Tar Heels Even Basketball Series With the Marylanders

University Avenges Defeat of Monday By Score of 20 to 14

Sides Leads Scoring With Ten Points—Deciding Game Here on the 19th.

(By Ben Kendrick, '30)

The Tar Heel quint avenged a previous defeat Tuesday night by beating Maryland 32 to 23, at College Park. Due to a unique arrangement, the second string of each team started the game and played the entire first half. The Carolina scrubs got off to a flying start in the first few minutes and at the half had piled up a lead of 20 to 14.

At the beginning of the second period the varsity of both institutions took the floor. The Carolina regulars playing their usual flashy game not only held this lead but increased it three points. The White Phantoms seemed to have profited by their experience of the previous night and kept close guard over the stellar performers of their antagonists.

Sides, second-stringer, led the scoring of the Southern Champs by looping the ball through the basket for ten points, Satterfield coming close behind with seven. Of the regulars who saw service, Rufus Hackney and Billy Vanstory led with four points each. Hale, star Maryland forward, led the rest of his team and tied Sides by garnering ten.

The game came as a surprise to most Tar Heel fans, as it was not on the regular schedule, and it was not decided that it should be played until Tuesday morning. As it is necessary that any team interested in participating in the Southern Conference Tournament play at least eight games with Conference rivals before it can be represented, Carolina and Maryland both desired to play another game, since they had only seven scheduled. This enlarges the Carolina-Maryland conflicts into a three game series, with the deciding game to be played here on February 19.

Carolina (32)	Maryland (23)
Satterfield (7)	Hale (10)
Sides (10)	Snyder (5)
Purser (1)	Linkeoust (6)
Perkins	Crosthwaite
Baggett (2)	Zahn
Subs: Price (2)	Adams (1)
R. Hackney (4)	Faber (1)
Vanstory (4)	Boyd
Morris	Dean
B. Hackney (2)

SMITH RICHARDSON TO SPEAK TO DI SENATE

(By D. L. McBryde, Jr., '30)

Mr. Smith Richardson, president of the Vick Chemical Company, of Greensboro, has accepted an invitation from the Dialectic Senate to speak here Monday night. Mr. Richardson has been conducting a campaign against the State land tax system. He says that the North Carolina tax system was created for an agricultural State, and for this reason bears too heavily upon landed property. As a reformer for this Mr. Richardson advocates tax on intangible property.

(By D. E. Livingston, '30)

There will be another trip later in the quarter which will cover offers declined during this trip, and individual concerts at Greensboro and Raleigh.

Portrait of Judge Battle Is Presented To the University

(By J. J. Parker, '30)

An oil portrait of Judge William Horn Battle, founder of the law school of the University of North Carolina, was presented to the University Tuesday morning by T. H. Battle, Rocky Mount, H. B. Battle, Alabama, and W. J. Battle, Texas. The painting was done by Mrs. Arthur C. Nash.

Hill Yarborough, president of the Law School Association, presided over the meeting, making the address of welcome. The portrait was unveiled by little Miss Martha Ann Battle, Rocky Mount.

Presentation, on behalf of the donors, was made by Frank Spruill, Rocky Mount. Mr. Spruill paid high tribute to Judge Battle. A sketch of his life and career was given. He was graduated from the University in 1820, and was granted his license to practice in 1823. For some years he was a member of the General Assembly, and later, reporter for the Supreme Court, 1834-1839. He was appointed to revise the state statutes. In 1848 he was appointed to the Superior Court bench, but the Senate failed to endorse his appointment because there were at that time too many state officers from Orange county. He was successfully appointed to the bench in 1852 and remained there until 1865, when all state officers were deprived of their positions by the Federal government. He was reinstated after the state regained control. He served some years as a Supreme Court Justice.

A rising vote of thanks was tendered the donors, after which the meeting was transferred to the library where the picture was put on the wall.

FROSH PICTURE TAKEN TODAY

Another group picture of the Freshman Class will be taken this morning in front of the law building. The picture which was made some time ago was not good enough to make a good cut for the Yackety Yack, necessitating the making of a new negative.

THIS ISSUE IS EXCLUSIVE FROSH CLASS PRODUCT

Group of Freshmen Put Out the Tar Heel Without Assistance from Regular Staff.

This issue of the Tar Heel is the exclusive product of the journalistic talent of the Freshman Class.

