Council's Action Will Undergo Student Body Investigation Friday

Student Council Suspends Thirteen Men On Wholesale Gambling Charges

THREE MEN TELL ON THE REST OF GUILTY STUDENTS

Campus Sentiment is Said to Oppose Council's Ethical Methods in Securing Information.

EXPULSIONS ARE OF 3 UP TO 18 MONTHS

Suspended Men Will Appeal the Council's Decision.

Feeling is running high on the campus today following the suspending of thirteen men for gambling by the Student Council. Many students express strong sentiment against the action of the Council, stating that they do not question the justice of the suspensions, but the manner in which the Council secured evidence against the men. S. G. Chappell, President of the Student Body, refused to give a TAR HEEL reporter the names of the suspended students.

Suspension of the men followed the reporting to the Council of a series of alleged huge poker games that have been held in a room in Manly Dormitory during the past month. Only three men were apprehended. According to one of the men, the Council suspended these three students "for failure to co-operate with the council" in furnishing the names of the other men involved. The suspension was made last Thursday. This man's statement follows: "The council told us that we were suspended from the University for the rest of the college year. The suspension was to go into effect Saturday morning. If by then we had turned in the names of the other men the case would be re-opened upon a basis of poker playing."

Unequal Suspensions

Friday morning the names of all but three of the men were turned in to the council, with the knowledge of the men themselves. All of the men involved were suspended from the University for terms running from three to eighteen months.

S. G. Chappell stated yesterday that the Council did not give the men the alternative of furnishing the names of the other students involved or expulsion from the University.

President Chappell declared in a recent Chapel address that it takes a brave man to speak to a man personally when he sees him violating the honor system, while a coward will tell a Council member about it and ask that his name be withheld.

It is known that several of the men suspended have appealed to the Council for a re-hearing of the case.

BOXING UNIFORMS ARE DUE TODAY

H. C. Lay, Manager of Boxing, has announced that all boxers must turn in their uniforms at the stadium this afternoon from 3 to 4 o'clock. If they are not turned in at this time they will be charged up against the man.

Human Relations Meeting Draws Notable Speakers

GERALD JOHNSON PRAISES LOUIS GRAVES' WEEKLY

Quarter-page Editorial About Chapel Hill Paper is Printed in Baltimore Evening Sun.

In one of the most striking and graceful tributes that has ever been paid one newspaper by another, Louis Graves' Chapel Hill Weekly was the object of an extremely laudatory editorial by Gerald Johnson in the Baltimore Evening Sun.

The editorial, in part, is as follows: The Chapel Hill Weekly last week celebrated its fourth birthday. It has subscribers in Shanghai and Ceylon, and ardent admirers in newspaper offices all over the country. Yet Editor Graves has never been known to practice any sort of magic. One rule of standard newspaper practice he adheres to rigidly—he eschews "fine writing." The Chapel Hill Weekly is as sober as a Quaker meeting, and in that respect alone it is at one with the better sort of newspapers everywhere. The rest of the so-called rules of journalism simply do not run in that office; but the outcome of this singular practice is damaging only to the rules.

But it is neither its courage nor its news value that has attracted to the Chapel Hill Weekly the admiring attention of newspaper people from far away. Its elusive charm is due, rather, to the fact that it is the work of a civilized man who is doing what he likes best to do.

Louis Graves was born in the little village that houses the University of North Carolina, the son of a member of the faculty who died when the boy was young. Steeped in the atmosphere of the college town, he never forgot it. It clung to him through his days as a newspaper man in New York and through his years as a free lance. As an essayist he gained entrance to the most ponderous and dignified of the monthlies, as well as to the liberal weeklies. As a fictioneer he attained the short-story writer's Valhalla, the Saturday Evening Post. But his real interests were bounded by the crumbling field-stone walls that inclose the campus at Chapel Hill. (Continued on page four)

ACTORS PERFORM THIS SATURDAY

Revival of "Trista" and "The Miser" Will Be Last Plays of Winter Quarter.

Saturday evening, March 12 the Carolina Playmakers will present a bill of old favorites from their repertory. This plan was followed with great success on the tour of four states, Virginia, North and South Carolina and Georgia, from which they have just returned.

