Speculation Rife as Hour of Fleece Tapping Approaches

NEW POSSIBILITIES

Prometheus Adds More Names to the List of Election Possibilities.

CAM. MORRISON TO SPEAK

Ex-Governor of North Carolina Will Be the Principal Speaker Tonight.

(By Prometheus)

Tonight will see the hopes and expectations of some of our campus celebrities realized; tonight will see the aspirations of a few men crushed into the dust, not from an over-sight or lack of ability but because the Fleece wills it, for they choose each year the men whom they think have been more prominent in their respective fields of endeavor than others—"for many are called and few are chosen." Probably the largest crowd that has ever attended a Golden Fleece tapping will be present tonight at Memorial Hall to see the hooded figures select those whom the Fleece deems worthy of this signal honor.

Tonight at 8:30 o'clock in Memorial Hall, President Chase will introduce the Hon. Cameron Morrison, ex-governor of North Carolina and principal speaker of the occasion. Mr. Morrison's talk, the subject of which has not been announced, will be followed by a brief account of the history and purpose of the Golden Fleece. After this will come the tapping. President Chase will entertain the ex-governor during his sojourn in Chapel Hill. Other than the above, no statements regarding the procedure of the Golden Fleece tapping have been released.

The list of "certainties" and "possibilities" published in Saturday's Tar Heel has caused an endless amount of discussion. For the major part, the campus seems to react favorably to the list and only here and there are the virtues of some friend extolled and deviation from the already published list made.

PULITZER PRIZE IS WON BY GREEN

"In Abraham's Bosom" Wins National Honors for Philosophy Professor.

"In Abraham's Bosom" has won for Paul Green the Pulitzer prize of $1,000 for the best play of the year by an American playwright. This news reached Chapel Hill by telegram yesterday. Mr. Green had been informed of his good fortune the day before, but with a strict injunction of secrecy. The metropolitan newspapers are carrying the story today, and two or three of them telegraphed their correspondents in Chapel Hill yesterday to wire in a sketch of Mr. Green.

Frederick H. Koch said last night that he understood the judges who made the award were Augustus Thomas, Walter Pritchard Eaton, and Clayton Hamilton.

Mr. Green, is now 33 years old. He was born and bred in

In Quare Medicine

D. W. Currie plays the role of Old Man Jerrigan in Paul Green's Quare Medicine, which will be presented at the Playmaker Theatre Thursday and Friday, and according to reports, gives to the part a finished conception rarely seen here.

PLAYMAKER BILL OFFERS COMEDY

Three Original Plays to Be Presented Here Thursday and Friday Nights.

Three original one-act plays will be presented at 8:30 o'clock Thursday and Friday evenings at the Playmaker Theatre, as the Playmaker bill for the spring quarter. The plays to be given are Quare Medicine, a comedy, by Paul Green; The Marvelous Romance of Wen Chun Chin, a romantic comedy, by Ching Chin Hsuing, and Mr. Perry Writes a Play, a burlesque on folk-play writing, by Bill Perry. The bill is light and amusing and should prove to be thoroughly enjoyable. Seats will be on sale at Sutton & Alderman Tuesday and Wednesday. Those holding season tickets will be able to exchange them for reserved seats.

Quare Medicine is the old story of the shewish wife, who makes life miserable not only for her husband, but for her old father-in-law as well; of the quack patent medicine man who is able to cure all ills, the character drawn from a loud mouthed old fellow who used to sell his wares before the courthouse door in Lillington during the sessions of the court. The old quack makes good and for once the colored water which he terms medicine does its work and the shrew is tamed in the end. The parts are played by Eral Thompson, Dwight Currie, J. Z. Hanner, and Hubert Heffner.

The Marvelous Romance of Wen Chun Chin is based on a folk tale of old China. The incidents are well known. Wen is the heroine in the Thirty Fourth Tale in The Ancient and Modern Strange Stories by Hsioa Fa. The serpent-in-the-cup illustration has so frequently occurred in Chinese literature that it has become the acknowledged term for popular conception. A love tale as a matter of fact should, in spite of all adversities and complications, end in a perfect way, for it is ever the rule that beauty should always be wedded to genius as the ying (female) is always united with yang (male) in the monastic universe. Mr. Hsuing has a charming sense of humor and writes with naive imagination. Parts are played by Marille Shaw, Josephine Sharkey, Eral Thompson, Lorraine Wallace, Sheppard Strud-

The entire equipment of the Engineering School of the University will be put in operation for the general exhibit and "open house" entertainment given by the students of civil, electrical, and mechanical engineering in Phillips Hall tomorrow night from 8 to 10 o'clock.

The purpose of this Open House as will be inaugurated at Carolina tomorrow night by the Engineering School will be to put before the University students, faculty, and any others who may be interested, some facts and points which should be of general interest. UPCHURCH SAYS LEADERS NEEDED

Law Student Tells N. C. Club that Money May Purchase Justice.

"Personally I believe that most lawyers place property before human rights," Frank C. Upchurch, a student in the Law School, asserted before the North Carolina Club last night. "Many men in the profession never consider the justice of a case if they are well paid to be unjust." Mr. Upchurch's subject was "The Lawyer's Place in a Democratic State."

