WAGER TO SPEAK ON STATE TAXES AT CLUB MEETING

North Carolina Club Continues
Its Studies of North Carolina Tax Problems.

SECOND IN TAX SERIES

Paul Wager Is President of
Club and Member of Sociology
Faculty—R. B. House Was
First Speaker on Tax Subject.

Paul W. Wager, president of the North Carolina club and a member of the Rural Sociology department of the University, will outline North Carolina's present system of taxes, state and local, at the regular fortnightly meeting of the club in Saunders hall Monday night at 7:30.

Mr. Wager's talk will be the second of the series of tax studies which the club is making this year. At the first meeting R. B. House presented the historical and psychological background of the tax question in the state. It is planned to take up at subsequent meetings of the club the various types of taxes employed in North Carolina and the possibilities of tax reforms.

The North Carolina club, which meets regularly every second Monday night in 112 Saunders, maps out at the beginning of each year a series of studies upon some phase of governmental, economic, social, or other type of problem confronting the state, and continues them throughout the year at the regular meetings. Prominent authorities upon the subject being studied speak at the meetings, which are open to both members of the faculty and students.

Officials of the club yesterday stated their belief that all students and faculty members interested in North Carolina's economic and governmental problems ought to find profit in attending the meetings, which last only one hour, and may be attended by anyone.

HOLMES REPLACES ROYALL AS KALIF

Change in Lead Made in Wigwe
and Masque Production—
Synopsis Given.

Urban T. Holmes of the University French department was recently cast as the Kalif of Kavak in the production by that name to be presented here November 8 and 9 by the Wigwe and Masque. This character was to have been played by Norman Royal who now finds himself unable to appear in the production because of absence in connection with work in the school of engineering.

Mr. Holmes, popular actor in playmaker circles, appeared in "The Barber of Seville" given here last spring by the French department. With this change in cast, the development of the production is making most rapid strides, stated the director in a recent interview. P. J. Weaver expressed great satisfaction at the way the play is shaping itself and is greatly pleased with the talent he has to work with this year. He is also pleased with the new lead, and predicts a success for Mr. Holmes, a player of great ability along comedy lines.

"Every chorus girl a perfect gentleman" is the catch phrase of the Wigwe and Masque presentations. This holds good for the eighteen members of the "Kalif of Kavak" chorus who are displaying great capabilities as "ladies."

The play itself is a laughable farce in an oriental background. It is centered around two American women tourists who are kidnapped for the harem of a fickle oriental potentate. Gene Irvin carries the role of the fair daughter of Bill Atlee, and both find themselves about to become the latest additions to an ample oriental household.

The sweetheart of the girl comes to the rescue as a harem slave, and creates quite a novel situation when the Kalif throws over his latest acquisitions to gain the affection of the new arrival. After three acts filled with ludicrous situations, and the modernization of the harem by the practical American mother, the whole party is rescued by the consul and a fleet of battle-ships.

Bliss Carman, Celebrated Poet, To Give Reading and Lecture In Chapel Hill Next Thursday

Co-author With Hovey of Rollicking College Songs and Poems
Brought Here by University Lecture Committee—Wrote
"Songs from Vagabondia" in Several Editions.

Bliss Carman, one of America's most celebrated poets, is coming to Chapel Hill next week. He will give a reading from his poems in Gerrard Hall Thursday evening at 8:30 and will accompany the reading by an informal talk about poets and poetry.

He is brought here by the University lecture committee, and there is no admission charge.

Mr. Carman was born in Canada in 1861 and was educated at the University of New Brunswick, at Edinburgh, and at Harvard. He came to live in the United States in his twenties, and his exceptional talent promptly won him not only high favor among the general reading public but also recognition from the country's most discerning critics.

His first book of lyrics, published in 1893, was "Low Tide on Grand Pre."

In the next few years came his co-authorship with Richard Hovey in "Songs from Vagabondia." "More Songs from Vagabondia." "A Bohemian open-road friendliness and daring" is the quality that, according to one commentator, distinguishes the style of Carman and Hovey in these vagabond songs. "Theirs is the poetry of college youth, off together on a vacation, roughing it some, seeking adventures in action or amours, enamoured of nature's mystery and beauty, holding conventions (except fraternity conventions) a good deal in abeyance if not in contempt, and united in friendship that is less amorous but more various and enduring than love. Gay, boisterous, youthful poetry, resounding with the shouts and derisive laughter of two revolvers from mid-Victorianism and the albuminous American imitations."

Seven of the following men will be chosen to make up the freshman team: Ed. Ferrell, Baucom, Bill Carbine, Derossett, Roscoe Fisher, Carl Fisher, Hatem, Tilley and Crane.

