; and 7, special Sunday School drive for January. There will be a general exchange of opinions and experiences along these lines among the council.

The problems in the way of a large student attendance at the Sunday Schools, as outlined by the Council, are:

1, Week-end tripping; 2, oversleeping; 3, Sunday paper; 4, general indolence; 5, limited social features; 6, bad faculty example; 7, anti-Sunday School attitude; 8, social grouping outside of Sunday Schools at the Sunday School hour; and 9, failure of religious leaders to attend consistently. Each of these topics will be discussed Thursday night.

Because of the Sunday School discussion to be held, the Religious Workers Council will have as their guests the Superintendents of Sunday Schools in Chapel Hill, and the student class presidents of each Sunday School.

Circulation of Library Increased for Past Month

According to C. M. Baker, assistant librarian, the University library circulation for the month of December showed an increase of 37 per cent over December of 1925. The library remained open during daylight hours of the Christmas recess.

H. F. Janda and A. S. Chase left Saturday to attend the National Road Show in Chicago this week.

The first meeting of the Phi Assembly for the quarter will be held at the Law Building tonight at 7:15.

game. Brown, center; Watkins, and McDowell, guards; and Spence and Goodwin, forwards; will make a powerful combination. Indeed it is a mystery how "Groundhog" Gresham, this year's "Terror" captain, can make his own team.

MARIE SUNDELIUS CONCERT PLEASURES

Reviewer Finds Metropolitan Opera Soprano Varied and Satisfying but Concert Is Mediocre.

WEAVER IS ACCOMPANIST

(By Jom)

The concert last Friday evening, at which the University Department of Music presented Marie Sundelius, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, was pleasing, varied and satisfying, but at no point in the program did the artist reach any unusual moment of interpretation or lift her audience from their rather passive appreciation of a well-developed and experienced technique.

The program was divided into five distinct groups. The first of classic music was the only one of which the audience did not demand an encore. The second of modern music contained compositions by Debussy, Stravinsky, and Korngold; it was followed by an American group. The fourth, two Grieg compositions and two Swedish folksongs evoked the greatest show of appreciation. Miss Sundelius translated the folksongs before singing them, adding two stories to the repertory of local folk-music enthusiasts. She was as gesticulate as she was articulate, and showed clearly an operatic tendency towards the combination of music and drama.

Miss Sundelius concluded her recital with Ardit's "Se Saran Rose," giving "Jamie Dear," an old American waltz, as an encore. Paul John Weaver accompanied her at the piano.

is made is exhausted or the makers thereof are safely lodged in the Infirmary. Every kind of heavy winter apparel available has appeared to keep pace with the temporary disguise of the "sunny south." Kodaks are brought from hiding and put to the only use of the year. Non-descript collections of golf hose, scarfs, caps and hats, overcoats and boots grace the campus to say nothing of last but not least, co-educational limbs enveloped in wool stockings and flopping goloshes. Slipping and falling are all the vogue and many an unwelcome contact with earth and snow brings forth a jolly round of merry laughter from all the fun loving schoolboys.

The ancient and honorable tradition of the freshman-sophomore snow fight has not yet shown any signs of being carried out this year. Last year the fray was fast and furious for the freshmen frustrating final futile formations of their foes. However the battle showed signs of diminishing fervor compared to those of earlier years, only five windows having been shattered and only a few personal injuries having been sustained. The yearly battle is one of the grandest traditions of the Old College and it is rumored that the University authorities have taken the affair in hand and these freshmen and sophomores who do not answer the roll when it is called by President Chase, in front of Old South this afternoon after dinner, will be put on strict probation for the rest of the year.

P. S. It's still snowing. The landscape stretches out in ever increasing, unending whiteness. I just can't wait to get my kodak. I must hurry to Foister's before the films are all sold out.

Camel attracts the quality smoker

CAREFUL observation will reveal that men of quality demand quality in a cigarette—smoke Camels. A Camel smoker goes straight to the point in cigarettes and demands enjoyment.

For there are no better tobaccos or blending than you get in Camels. There is no other cigarette taste and fragrance that can compare with Camels, because they are rolled of the choicest Turkish and Domestic tobaccos grown. In a cigarette, as in the smoker, there is nothing that can substitute for quality.

If you want to know what experienced smokers like, just try Camels. Each year new millions try them all and find in Camels enjoyment realized. Camels never tire the taste. To test the quality of Camels, compare them with any cigarette made regardless of price. "Have a Camel!"