Last night's meeting marked the last time that the club will convocate this year. Members of the organization declared last night that the addresses at the regularly fortnightly meetings this year have been very good.

Horror of Lawyers

"Perhaps from the beginning of law people have had a horror of lawyers," Mr. Upchurch stated. "R. E. L. Saner says in a recent article in the American Bar Association Journal 'The schools of America must save America. The future of our country is being determined today in the schoolrooms and college halls of America. Any movement, therefore, that tends to promote the right sort of teaching is of prime importance at this time'. What we need and all countries need is leaders, those who are educated, who know and understand the situations to be faced, and who have the ability to apply well-balanced remedy to the new situations. We need not expect to accomplish the results that we would like to unless we have such leaders capable of grasping new ideas that arise and apply them in their lives and leadership."

"Probably no profession today yields as much influence as do lawyers. Lawyers represent us in Congress, Legislatures and in many other ways. Do they have a clear knowledge of problems arising other than those in their own profession? They have knowledge of the just and the unjust, but many neglect the just in order to align themselves with certain parties for personal accomplishments, not stopping to think of the influence they might have in promoting a more democratic government."

Girls Will Cheer Heroes To Victory In Greensboro Meet

Hoyt Pritchett

Hoyt Pritchett, from whom Carolina will expect stellar performance in the two mile event of the state intercollegiate track meet. The meet will be held in Greensboro, in which city Pritchett lives. He has bettered the Southern record several times for his event.

TAR HEELS PLAY VIRGINIANS TODAY

Meet V. P. I. Before Beginning Annual Southern Tour; Face Heavy Week.

Fresh from a three-day rest over the week-end, the Tar Heel baseball team will begin perhaps the hardest week of its schedule this afternoon when it meets the strong V. P. I. nine on Emerson Field at four o'clock.

Immediately following the game with the Virginians, the Tar Heels will leave on their annual southern trip, on which they will meet Georgia Tech in Atlanta for a brace of games Wednesday and Thursday and the University of Georgia Bulldogs in Athens on Friday and Saturday.

That makes an even five games in as many days against three of the strongest teams in the conference. The games with the Techmen and the Bulldogs will undoubtedly have a great deal to do with the rating which the Tar Heels get in the conference this year, and Coach Ashmore is pointing strongly toward victory in these contests.

"Red" Ellison is slated for mound duty today, although there is a possibility that the Tar Heel mentor may throw one of his substitute moundsmen into action and save "Red" for Wednesday's game with Tech. The Georgia games are more important and Coach may save Ellison along with Westmoreland for the first two.

The remainder of the lineup will probably be the same as that used in the Davidson game.

Dean Carroll leaves Tuesday night for Harvard University, where he will attend the ninth annual meeting of the American Association of Collegiate Schools of Business. The meeting will be in session on May 5, 6, and 7.

Mrs. I. F. Lee and the members of the Woman's Association were guests of Mrs. Stacy at a six o'clock dinner last Saturday evening.

CAROLINA DOPED TO WIN

Coach Fetzter Primes Stars to Win Sixth Consecutive State Title.

The annual state intercollegiate track meet will be held in Memorial Stadium at Greensboro next Friday and Saturday, while 2000 college girls cheer their heroes to victory and the Tar Heel track team is doped to win its sixth consecutive state championship. This is the first of the meets to be held in Greensboro and will be the climax socially as well as athletically of state cinderpath activities for this year. For the last five years the Tar Heel men have won out easily over all "Big Five" opposition, but this year both Duke and State are showing considerable strength and Davidson has some individual stars that are expected to lower a few records.

Duke was defeated by a single point in the opening meet of the season, and State gave the Tar Heels plenty of opposition in the dual meet in Raleigh Friday afternoon.

Although the Tar Heels have had a very successful season on basis of meets won and lost, they have not shown the overwhelming victories that last year's state and southern champions left in their wake. The average margin of victory this spring has been only by a scant five points. It is true that several outstanding teams have been taken in tow by the Tar Heels, such as Virginia, Georgia Tech, Georgia, Duke, V. P. I. and State but in the meet Friday and Saturday they will have to cope with outstanding individual stars on the teams they have not met.

Coach Bob Fetzter plans to spend every moment between now and Friday in priming his stars for the meet. He is pinning his faith and hopes of a sixth championship on a number of veterans, such as Captain McPherson, Elliott, Pritchett,

FIVE DANCES FOR COMING WEEK-END

No less than five dances are scheduled for the coming week-end.

The Theta Phi fraternity will be the host at a house party and a dance in Chapel Hill, Friday evening, May the sixth, and the Raleigh Alumni chapter of Sigma Nu is to give a dance in honor of the State and Carolina chapters, at the Sir Walter Hotel in Raleigh on the same night. The State chapter will give a house party for the latter occasion, and Kike Kyser and His Orchestra are to play for the hop.

The Carolina members of the Sigma Phi Sigma fraternity will supplement these shags with a dance at the Carolina Inn on Saturday evening. There will also be two private affairs during the week-end.