The regular staff was liberal enough to the first year men to turn the entire responsibility over to them. The freshmen who were interested gathered and perfected an organization of their own; and have proceeded to prove to the campus that they have a great interest in the school publication. Freshman reporters were assigned to all the regular beats of the campus and the material in the field of feature stories was thoroughly searched for something that would prove of interest to TAR HEEL readers. Those who were asked to contribute have responded in a fine way, some of them working into the early morning hours in order that they might prove worthy of the opportunity given them. With the exception of some suggestions from the regular managing editor, Byron White, this issue is published under the auspices of the class of '30 with the following staff:

Library Reports Large Circulation

January Book Withdrawals Total More Than 15,000.

(By G. P. Holder, '30)

During the past month the main library of the University circulated 15,868 books, according to the monthly statement of C. M. Baker, assistant librarian. This total represents an increase of 18% over January of last year.

In addition to the number of books circulated by the main library, the circulations of the Commerce, Extension, Law, and other branch libraries showed an increase over those of previous months.

Library officials report that each month's circulation shows a substantial increase over the preceding month, and that the various library departments are badly crowded at present. They state that more library space must be provided in the near future.

Dean Bradshaw Directs Unique Discussion Group for Freshmen

Members Exchange Opinions On Everything from Religion and Success In Life To Choice of Schools and Campus Politics—Identical Idea Never Tried Before.

(By Ben Kendrick, '30)

Shortly after the beginning of the school year Dean Bradshaw organized a group of about a dozen Freshmen containing supposedly the most intelligent men in the class. The group tries to meet about once a week for a period of two hours in Dean Bradshaw's office and discusses problems which the average college student is called on to solve.

The membership of the group was determined to a large extent by the results of the intelligence tests given to all new men in the first week of school, although high school records and general reputation were taken into consideration. For the first few weeks the group of about twenty-five gradually shrank, but finally became stationary at about ten or twelve which seems to be an ideal number.

There is no attempt at debate, although in the course of the discussions it is quite frequent that divergent views will be expressed. Of course, conclusions are reached, but each man can have his own. That is to say that after a subject has been exhausted, some related one will be taken up without any attempt to take a vote or to say that one idea is right while another is wrong. Nor is there any attempt to direct the trend of the discussion which moves smoothly from one idea to another that is closely related without cognizance that a new field is the object of survey.

First Topic

The group took its first and only ballot at the very beginning to determine what topic had the most general interest. It was decided to discuss the question of choosing the right school. For the purpose of collecting data, Dean Bradshaw in chapel took a great many statistics as to why the student came to college, why he chose the course he did, how many times he has changed schools, and so forth. When the summary was finished it was discovered that over twenty were at this university because the Freshmen did not have to wear Freshman caps; one Sophomore had changed school four times; and one boy was in the liberal arts college "because I have to take this nonsense before I can take law" as he expressed it. While discussing this topic, Dean Hibbard was summoned to defend his branch of the University. After the meeting, he claimed to have benefitted more from the discussion than all the rest put together.

FEBRUARY ISSUE OF MAGAZINE IS ABOVE AVERAGE

Reviewer Praises Work of Fowler; Gardner's Article Is Good But Too Dry.

(By D. Pierson Ricks, '30)

Te Deum Laudamus! The eternal sophomore has graduated. "Burlesque," in the February issue of the Carolina Magazine, is by far the best bit of work R. K. Fowler has done for the magazine this year. It is a far leap from "Slaves" to "Burlesque." The bold, brutal adjectives of the latter are the work of an artist. Fowler's poem is the outstanding thing in this issue—I would add that it eclipses anything that has appeared in the Carolina Magazine this year, were it not for Sara Haardt's Anthology and Eric Walrond's "White Stranger."

I was somewhat puzzled at "... get the cue ... of raucous, blue and jazz-torn music." Perhaps Mr. Fowler would explain that as "poetic license." Let him have it. He was allowed.

FROSH FIVE LOSES TO BABY GENERALS

Whisnant Scores 15 Points in Hard-Fought Game.

(By M. G. Moore, '30)

The Tar Baby cagemen were defeated by the Washington and Lee frosh Tuesday night at Lexington, Va., 41 to 34. This was the only defeat administered the Tar Babies during their Virginia invasion.

The Little Generals forged into the lead during the first three minutes of the game when they scored eight points before the Carolina Freshmen were able to score. Both teams held the lead for a short time during the first half, which ended with the score standing 16 all.

The Little Generals got the lead again at the opening of the second half and held it consistently for the remainder of the game.

Both teams presented a well balanced attack. The individual star for the Tar Babies was Whisnant who scored 15 points, while Berry Wilson, high scorer of the game, led the attack for Washington and Lee by scoring 18 points.
