

CAROLINA vs. MARYLAND
3:00 P. M.
EMERSON FIELD TODAY

The Tar Heel

WILL DURANT LECTURE
8:30 P. M.
GERRARD HALL MONDAY

VOLUME XXXVI

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., SATURDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1927

NUMBER 7

Tar Baby Eleven Battles Duke Freshman Team to 6-6 Tie in Opening Game Here Yesterday

Carolina Frosh Score in Fourth Quarter to Knot Count—Nash and Nelson Gain Most Ground for Carolina Freshmen, While Bruske and Murray Show Up Well for Visitors.

A concerted attack in the last quarter turned what appeared and easy victory for the Duke Blue Imps into a 6-6 score yesterday afternoon as the Tar Baby eleven went on Emerson Field for the first time under Carolina colors. The Duke Frosh scored early in the game, but the Tar Babies, led by Nelson and Nash, staged a come-back in the final period to knot the score and save the yearlings from defeat.

Save at times in the third and fourth quarters, the Carolina yearlings displayed a weak offense and a disastrous habit of fumbling the ball. In the overhead game the Blue Imps were far superior to the Tar Babies. The Staton and Bruske combination proved a thorn in the side of the Carolina backs.

Nash and Nelson seemed to be the best ground-gainers for the Tar Heels, especially Nash who clipped off several twenty and twenty-five yard runs. The line on the whole seemed to play a nice brand of defensive ball but was woefully weak on the offense. For the visitors Bruske was the most outstanding player, both in the catching passes and in defensive work. Murray as a plunging fullback was very effective.

The Methodists drew first blood by scoring in the last few minutes of the first half. A penalty gave them a first down in the danger zone and a few moments later Bruske snatched down a long pass for the first score. Duke missed the kick for the point.

In the early part of the third quarter the Tar Babies made a rather serious threat but lost the ball on downs. Duke punted and Sher, who had replaced Wyrick at quarter, started the drive by running it back several yards. Nash and Nelson crashed the Blue Imp line until Nash went over for a goal. They failed in the try for the extra point.

The Carolina men threatened again when in the last quarter, with but
(Continued on page three)

Out with Injuries

In his second year at varsity guard, "Bud" Shuler has been helping to make the Carolina line one of the strongest in the South. He showed up well in the Wake Forest game, but was out with a wrenched ankle last Saturday. It is thought probable that he will break back into the line-up today.

Class Attendance To Remain Optional for Juniors and Seniors

Optional class attendance for juniors and seniors remains in force this year, declared Dean Addison Hibbard of the College of Liberal Arts, when interviewed yesterday. The student body has acquitted itself so well in the experiment conducted last spring when the optional attendance system was inaugurated that it has been decided to continue the program this fall.

Should a junior or senior be taking a sophomore course, however, he will be required to catch those classes, as he is only excused from junior and senior courses. Sophomores will not be excused from junior and senior classes.

BOXING CLASSES START TUESDAY

Training Schedule for New and Old Men Gets Underway Tuesday in Tin Can.

Classes in boxing, intended mainly for the more inexperienced men, will begin next Tuesday afternoon from four to six in the Tin Can. Coach Creighton Rowe states that although the regular season does not start until after Thanksgiving it is important that all men who intend going out for boxing or who wish to learn something about the "manly art of self-defense" be on hand Tuesday.

The period between now and Thanksgiving will be taken up mainly in special exercises and the rudiments of the sport. This is being done so that the men will be ready to go into actual fighting when the season begins.

A definite schedule for meetings is to be arranged during the first class on Tuesday.

University Women To Meet Tuesday

The American Association of University Women will have its first meeting of the fall quarter at four o'clock next Tuesday afternoon in Spencer Hall (the woman's building). All members are urged to attend, and all other college and university graduates among women in the village are invited to join the organization.

WILL DURANT TO GIVE TALK HERE ON MONDAY NIGHT

Noted Philosopher to Present Public Lecture in Gerrard Hall at 8:30 O'clock.

IS PROGRESS A DELUSION?

Hibbard Considers Campus Fortunate in Opportunity To Hear Author of "The Story of Philosophy"—Is Entertaining Lecturer.

