

RADICAL STUDENT EDITORS SHIPPED

Georgia and Oklahoma Publications Suppressed Because of Conflict with College Policies.

After the Carolina Magazine rake-over and the affair of the Faun on our own campus several other college papers and student publications have had to come under the surveillance of the proper authorities and drastic steps have been taken to render collegiate criticism less radical as it is published, and to cause the students to become more conservative in their viewpoints.

At the University of Georgia five editors of the Iconoclast were expelled for attacks upon the Chancellor and the Prudential Committee. However, the expelled students were given a chance to apologize, which they did, and they were reinstated. They amended their apology by showing that they apologized for any "language considered disrespectful," but declined to disown any principles upheld by the magazine. The Iconoclast was on the same style as our journal of criticism, the Faun, but it did not live as long. Georgia's campus seems to be less liberal than Carolina's, because the authorities were steady in their demands that the magazine be discontinued.

At the Oklahoma Baptist University three professors were discharged for teaching evolution and the Bison, student publication, printed resolutions asking that the professors be taken back. The magazine was immediately suppressed even though a mass-meeting of the students was held protesting against the dismissal.

PROSPECTIVE TEACHERS SHOULD REGISTER NOW

Those who are desiring positions as teachers for the year 1927-'28 and wishing the service of the Teacher's Bureau in securing these positions should register with the Bureau at No. 2 Peabody at once.

The Bureau is anxious to be of service to as many as possible in securing positions as teachers. All applications for teachers come to the Bureau which keep it in direct contact with all vacancies in the State.

The bureau already has calls from both the larger and smaller school systems of the State. The better positions are usually secured early in the spring.

Those who have not made other plans and are desirous of the services of the Bureau in securing a teaching position for the coming school-year should register at once.

X-RAY COURSE HELD FOR MED STUDENTS

Classes in practical x-ray work for medical students are now being offered by Mr. G. C. Hughes and Dr. Stuhlman. These classes meet in the Infirmary, and are attended primarily by pre-med students of the University.

The students use the x-ray machine freely, taking and developing the pictures themselves. Mr. Hughes and Dr. Stuhlman merely supervise the work, aiding in the actual labor only when necessary.

Two roentgenologists, who were here recently, examined some of the efforts of the classes and pronounced their work excellent. The machine which is used in this work was installed in the infirmary about three years ago, and has proved to be of much benefit to students interested in this type of work.

SPRING PLAYS TO BE GIVEN IN MAY

"Ghin's Romance," "Quare Medicine," and "His First," Are Chosen for Presentation.

On May the fifth and sixth the Carolina Playmakers will give their last bill of original plays during this school year. The casts have been completed and rehearsals are well under way.

The Marvelous Romance of Wen Chun Chin, by Chan Chin Hsiung, is a delightful fantasy of a Chinese girl who dresses as a boy so that she might get a degree from the University, and the dangers and experiences that fall her lot. The part of Wen Chun Chin is played by Marille Shaw; the Mother by Josephine Sharkey; the Heiress by Eral Thompson; Tu San and Wei Ta, two students and lovers of Wen Chun Chin, by Laurence Wallace and Sheppard Strudwick; the Innkeeper by R. G. Walser; the Old Man by Glenn Ireton; the Evil One by J. Z. Hanner; and the Property Man by Bill Atlee.

Quare Medicine, by Paul Green, is a comedy of village life and a henpecked husband who turns and becomes the master of the household with the aid of Quare Medicine. Old Man Jernigan is played by D. W. Currie; Henry Jernigan, his son, by Laurence Wallace; Mattie, Henry's wife, by Eral Thompson; and Dr. Emanuel by J. Z. Hanner.

His First, by Bill Perry, is a satirical burlesque of a boy writing his initial play which turns out to be another of those "real tragedies of the soil." Playing the part of Bill, the youthful and sincere playwright, is Bill Perry; B, his hardboiled roommate, by A. D. Austin; Ma, that poor old soul who succumbs at last, by Anita Darling; Pa, the gentleman who spits, by J. Z. Hanner; the Hero, who is very much suppressed, by John Harding; and the Heroine, who is slaving her life away in yon mountains, by Mary Margaret Wray.

Miss Elizabeth McPherson, a former university student, now teaching at Martha Washington College at Abingdon, Virginia, and Miss Alice Whitfield of Demopolis, Alabama, were guests of Misses Mary and Lucy Cobb.

LOST

Gorgon's Head pin with initials J. B. G. on back. If found please return to Bryan Grimes at Pettigrew 4.

Will the student who was riding in the U-Drive-It car which collided with the Ford roadster between Chapel Hill and Durham on the morning of April fifth, kindly communicate with William Bane of Atwood and Nash's office, Alumni Building. There will be no responsibility on your part, as we just want to get the circumstantial evidence. This will be greatly appreciated.

Dr. Clark Weds

Dr. R. R. Clark, prominent young dentist of Chapel Hill, responded to the call of Dan Cupid during the Easter holidays when he journeyed to Baltimore to wed Miss Ann Mills, a resident of that city, and a prominent young society belle. Accompanying Mr. Clark on Cupid's conquest were Messrs. Paul Eubanks and Henry McDonald both of Chapel Hill.

When Dr. Clark returned to the Hill he found the following notice posted on his door, according to his friends in Chapel Hill:

Dear Friends: Have gone off to marry Ann. Will work on your teeth when I return if I can. Doc.

Tar Heels Take 4 Out of 5 Games on Easter Weekend land, Ellison and Thomas held the Davidsons to two measly blows while the Tar Heels were reaping 13 and enough to win, 6-1.

Monday's game was played in Salisbury and the next day the boys journeyed down to the "Bull City," and as one of the players said, "made Duke a present of a game." One hectic inning—the fifth—saw everything that was baseball and a number of things that were not. A wild pitch, two stolen bases, a passed ball, two errors, and two fielder's choices were the Tar Heels' contributions, while Duke's were six hits. The result was seven runs, and Carolina lost a game, 8-7, which she was formerly leading by a four run margin.

The next day "Lefty" Westmoreland squared up though when he held the Methodists to five scattered bingles in the game in Fayetteville while his teammates were extracting sixteen off Leight, Duke southpaw, the final score being 10-1.

Ed Mackie's triple climaxed a ninth inning rally in Thursday's game and gave the Carolinians a 4-3 margin of victory over Wake Forest. Ellison gave up nine hits to Joyner's seven, but the Tar Heels accorded him better support than the Deacons gave Joyner.

Friday's game with Guilford in Greensboro was rained out, and the next day the Tar Heels concluded their trip with a hectic victory over the Virginia Cavaliers at Charlottesville. Westmoreland's support faltered in the ninth and two errors together with a double and a single gave the Cavaliers four runs and knotted the count.

The Carolinians pulled the game out of the fire the next inning when Atkinson, Virginia relief hurler, walked Cox, and Tom Young and Ed Mackie clouted out hits, the score being 10-7.

Not to be read 'til 1950

"IN this year of 1950," said the celebrated engineer in his Commencement address, "the electrical communication industry is just entering upon its vigorous prime.

"As the nineteenth century was termed the Age of Power, so may this period be well called the Age of Communication—so fully have communication ways and means been developed.

"It was a 1927 marvel to talk between New York and London, but now we may talk to any point on the globe, and to and from moving points at will. And of course we all know what has been achieved in projecting pictures from a distance.

"This great and growing field of communication, far from completed, is opening up constantly greater opportunity, not only for technically trained men but also for men in various commercial and professional activities—the men who in increasing numbers will always be needed to sell and administer the services which the engineers create."
