PARAGRAPHS

As hard as getting the right telephone number in Chapel Hill should be added to the Difficulties of 1927.

The Davidson College Suicide Club is the victim of homicide at the hands of the faculty of that institution.

Just when we thought the matter of the dean of the law school had been settled it has been announced that Dr. Green, elected sometime ago, has decided to remain at Yale. Now the matter of finding a law school dean must be done all over again.

By making it three successive wins and the second victory over Duke today, the Tar Heels will become champs of the state. Go after 'em Carolina!

Now we find the pessimist of the year: the editor of the Georgia Red and Black complains that there has been too many holidays at that University this year.

Dispatch says that a Greensboro man has lost 10 bottles of rare wines and liquor of the Pre Volsteadian era. No mention was made of the Carolina-Virginia game in the Gate City Saturday.

N. C. State, endeavoring to be law abiding especially in the matter of the sanitary statute, gives its frosh an annual bath with three fire hose.

AS TO CREDIT FOR BUSINESS MANAGERS

Elsewhere in these columns a communication appears that raises the question of giving degree credit for work done as business manager of one of the four student publications. The author of the letter points out that no credit is now being given those students "for their year's work on the publications, whereas a course credit is given to the editor-in-chief of the TAR HEEL every year."

Without questioning the logic of his argument and position, the TAR HEEL would like to correct a part of the statement at the outset. Degree credit is given reporters and editors of this paper, the number of hours given being at the discretion of the professor of journalism. Such credit is awarded according to the quality and quantity of work done by the reporters and editors.

"Surely a business manager, who successfully runs the financial end of a publication, should receive the same consideration as the editor and ought to have a credit for his work in the Commerce School," reason E. C. P. in his letter. And so he should. In the past when business managers were looked upon as high financiers who "mopped up" in the handling of the finances of the various publications, they weren't taken into much consideration when it came to other emoluments. As one former editor was won't to put it, "The editors and reporters of the TAR HEEL get the honor, hard work and a little credit while the business manager gets the pocket full of shekels." All of which, in the case of the business manager, is a thing of the past. The salary of the business managers of the various publications at the present does not warrant the practice of giving him a part of his earning and nothing more.

It may be injected here that the TAR HEEL has no intention to tell the school of commerce, or any other school in the University for that matter, how to award degree credit or to lay out instructions for its successful administration. However, in view of the fact that the interest of the various publications requires that each has the best possible heads of the editorial and business departments, it is the duty of the TAR HEEL to do what it can to forward such interests.

As for the matter of training, it has been often stated by a prominent member of the faculty that a managership of the finances of one of the publications is one of the best laboratory courses a student of business may take. Since time is often taken from classes and other work, and as the business managership of a publication offers excellent training for a career in the commercial world, the TAR HEEL heartily approves of the plea of the letter of E. C. P. in that business managers should be awarded degree credit for their work.

FROSH MAKE IT TWO FROM WAKE

Easily Defeat Baby Deacons Tuesday in Loose Errorful Game; Stand Second in State.

The Carolina freshman nine gained their second victory over the Wake Forest yearlings this year when the latter bowed to an 8 to 3 count Tuesday afternoon on Gore Field. The game was rather loosely played, the little Deacons committing 11 errors, and the Tar Heels accounting for only four. Stewart held the losers to four hits while his mates pounded Meander and Hightower for 15 bingles.

If the Tar Babies are able to take their return game with the State College Wolflets, scheduled for Emerson field tomorrow afternoon, they will be able to finish up the season as the second best frosh team in the state.

OPEN FORUM

PLEA FOR BUSINESS STAFF

Editor of TAR HEEL:

In view of the fact that the University has a high rated Commerce School which is based on the principles of preparing college men, who are interested in a business career, for the future; and the fact that there is present on the campus a highly organized Publications Union which entails the financial handling of the various publications by Business Managers—this letter is written.

At present, no school credit is given to the business managers for their year's work on the publications, whereas a course credit is given to the editor-in-chief of the TAR HEEL every year. Surely a business manager, who successfully runs the financial end of a publication, should receive the same consideration as the editor and ought to have a credit for his work in the Commerce School. It is undeniably deserved.

T. N. T. FOR DINAMITERS

Editor of the TAR HEEL:

Thunder doth peal; the earth doth quake; the Alumni do cover in remorse. Around the venerated well do we hear rumblings of a society of thinkers, namely the Dinamite Senate.

Truly, what will become of fraternities and athletics if students evince a spirit of free-thinking? What if money will no longer be spent on the honored object of hero-worship? It might possibly be spent on our farcial library where half-wits peruse the works of other half-wits. Indeed the Alumni should pass a prohibitory measure against such evoluting from the rah-rah spirit to interest in humanism.

Then too, there may appear portents of an altered purpose among intellectuals. They may no longer have as their ambition the becoming of the foremost kneekers and boozers in one of the women chaser clubs, where the only requirement for entrance is a strong purse and a weak mind.

The dirge of teaching methods may be sung. How horrible is the thought of students having a desire for learning anything but facts and how to cram for examinations. The faculty will have to grope for a method with which to combat the wave of thought; they could not countenance the rise of students to an intellectual par with themselves. To think of a student wasting time on a book not prescribed by his instructor!

We must consider the disaster which will befall the Pick. This center of student activities will be supplanted by cultural pursuits. Awful!

Strength to the Dinamite Senate!

SHELTON C. DRY.

Coxe Does Casey Trick to Beat Wake in Tenth

but it got away, and by the time he had gotten it back to the infield, Tommy was crossing home plate. It was a fit ending for a great game.

Ed Mackie also bagged a four base clout, his drive into center coming in the sixth and accounting for the second of the Tar Heels' scores. The first was chalked up in the first when Satterfield walked, took third when Young was safe on Clayton's error, and scored as Mackie was forcing young into third.

The whole Tar Heel team played jam-up ball which sometimes bordered on the spectacular. Satterfield pulled a nice play in the fourth inning when he raced back behind second to take in Holt's hard grounder and throw him out on a perfect peg at first. In the sixth Tom Young stretched off first base over eight feet to take Havner's peg of Riley's drive off Westmoreland's glove for an out. The ball was too hot for Westmoreland to handle and when Havner scooped it up on the run his peg was about eight feet off. Tom reached as far as he could, but when he got it, he was off his balance and fell headlong in the dirt, still touching the bag however.

Eddie Burt came in for his share of the fielding honors in the ninth when he ran back of second and took K. Joyner's grounder with his bare hand. His peg should have retired the man, it looked like from the stands, but Umpire Henderson ruled otherwise, and Joyner was credited with an infield hit.

Yesterday, was Westmoreland's second victory of the season over the Deacons, he having shut them out last week at Wake Forest, 3-0. He gave up ten hits yesterday, but five of them were infield taps, and all well scattered save in the ninth and tenth. The Tar Heels collected but seven blows off K. Joyner, but two of them were homeruns.

Havner led the Tar Heels at-tack at bat with two hits out of as many tries, with Coxe a close second with a homer and a single out of four trips to the plate. Holt for Wake Forest got three infield hits out of five trips to the plate to lead the Deacon attack.