An opportunity to hear the greatest philosopher of modern times, according to many critics, will be tendered the students and faculty of the University Monday night when Will Durant speaks in Gerrard Hall at 8:30 o'clock.

Dr. Durant, a lecturer of international repute, will speak on the subject "Is Progress a Delusion?" He will express the opinion advanced in his book "The Story of Philosophy," that there may in reality have been no actual progress made by mankind in the past thousand or so years. He will also present the arguments advanced to prove the reality of progress.

"The Story of Philosophy" created something of a furore in cultural circles when it was published about a year ago. It did much to establish its author's position as one of the leading authorities on philosophical subjects that this country has produced. During the past few weeks another philosophical work by Dr. Durant has received favorable comment from reviewers. It has, however, been in circulation for too short a period of time to forecast what its reception will be.

Dr. Durant is now on a lecture tour of the eastern section of the country, under the direction of Leigh-Emmerich Lecture Bureaus, of New York City. His coming to the University is looked upon by Professor Addison Hibbard, chairman of the faculty committee on lectures, as a stroke of good fortune, as he usually confines his lectures to the larger cities. He has probably spoken to more people than any other lecturer in the country, having delivered addresses to large crowds in most of the larger cities.

Labor Temple School, an organization functioning as an auxiliary of the great Labor Temple maintained by the Presbyterian Church at Fourteenth street and Second avenue, in the heart of New York City, is a direct outgrowth of one of Dr. Durant's lectures. He was formerly a member of the faculty of the Phil
(Continued on page two)

New York Yankees Only a Game From the Championship as They Take Third from Pirates 8 to 1

Herb Pennock Hurls Almost Flawless Ball to Allow Pittsburgh Only One Run.

RUTH GETS A HOME RUN

Meadows, Durham Boy, Driven From Mound in Seventh Inning and Replaced by Cvenros—Students Here Greatly Interested in World's Series.

The New York Yankees narrowed the space between them and the world's baseball championship to one game yesterday afternoon in the Yankee Stadium at New York when they administered an 8 to 1 licking to the Pittsburgh Pirates, according to radio reports of the game.

This was the Hugmen's third straight victory over the Pirate crew, they having sent the Buc down in defeat Wednesday 5 to 4 and Thursday 6 to 2.

Herb Pennock, star Yank southpaw, hurled seven innings of flawless ball but was robbed of a perfect game when Pie Traynor singled to left and Barnhart doubled to right center in the eighth inning scoring Traynor for the Pirates' only tally of the game.

"Spec" Meadows, a Durham, N. C., boy and one of the few bespectacled twirlers that have made good in the major leagues, started on the mound for the Bucs but was forced to retire
(Continued on page four)

Tar Heels Tackle Maryland Today as Next Southern Conference Opponent; Old Liners Have Impressive Opening

PLANS COMPLETE FOR ANNIVERSARY DAY CELEBRATION

University's 134th Birthday To Be Celebrated Tuesday in Memorial Hall.

The complete program for the celebration of University Day next Wednesday, October 12, in commemoration of the institution's 134th birthday, is announced by the committee on public occasions and celebrations.

Preceding the principal address, which is to be delivered by Dr. Frederick M. Hanes, of Winston-Salem an outstanding member of the medical profession, there will be a general gathering around the Old Well in front of the South Building at 10:30 o'clock in the morning.

The University band will give a 15-minute concert, after which the Carolina Cheerios, the University's famous cheering unit, will form a line on either side of Cameron avenue from South Building, to Memorial Hall. The speakers, trustees, faculty, town officers and ministers will then form a procession and march between the two files and into Memorial Hall, where the exercises are to be held. The students will follow. Dr. C. S. Mangum will serve as marshal and C. P. Waddill, cheerleader, will be his assistant.

The exercises will begin at 10:45 o'clock with Dr. James F. Royster, Dean of the Graduate School, presiding. The names of alumni who have died during the year will be read by Dean Addison Hibbard. Integer Vitae will be sung by the University Glee Club. The devotional exercises will be conducted by Rev. W. D. Moss of the Presbyterian Church and Rev. Eugene I. Olive of the Baptist Church.