Little is known about the strength of State's freshman team but the Tar Babies are expecting competition.

Tentative Schedule Of Religion Courses Made for Next Term

M. T. Workman, Dean of the School of Religion, has drawn up a suggested list of classes in Bible study for the winter quarter. This schedule is not final as there is yet some doubt about conflict. Courses which were started this term will be continued to some extent next quarter. Mr. Workman stated, and experience has advised against Saturday and afternoon classes. The heat problem also conflicts with classes at 8:30.

Religion 2, The Life and Teaching of Jesus, has been proposed for Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, at 9:30. Life and Literature of the Hebrew People, Religion 1, may be offered at 12 o'clock on the same days. Twice a week, at 11 o'clock Tuesday and Thursday, Religion 51, The Hebrew Prophets, which will probably be a continuation of the present course, will be offered. A class to be conducted at night on Tuesday evening from 7:00 to 9:00 has also been scheduled. This is a study of Christianity in the Apollistic Age, and will be called Religion 3.

A definite schedule of the classes to be offered in this school will be published sometime before the winter quarter.

HESTER OPENS MEETING

State College and Meredith Joint
Hosts to College Journalists—
Baskerville Pictures Campus
Newspaper Extremes.

That a college editor should be a leader of all campus activities was the gist of the address of President H. L. Hester, editor of the "Chronicle" Duke University, before the convention of the North Carolina Collegiate Press Association, which opened its tenth semi-annual session Friday morning at 9 o'clock in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium at State College.

"All these benevolent friends of mankind have arisen as great institutions in our midst. The writer who writes and does nothing more is a poor writer. He is becoming professional and artificial. The reason why we are bored with so much artificiality in our literature, teaching and preaching, is because our writers, our teachers and preachers have become the slaves of their profession."

The mere idea of professionalism makes writers bookish, a preacher theoretical, and our teachers impractical. Any man to be successful in his profession must mix in the hurly-burly and rough and tumble of the affairs of the time.

Press Civilizing Influence

"The professional press is the greatest civilizing influence in the world, and the college press is the greatest single aim of extension of the college or university. The whole state should become permeated with the cultural and intellectual atmosphere that is to be found on the college campus, for that is the real meaning of the word institutionalism."

Miss Anne F. Johnson, business manager of the "Queen's Blue," Queens College, Charlotte, gave a brief talk on "Women in Journalism."

Reports of Publications

Following the president's address, reports were made from among the 125 delegates gathered from all colleges.

GRAIL DANCE SET FOR NOVEMBER 5

The Buccaneers have been engaged to furnish the music for the dancing which will continue from 9 to 12 o'clock.

Plans are also underway for the Grail dance to be given on the following Saturday after the Davidson game. Further announcements concerning the orchestra and place of the affair will be made in subsequent issues of the Tar Heel.

State Championship May Hang in Balance Today As Tar Heels Meet State

CHEERIOS TO BE ON SIDELINES IN RALEIGH TODAY

Pep Organization Has Practiced
Faithfully in Preparation for Annual State Game.

If Carolina fails to win today, it will not be the fault of the famous Cheerios, who are going over in full strength after a full week's work to make a good showing.

Meetings have been held each night this week, and considerable work has been done on the football field. The State College song has been learned by the cheerers, as well as the Wolfpack's favorite yell. More Carolina cheers have been memorized, and improvement made in the rendition of old ones.

The organization will go to Raleigh in a body on the special train, and have a section of seats reserved for them. Between halves, the Cheerios will go out on the field, form the letters N. C. S., sing the State College song, and probably give their yell. The "S" will then change to a "U," making N. C. U., and Carolina's praises will be sung and shouted to the world.

Much comment was caused by the work of the Cheerios at the Virginia game last year, and the members are expecting to make fully as good a showing at the game today which is considered by many the season's biggest in North Carolina.

Error Is Made in Announcing Pledges To Campus Sororities

Members of the two women's fraternities on the campus have been in something of a furor since the appearance in Thursday's Tar Heel of the announcement of the pledges to their respective lodges, with the pledges assigned to the wrong groups.

The names appeared in reasonable correctness as far as spelling and details were concerned, but Pi Beta Phi was listed as pinning up Chi Omega's pledges, and vice versa. The exact source of the mix-up has not been located, but the Tar Heel desires at this time to make amends for the error unwittingly committed. The names as they should have appeared are as follows:

Pi Beta Phi fraternity announces the pledging of Miss Margaret Creitzburg, Rock Hill, S. C.; Miss Helen Darch, Goldsboro; Miss Anne Lawrence, Raleigh; Miss Elizabeth Lilly, Winston-Salem; Miss Lela Royall, Goldsboro; and Miss Lois Worden, Louisville, Ky.