The bill to be presented will include Trista and The Miser. Since In Dixon's Kitchen was revived on the last bill it will not be repeated. Instead, there will be presented an exhibition of old English Sword Dancing, directed by Miss Josephine Sharkey.

Season ticket subscribers will be able to get their tickets at Sutton and Alderman's on Friday. Only one performance will be given, Saturday, March 12.

Summerral, Army Staff Chief, Likely to Come

Outstanding Southern Cotton Mill Manufacturers Will Lecture on South-Atlantic Industrial Progress and the Golden Rule.

Bob House, Secretary to Chase, Urges All Students to Attend the Seminar.

Fourteen specialists and prominent speakers are on the program for the first quadrennial "Institute on Human Relations," to be held at the University March 20-25, as indicated by the preliminary announcement issued by the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday.

These leaders in the fields of interracial relations, interrace relations, and the human element in industry, are men fresh from college life, and their talks and discussions at Carolina will be directed toward bringing to the student body a more thorough understanding of these three divisions of modern life.

It is planned to bring to the University a number of experts on the most important social questions for a very extensive program, similar to this one, quadrennially, states the "Y" announcement. It continues: "In addition to the occasional prominent speaker, this special week's study and discussion, under the leadership of a group of prominent visitors will bring exceptional opportunity to each generation of students."

From communications this week it appears probable that several leaders will attend the institute, other than those speakers already on the program. Charles P. Summerral, Chief of Staff, U. S. Army, has been invited to speak on "America's Defense Policy." Stewart W. Cramer, North Carolina cotton manufacturer, Cramerton, will speak on "The Human Element in Southern Industrial Progress." H. O. Fitzgerald, president of the Fall River and Danville Cotton Manufacturing Company, has been invited to speak on "The Golden Rule in Industry." Ben E. Geer, Greenville, S. C., said to be the most prominent cotton manufacturer in South Carolina, will speak on "Improving Relations between Employer and Employee."

Dr. Herbert A. Gibbons, Princeton, who returned Tuesday from Europe, will conduct a series of lectures and discussions on international relations. Dr. Gibbons is a globe trotter, author, professor, and lecturer. He has written twelve or more books on national and international relations, world peace, war debts, the changing map of (Continued on page four)

CHASE WILL SPEAK IN SOUTHERN PINES

President Harry W. Chase will speak at Southern Pines on the night of March 13. His subject will be "Education and Democracy."

Phi Cancels Its Regular Meeting

The regular meeting of the Phi Assembly was not held last Tuesday night. It is the custom to omit the session on the week before examinations.

FOOTBALL GAME SATURDAY TWIXT OLD-NEW PLAYERS

Monogram and Non-Monogram Men Will Clash on Emerson Field at 3:30 P. M.

85 MEN WILL GET INTO THE ACTION

Whisnant, McMurray, Supple, and Other Ex-Stars to Play.

What is so rare as a football game in March? And yet exactly that is going to happen on Emerson field Saturday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock. This football contest scheduled to arouse the campus only seven months ahead of time, will be a battle royal between the monogram men and the non-monogram men for a full, man-sized sixty minutes with four officials, the cheerios, admission fee of two bits, and all the color and glamor of a classic.

The students who will throng Emerson field Saturday will get an opportunity to again cast loving eyes on some of their old football favorites, whom they thought had passed forever from the pictures when Virginia shoved Carolina back 3 to 0 Thanksgiving day. Ex-captain Whisnant, Jay McMurray, and "Sup" Supple are three athletes who supposedly made their final bow at Virginia. They all three will get a chance to don Carolina moleskins again in the last-year's-regulars versus new-men March classic.

Coach Collins has announced that the game will be played un-

Fuller Will Read Congaree Sketches

Selections from Congaree Sketches will be read this afternoon at 4:30 in Murphey 215 by Henry R. Fuller, of the University Press, as the regular Thursday reading of the English department.

Congaree Sketches is now being printed by the University Press, and the selections read this afternoon will be from the galley proofs. The sketches are written by E. C. L. Adams, a retired physician of Columbia, S. C. They are artistic and authentic sketches of negro life in the big swamps of the Congaree, many of the incidents being actual experiences of Mr. Adams, who has spent a great deal of time among the negroes and in the swamps.

