SEEPINGS

BY ANDY ANDERSON

If each girl in summer school were asked to go to a dance, not one would refuse.

We don't see how Polly is doing any business at all. We thought that every one learning to dance was doing it at the Gym.

When later classes are caught, co-eds will catch 'em.

Meaning, perhaps, that if there were no eight o'clock classes, everybody would be just as late on nine o'clock ones.

We have it on good authority that if all the cigarets that have been smoked by the gals here were laid end to end, there wouldn't be enough left to measure.

If Lindbergh were placed along side of one or two of the damsels that we know here, he would be about as noticeable as a yellow slicker on a rainy day.

Somebody got energetic the other day and started gathering statistics. He says that if all the beverages consumed by the summer-time students in attempted sophistication were poured in the gutter, 3,000 revenue officers would stay drunk for a month.

If every boy on the campus that claims to have had a good date had really one, there would be approximately 60 male liars on the campus.

There are some things that we can't stand and one of 'em's sitting down all day on class. (we apologize).

Some like 'em hot, some like 'em cold—But I'll not have a date that's three days old.

We seldom see a jassack but we saw one the other day. He is taking four courses this summer.

Was at Sapprow's pool the other day and saw a lot of 'sparrows' that didn't even have their pin feathers yet and they were trying to fly. None of them got very high though.

I heard one say that he had a quart. He was luckier than I. When I dove in, I swallowed over a half-gallon.

A dollar, a dollar, a ten o'clock scholar,
What makes you come so slow?
"Pleeth, thir, the twaffic lights in town
Got thtuck on 'thtop,' you know."

We know of a worthy gentleman who recently went to The Big City to look for a job. He reports that of eleven men that he asked for work, not one asked if he was a college graduate. Our friends volunteered the information to the twelfth man and learned that he could have the job but that being a college graduate would not be held against him—a faint ray of sunshine has penetrated our once darkened soul.

And speaking of getting a job, we know a bird that got his sheep skin last month and we hope to take English 67 if he didn't go right out and get a job tending goats. The rancher know that the dear old graduate would feel at home.

DANCERS PLEASE LARGE AUDIENCE

Emma Pohl's Troupe Gives First of Summer Attractions—
Review Lauds Group.

The Emma Pohl Dancers, under the leadership of an ingenious and highly qualified dance instructor and composer, gave a program Friday night which immediately demanded widespread approval for the initial performance of the summer school attractions. Though amateurs, the group of 16 girls showed professional merit and thorough training.

The dances of Miss Ruth Shaw were the high spots of the show. With her vivaciousness of manner and Denishawn grace she dances the Espana in its truly Spanish air. Other features were the dances of Misses Austin, Loeb, and McGrath. Miss Campbell as the Swallow in the Happy Prince gave a fascinating interpretation of Oscar Wilde's imaginative story.

The series of higher classical dances such as the Liebestraum, Valse des Fleurs, Springtime and Snow Flakes required more than ordinary ability. The interpretations of the dance accompaniments to these themes were Miss Pohl's own. Miss Emmitt Lewis, solo pianist and accompanist played the Valse Brillante of Mana-Zucca and the Music Box of Van de Camp with an accomplished degree of brilliance.

There were some minor defects in the program as a whole, but a dazzling effect was given and at times even resplendent artistic beauty was shown.

GAINES PRESIDENT OF WAKE FOREST

Dr. Francis Pendleton Gaines, head of the department of English at Furman university, Greenville, S. C., was elected president of Wake Forest College Saturday by the board of trustees of the institution meeting at Wake Forest in a special session.

Mr. Gaines succeeds Dr. William Louis Poteat, who for twenty years has occupied the presidency of the state's leading Baptist educational institution.

Dr. Poteat, a year ago requested to be relieved of his duties, when he reached the age of seventy years. The former president retained a connection with the school, however, having contracted to teach biology there next year.

Dr. Poteat delivered the McNair lecture series on the subject, "Can a Man Be a Christian Today?" here in the spring of 1925.