Chi Omega sorority announces the pledging of Miss Margaret Carlton, Roxboro; Miss Rose Davis, Woodruff, S. C.; Miss Rebecca Graham, Durham; Miss Emily McLeland, Maxton; and Miss Lida Ramsey, Atlanta, Ga.

A. B. Andrews Acting President. Not being in good health at present, Alfred M. Seales has asked A. B. Andrews, vice-president, to serve in his place as president of the Alumni Association.

Grid Classic Between State and Carolina Promises Traditional Rivalry—and More.

TEBELL HAS MIGHTY TEAM

Wolfpack Making Strong Bid
For Southern and State Championships—State Backfield
Powerful and Swift—Game
In Raleigh This Afternoon.

The University of North Carolina will move to Raleigh today! At least the student body will go, and after all the students make up the University. By noon today the campus will be a vast deserted expanse of grass and lofty buildings, and practically every loyal Tar Heel will be ready to cheer the Carolina eleven to victory over the Techmen.

The annual grid classic between the Tar Heels and Techmen is carded to start at 2:30 o'clock on Riddick Field at State, and what a battle it promises to be! Of course it goes without saying that these traditional rivals always put on an exhibition worth seeing, but today's game promises more than ordinary.

Gus Tebell has developed the most powerful machine State College has had in more than a decade. Not since the days of Van Brocklin and MacDougall has the Wolfpack bayed so long and so vigorously at the gates of a Southern championship. This year State has its McDowell, and the Florida lad bids fair to rate an All-Southern berth.

Brilliant play so far this season has netted four wins and one reverse in a schedule that included games with such teams as Furman's Purple Hurricane, Clemson's fighting Tigers, Florida's own Alligators, the Wake Forest Deacons and Elon's best Christian team in several seasons.

But does that "faze" the Tar Heels? It does not. The Heels themselves made a big dent in the Southern Conference dope last week, and they are planning on digging still further into enemy territory this week. The squad is in fine shape. Even Billy Ferrell, brilliant fullback who was out of the Georgia Tech encounter, may get into action again today.

All this week, even into darkness, the Carolina coaches have been pushing the Tar Heels in practice, and it may be woe unto the Techmen today. If no Carolina plans go awry it will be their downfall.

GROUP OF PLAYS FOR FROSH CLASS

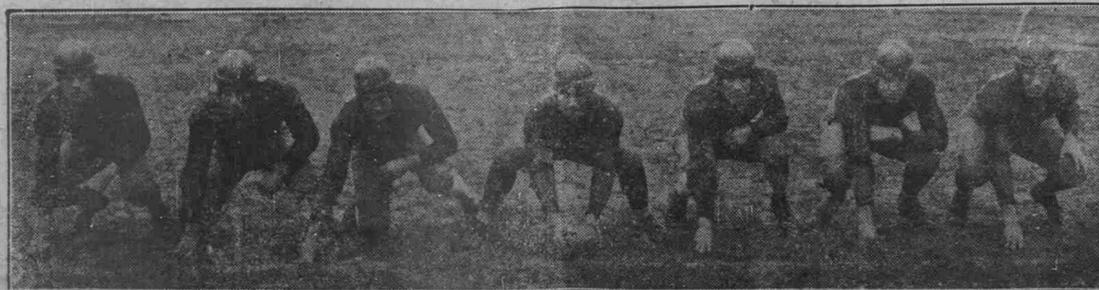

Playmakers to Present Folkplays
To Be Taken on Northern Trip to New Men.

On Saturday, November the fifth at 8:30 o'clock, in place of the production of "Ten Nights in a Bar-Room," which will be given Dec. 9 and 10, the Carolina Playmakers will present the group of one act plays to be carried on the northern tour. This performance is intended for new men so that they will be able to see some of the original folk plays which have been written and produced by the Playmakers.

The bill will include "The Scuffle-town Outlaws," "Fixins," "Lighted Candles," and "On Dixon's Porch," which is a revised version of "In Dixon's Kitchen." All the plays have new scenery, designed by Samuel Seldon, which shows freshness and originality in design. The scene of "On Dixon's Porch" takes place on the back piazza of the Dixon home and the scenery for this play is especially beautiful. There will be a low admission price charged.

Holders of season tickets will be admitted free to this performance.

The Renowned Tar Heel Line

Above are pictured the seven fighting Tar Heels who compose the Carolina line and have added to its description the adjective "impregnable." Their play has been the most outstanding feature of the season, and mention is already being made of several of its members for all-southern positions. Schwartz, center, has especially been predicted to receive one of the coveted mythical positions.