Dr. Hanes, the speaker, was graduated from the University in 1903 with the degree of A.B. He also holds an A. M. from Harvard and an M.D. from Johns Hopkins. Before going to Winston-Salem in 1912 to begin the practice of internal medicine he was assistant residence physician in Johns Hopkins Hospital, instructor and assistant professor of pathology in Columbia University, and on the staff of the Rockefeller Hospital. He saw service in France during the World War as commander of base hospital 65, which was a North Carolina unit.

BLIND PREACHER DRAWING CROWDS

Dr. Louis B. Warren Conducting Services at Baptist Church for Ten Days.

"My God Is Like My Mother," will be the topic of the morning sermon by Dr. Louis B. Warren of Atlanta at the Chapel Hill Baptist church tomorrow. At the evening service, beginning at seven-thirty, the topic is, "The Cure for Fear."

Dr. Warren, the blind preacher, is attracting large numbers at the special services he is conducting at the local Baptist church. During the coming week services will be held twice daily, one at three o'clock in the afternoon and one at seven-thirty in the evening. No service will be held Saturday night. The series will continue through Sunday, October 16th.

Of interest to the congregation is the preacher's blindness. He lost his sight five years ago, but he was told by specialists twenty years ago that he would ultimately be unable to see. Consequently, he at once began to study the blind man's tricks, and is now able to do a great many things rarely thought possible for the blind. Dr. Warren's memory of Scripture passages is most remarkable. At every service he quotes the entire chapter or section forming the basis of his sermon.

Now at Fullback

In the backfield shake-up this year, Billy Ferrell, pictured above, has been shifted from halfback to fullback. The change seems to have added strength to the Tar Heels, as he is a good line-plunger and his punting has been above the average. He saw service in the Tennessee game last Saturday and is expected to start at full in the game with Maryland on Emerson Field today.

Probable Line-up Today

NORTH CAROLINA
No.	Player
63	McDaniel	Right End
94	Warren	R. Tackle
85	Howard	R. Guard
67	Schwartz	Center
84	Donahoe	L. Guard
86	Morehead	L. Tackle
72	Sapp	Left End
93	Gray	Quarter
69	Young	R. Half
74	Ward	L. Half
61	Ferrell	Fullback
Average weight of line, 185
Average wt. backfield, 162
Average weight team, 176

MARYLAND
No.	Player
76	Young	Right End
60	Adams	R. Tackle
56	Crothers	R. Guard
8	Bafford	Center
51	Wondrack	L. Guard
75	Zulick	L. Tackle
29	Dodson	Left End
36	Kessler	Quarter
17	Snyder	R. Half
16	Thomas	L. Half
52	Lingous	Fullback
Average weight of line, 183
Average wt. backfield, 176
Average weight team, 180

Tree Surgeons Work On Campus Oaks to Eliminate Dangers

To protect students from falling dead limbs, tree surgeons have been trimming trees in the center of the campus since the storm last Monday. These surgeons cut off the decayed limbs and then paint the butts with coal tar paint. This protects and prolongs the life of the tree, besides removing the possibility of danger from falling limbs.

The men at work are L. D. Force, Brandon, Vermont; W. G. Stone, Burlington, Vermont; and R. T. Elliott, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. They work in the North in summer and migrate to the South in winter. The surgeons came here from Charlotte where they were at work on the oaks of St. Peters church.

Their strange tools, such as saws on long staffs, long hack saws, cables for staying limbs, ropes, etc., have attracted the attention of students and passers-by. Their time saving method of swinging from limb to limb by rope instead of climbing has also been noticed.

Odds Are in Favor of Old Liners as They Invade Carolina Lair.

CAROLINA TEAM CRIPPLED

Lipscomb and Whisnant Have Been Out of Practice All the Week, While "Bud" Shuler Is Still Limping.

The Tar Heels take on their second Conference opponent of the season this afternoon when they battle the red-jerseyed eleven from the University of Maryland on Emerson Field at 3:00 o'clock.