Among others Mr. Fuller will probably read "Ole Sister," a delightfully humorous sketch dealing with the negroes' characteristic conviction as to the anthropomorphic qualities of God, Heaven, and Hell; and "Judge Foolbird," an ironic and satirical thrust at the negroes' position in the white man's court.

Of Congaree Sketches Paul Green has written to the Press: "The stories are distinctive, . . . a fine addition to your list."

S. G. CHAPPELL
President of the Student Body, and head of the Honor Council, whose recent action in suspending 13 men is cause of much comment.

CHAPPELL GRANTS AN APPEAL TO PETITION SIGNERS

Mass Meeting Friday Morning At 10:30 of All Students To Consider the Council's Maneuvers.

CHASE CONSENTS TO OPEN FORUM

Student Body President Refuses Starr and Breard's Request for Mass Meeting but Grants it When Indicted Men Sign the Petition.

An appeal for a mass meeting on behalf of the fourteen men suspended for gambling Tuesday night by the Student Council has been granted by S. G. Chappell, president of the student body.

The appeal asked that the hour for this public investigation of the case be set for chapel period Friday morning and President Chase and Dean Bradshaw have agreed to extend the time over the class period following if the plan meets with the approval of Chappell.

The appeal was first presented verbally by Julian Starr and H. A. Breard acting for the men under sentence, but Chappell refused to grant the petition until it was presented in writing and signed by members of the aggrieved party.

Mr. Chappell stated that he could do nothing about the matter until such a petition was presented in written form as he did not feel that he could call such a meeting at the behest of two disinterested persons.

Appeal Is Granted

The two men then prepared a formal petition and had it signed by five of the men under sentence, fulfilling the requirements made by the President of the Student Body, and presented it to him. After some question of the actual time of the meeting which will be set today, President Chappell granted the appeal.

Messrs. Starr and Breard said in an interview that the purpose of the meeting, as they saw it, would not be to decide whether the Student Body of the University of North Carolina approved of gambling or not, but would be a meeting in which every attempt would be made to clarify the issue which is at stake.

The real issue, they defined on being questioned, was one which involved an interpretation of the honor system, and they questioned the means by which information leading to the suspension of members of the student body was obtained.

Last night's action by President Chappell is the culmination of strong sentiment among a large number of students for a public hearing on behalf of the suspended men. A petition which was circulated among a small number of students yesterday is held by the formulators, who declared that they would use it only as a last resort, and that they thought the matter was one for student settlement.

It was said yesterday afternoon that the man who furnished most of the names of the students involved was given a suspension taking effect next quarter.

DI TABLES BILL TO CENSURE THE STUDENT COUNCIL

Bledsoe, Kennett, and McPherson Support Council's Wholesale Expulsive Measure.

In an executive meeting held Tuesday night the Di Senate elected officers for the spring quarter and wound up the evening by tabling a resolution condemning the "recent drastic action by the student council." The tabling of the resolution, which had been introduced by Senator Milne, was in the nature of a defeat of the measure.

All officers for the spring quarter were elected with the exception of the speaker, Byron Glenn, who was elected some time ago. The following men were elected: Bill Neal, Speaker pro-tem; Judah Shoham, Clerk; Harry Weatherly, Assistant Treasurer; H. W. McGalliard, Sergeant-at-Arms.

After the formalities of the election were over, Senator Milne introduced the following measure, Resolved, that he Dialectic Senate go on record as disapproving the recent drastic action of the Student Council. In introducing his measure, Senator Milne commented that it would be rather hard to discuss it because the facts were scarcely known by the campus at large. He noted that "a student councilman had slipped out on us," referring to Senator Van Core, who took part in a (Continued on page four)

BETA BASKETEERS WIN FROM GRIMES

Greek Letter Men Cap the Campus Championship by 17-16 Score.

The Betas, winners of the fraternity intramural championship in a nip and tuck game at the Tin Can Monday night which ended with the close score of 17 to 16. This game rung down the curtain on the 1927 intramural basketball season.

The intramural basketball season has been the best in the history of this form of athletics at the University, it is said. Officials state that more interest has been taken in the cage game this year than ever before and some promising material for the varsity quint has been developed.

The Beta aggregation has been awarded a beautiful silver loving cup for their victory over the Grimes team Monday night. Raper, Cook, and Zimmerman were outstanding on the dormitory team and Watt, Cameron, and Bowers played a stellar game for the Betas.
