

PREDICT ONE OF BEST FOOTBALL SEASONS IN THE HISTORY OF U. N. C.

Success of New Coaching Staff Is Expected to be Revealed This Year With a Large Number of Letter Men Returning Plenty of Seasoned Material Is Available.

Last year with three letter men back in the line, no outstanding backfield prospects, and very little in the way of good material coming up from the freshman team, the University of North Carolina coaches built up a team, which, by mid-season, was attracting the attention of football followers throughout the South—and this, in spite of the fact that a new system had been installed.

Reviewing the prospects for the coming season and comparing them with conditions prevailing at the same time last year, even the most pessimistic will grant that things look considerably better for the Tar Heel eleven. Eighteen letter men are among the eligible candidates—eight in the line and ten in the backfield—men who have had at least one year's experience under the new regime. If Collins, Cerney, Fetzer and Ashmore, the University quarterback of raw recruits into a team that ran rough-shod over V. M. I., licked South Carolina, and, after the first two games, gained more ground than any of their opponents, what kind of team will they build with a nucleus of 18 veterans?

All this looks very well on paper, but University officials are not given to pre-season optimism and are keeping quiet on the matter of prospects, leaving the dopesters to figure the situation out as they please from the figures and facts at their disposal.

Practice begins September 5, and reports from University athletes scattered all over the state for the summer indicate that they are keeping in good trim and are anxiously awaiting the chance to settle an old score with Wake Forest, resulting from two successive defeats, when the two teams meet for the first game of the season at Chapel Hill on September 25.

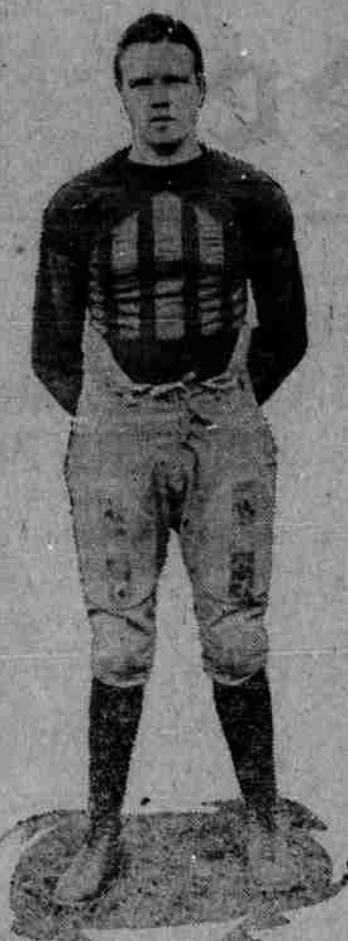

Next on the list comes Tennessee and here is where the optimism begins to dim. Tennessee, which last year overwhelmed the Tar Heels and rated with the best teams in the South, promises to offer plenty of opposition with Elmore, Dodson, Young and Barnhill in the backfield. Only Captain Harkness, quarterback and Jones, end, were lost to the team. And so, down the line, every opponent is boasting bright prospects and looking forward to a successful season.

Tennessee will be met at Chapel Hill October 1. Other games to be played on the "Hill" will be against Maryland, October 8, Davidson, November 12, and Virginia, November 24. South Carolina will be met at Columbia, October 15, Georgia Tech in Atlanta, October 29, N. C. State at Raleigh, October 29, V. M. I. at Richmond or Lexington, November 5, and Duke at Durham, November 19.

Bishop Cheshire's Books

When Bishop Cheshire was here Saturday he told of a collection of books, published in Revolutionary days, which L. R. Wilson had obtained from him for the University library. Some of them are exceedingly rare. Librarians at Harvard and other institutions sought to get them.

CAPTAIN!

Garrett Morehead of Charlotte, who is captain of the football team for the coming season is the third in line of descent to play football for the University. He is only 21 years old and is probably the youngest captain in the Southern Conference group. He will play left tackle, the position he has held for the past two years. Last season he was mentioned for All-Southern and will be watched closely by sport writers this fall.

Wedding Reveals an Institute Romance

J. J. Rhyne and Miss Clyde Russell Married Here Tuesday

A young man and a young woman came to the University two or three years ago to pursue advanced studies in sociology. They were welcomed by Mr. Odum and the other members of the faculty, and it happened that they were assigned to desks near to one another in the Institute for Research in Social Science. It also happened that they took their meals at the same boarding house, Mrs. Lawson's on Pittsboro street.

After a while it was remarked that they were taking long walks together. And so—

J. J. Rhyne, Ph. D., University of North Carolina, 1927, and Miss Clyde Russell, M. A., University of North Carolina 1926, were married in the Episcopal church Tuesday morning by Rev. Alfred S. Lawrence. The ceremony was performed in the chancel, and the 20-odd persons who attended sat in the choir stalls. F. P. Brooks was the organist.

Immediately after the ceremony the couple left for western North Carolina by automobile. Mr. Rhyne is to be assistant professor of sociology in the University of Oklahoma next year.

THE CAROLINA PLAYMAKERS HAVE RECEIVED NATIONAL RECOGNITION

Dramatic Organization Formed and Directed By Frederick Koch Has Revived Interest in Folk Plays in North Carolina—Its Aims Are Three-Fold.

Since the Carolina Playmakers were organized by Professor Frederick Koch in 1918, the organization has won national fame and caused a revival of interest in folkplays in North Carolina.

Coming from the University of North Dakota the year the World War ended, Professor Koch has set a record in play production and established an enviable reputation for himself and the University of North Carolina. While at Dakota he founded the Dakota Playmakers at the University of North Dakota, where he had done pioneer work since 1905—long before the beginnings of the Little Theatre movement. Believing that "the locality if it be truly interpreted, is the only universal," Professor Koch has developed the writing of native plays in America as the Abbey Theatre group has done in Ireland. Of the two volumes of Carolina Folk-Plays published by Henry Holt and Company, Augustus Thomas writes, "I have read them and I consider them full equal to any of the Irish folk-lore plays produced by the Abbey company under Lady Gregory's direction." And the folk-dramas of Dakota and of Carolina have made a definite impress on the professional theatre. "No one can doubt," writes Arthur Hobson Quinn, "that the success of the Carolina Playmakers has turned the attention of the playwrights (of Broadway) to this field."

Anyone who is interested in writing, producing or acting in plays may become a Playmaker. The group includes students, members of the faculty from all departments of the University. Professor Koch is interested not only in the creation of a North Carolina drama but welcomes students from other sections of the country to write plays of their locality, based upon their own observation and experience.

The stated aims of the Playmakers are: (1) To promote and encourage dramatic art, especially by the publication and production of plays; (2) to serve as an experimental theatre for the development of plays representing the traditions and the various phases of present-day life of the people; (3) to extend its influences in the establishment of a native theatre in other communities.

If you asked William Collier which cigarette he prefers, he'd say to you:

William Collier, veteran actor and favorite comedian

"It was a happy day for me when I became acquainted with Lucky Strikes, for I enjoy smoking but must be careful. I find Lucky Strikes never offend my throat in the slightest."

William Collier

You, too, will find that Lucky Strikes are mild and mellow—the finest cigarettes you ever smoked, made of the finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos, properly aged and blended with great skill, and there is an extra process—"It's toasted"—no harshness, not a bit of bite.