Last Saturday the Old Liners opened their own Conference campaign with an impressive win, and today they invade the Carolina lair with the pre-game odds in their favor.

The question bothering the entire crew of Tar Heel backers is whether the big team carrying North State colors can overthrow these odds. It has been done, and can be done again. The history of the series with Maryland shows at least one contest when a Carolina eleven overcame odds that had them defeated three touchdowns before the game began. When the final score was chalked up it read North Carolina 16, Maryland 0.

That was in 1924. The Fetzer brothers carried a crippled team north to meet Curley Byrd's outfit. Six first string backfield men were injured and did not make the trip, among them being Emmett Underwood, "Rabbit" Bonner, Jeff Fordham, "Ox" Shuford, Bunn Hackney and Billy Devin. Carolina's hopes fell below the bottom of the dobe-bucket. Even with these men in the line-up Maryland was doped to be the stronger.

However, the story of the game showed that "Sprat" Cobb, Bob Sides, Tom Young and Hugh Jenkin literally plowed and swam their way to victory. They played an inspired game, and the Old Liners could not stop them. They would not be denied. That was two years ago. Can this year's Tar Heels repeat? They, too, enter the game with a long hospital list. Charlie Lipscomb, giant tackle and guard, is out. "Bud" Shuler, who failed to get into the Tennessee game is still in citizen's togs. Albert Whisnant, brilliant sophomore quarter and the best passer on the team has not practiced this week due to injuries received last Saturday.

With these men out, Coach Collins and his proteges face a team that has piled up 105 points in two games while holding its opponents scoreless. A 79 to 0 win over Washington College opened the Maryland season, and last Saturday the South Carolina Gamecocks fell 26 to 0. Only one thing Tar Heel supporters know, and that is the Carolina team will fight to the last.

TICKET COSTS $2 TO VIRGINIA GAME

Uniform Charge Will Be Made for All Seats in the Stadium.

The University Athletic Council, composed of faculty members, alumni, and students, has decided upon $2 as the price for a ticket to the Virginia-Carolina football game on Thanksgiving Day. This is the same charge that was made for the match two years ago.

All seats in the Kenan stadium—regardless of whether they are opposite the middle of the field or off at the ends—are offered at the same price. The design of the stands is such that there are no bad seats; a good view of the match is obtainable from anywhere on the concrete. But of course the midfield seats will be most in demand, and these will be allotted to the earliest applicants.

Order blanks are now in process of being mailed out to alumni from the office of Charles T. Woollen, graduate manager of athletics. Each of these, when returned, must be accompanied by check or money order.

An alumnus who lives in Chapel Hill showed to a friend yesterday
(Continued on page three)

SCHOOL OF FINE ARTS PROBABLE

Basic Courses This Year as Archaeology and Hellenic Art Appear on Calendar.

Basic courses have been instituted at the University this fall for what eventually is expected to be a School of Fine Arts.

The courses are in archaeology and Hellenic art and will be given one during each quarter of the winter term by Dr. J. P. Harland who has been secured by the University for this work.

In discussing the prospects for a School of Fine Arts, Dr. Harland said that the first thing necessary would be sufficient interest in the state for such a department here. "I have 19 students in my first course," he said, "and it had no preliminary announcement. The foundation of all art is ancient art, and that is why we are beginning with work in archaeology.

"Other branches of the University are teaching the history, economics and politics of people from first civilization to the present and it will be the aim of these courses to teach the art of these people as just another factor in their life. So many people have the notion that "art" is something done by a queer individual stuck away in a studio somewhere. We hope to create a different feeling about it."

Three Years in Europe

Dr. Harland is just returned from a three-year stay in Greece where he directed the excavation of a site at Nemea. At this pre-historic settlement, houses dating back to 3000 B.C. were unearthed, and certain pottery that was found in a cave may have been as old as 4000 B.C. This work was done on a Guggenheim Fellowship. Dr. Harland was teaching here in the University at the time he was awarded this fellowship.

While in Greece he worked with the American School of Archaeology and though he spent most of his time in Greece, he also studied materials in Egypt, Assyria, and Babylonia, as well
(Continued on page four)