Student Body Pledges Support To Football Coaches and Team In Gigantic 'Loyalty Meeting'

Ovation Lasting Ten Minutes Accorded Squad and Coaches in March down Aisle of Memorial Hall—Speeches by Jonas, Graham, Kyser, Collins, Morehead and Fetzer.

Meeting in Memorial Hall Friday night in a gigantic "loyalty meeting," the University student body expressed its confidence in the coaches and the football squad by a lengthy ovation evidencing as much enthusiasm as the campus has seen accorded a football team in many years.

As C. R. Jonas, president of the student body, explained, the meeting was not the usual pep meeting customary before a big game. It was in the nature of a general discussion of the factors that have resulted in the poor showing of the team so far this year, and of the possible inspiration that the student body may give the squad in the remaining games. Evidently the confidence expressed by those at the mass meeting had some part in the vastly improved brand of football exhibited by Coach Collins' proteges in the Davidson game Saturday.

President Jonas, who presided over the meeting, started the ball rolling and the enthusiasm of the crowd to mounting with a short talk. He declared that the team is the University's and the student body's, whether it is winning or losing, and that it is deserving of the hearty support of every Carolina man. He deplored the wave of criticism of the team and coaches and fault-finding that has swept over the campus recently.

Frank Graham Speaks
"Midseason is no time to criticize the coaches and the team and to cease support of them," he declared. "It never pays to desert in midstream. Let's give them every bit of inspiration that we can during the season, and then, if they have failed to produce, after the season is over is the proper time to criticize and to think of other coaches for the next year. It is unfair to the coaches and (Continued on page four)

CAROLINA HOLDS A JINX ON DUKE

Tar Heels Have Won Every Game Since 1893—Evenly
Matched for Saturday.

A coveted gridiron honor that has been in the possession of the University of North Carolina for a period of over thirty years will be at stake next Saturday afternoon at Durham when the Tar Heel eleven lines up against the strong Blue Devil aggregation of Duke University.

Not since the year 1893 have the Methodists been able to register a victory over the Tar Heel gridders. The Tar Heels had not been beaten by North Carolina State for over a period of five years until this year when the Technicians gave them a 19 to 6 wallowing at Raleigh. And last Saturday the Tebbell crew defeated Duke 20 to 18 to cap the championship of the state.

It won't be the Tar Heel eleven that scrapped the Old Liners of Maryland to a 7 to 6 victory in a sea of mud on Emerson field or the team that met defeat at the hands of South Carolina, N. C. State, Georgia Tech, Wake Forest, V. M. I., and Tennessee, but the rejuvenated Tar Heel eleven that last Saturday completely outplayed Dick Grey's Davidson machine and trampled them under their feet by the score of 27 to 0.

By the law of averages it looks like the Tar Heels are due a licking at the hands of the Duke eleven, but judging by last Saturday's game with the Wildcats the Heels have as good a chance to win as the Devils.

The pessimist will without a doubt what do they amount to? It is not an uncommon occurrence for some insignificant little college team to give a larger university a much harder fight than an equally strong team. Take the Elon-Wake Forest game for example.

It will be a powerful, scrapping Tar Heel eleven that will scrap it out with the Devils and when the last whistle is blown it is as likely for the Tar Heels to be on the big end of the score as it is for Duke.

Stage Manager

Samuel Selden, technical director of the Carolina Playmakers, came to Chapel Hill to take charge of "backstage activities" here. He is the first stage director to come to North Carolina and enters the state with valuable professional experience. Mr. Selden is with the Playmakers on the first Northern tour, all of the scenery for the present bill being of his design.

Reserved Seats for Students At Carolina-Virginia Game

A detailed explanation of the process for obtaining reserved seat coupons in exchange for student tickets books for the annual Carolina-Virginia grid battle Thanksgiving Day was given out today by officials in charge.

University students, including the Cheerios and band, will occupy a block of seats on the south side of the huge Kenan Memorial bowl which will be dedicated just before the annual Turkey Day classic between the Tar Heels and Cavaliers.

This block of seats will be approximately in the center of the stand and every seat will be numbered and reserved, coupon tickets being absolutely necessary to obtain a seat. No exceptions will be made to this rule and no student will be allowed to pass through the gate on his athletic association membership book, officials stressed.

Exchange Next Monday
Athletic association membership books will be exchanged for reserved seat coupons at the Book Exchange in the Y. M. C. A. building on the following days:

TAR BABIES BEAT MARYLAND FROSH WITH SCORE 12-0

Freshmen Show Excellent Form
To Pile Up Score against Stubborn Opponents.

NO INDIVIDUAL LIGHT

Entire Backfield Shows up Well
While Blackwood is Outstanding in Line—Eleven First Downs for Carolina Frosh.

Playing a better brand of football than is usually displayed by freshmen elevens, the University of North Carolina yearling football team scored a decisive 12 to 0 victory over the University of Maryland freshmen last Friday in Baltimore. The Tar Baby line worked with the precision of a machine, ripping great holes in the opposing defense, allowing their backs to crash through for substantial gains.

The Tar Heels drew first blood in the latter part of the first half when Scheider grabbed a twenty-five yard pass and raced ten more for a score. Then again in the third quarter the Carolinians started down the field by a series of line drives led by the doughty Mr. House who a little later smashed his way through center for the second and final goal. Both attempts for the extra point failed.

No Single Stars
Maryland was completely outplayed from beginning to end. The fact that the Old Liners possessed a rather stubborn defense prevented the Tar Babies from running up a larger score. Carolina chalked up eleven first downs to the loser's two, eight of Carolina's eleven coming during the first quarter.

As an exception to the season's rule, the Tar Heels exhibited no individual ground gainer in the backfield. House, Nelson, Nash and Michael divided honors among themselves. Blackwood, former Winston-Salem star, was about (Continued on page four)

Second Election of Fresh Class Officers Being Run Off Today

The second election of freshman class officers will be made today, it has been announced by C. R. Jonas, president of the student body. Balloting will open this morning at 9 o'clock and close this afternoon at 2:30.

Balloting was made necessary today when no man in the original election Friday received a majority of all votes cast. With only two men up in each office, today's election will be final.

As a result of the first ballot the following men are being voted upon: for president, Strudwick Nash and Worth Helms; for vice-president, Ned Lipscomb and Henry Baggs; for secretary, Mayne Albright and Bill Carbine; for treasurer, Bill Bateman and Clyde Dunn.

dents will be eligible to obtain their coupons. On the following day, Tuesday, November 22, tickets will be given out to members of the sophomore and freshman classes.

Members of the Cheerios and band will be required to present their ticket books to group managers who will in turn issue tickets. No members of the above organizations will be admitted to the game without tickets. This arrangement makes it impossible for Cheerios and members of the band to sell or lend their pass books to outsiders.

General Sale Today

All holders of season tickets and complimentary passes are requested to bring same to the graduate manager's office in South building before November 21 so that they may be assigned reserved seats.

The general sale of tickets for this game will open today at the Book Exchange, two dollars being charged for admission. Local ticket orders are now ready and may be obtained by calling by the graduate manager's office in South building.

Students are asked to cooperate with officials in charge by applying for tickets at the time assigned.

FARRIS PLAYS STAR GAME

New Spirit Dominates Tar Heel
Style of Play—Passes Used to Particular Advantage—Grey

The University of North Carolina football squad took on all the spirits of the occasion and appropriately christened the new Kenan Memorial Stadium here last Saturday with a 27 to 0 victory over the Davidson Wildcats. Only once before in all the thirty years of rivalry with the 'Cats have the Tar Heels run up a larger score. That was in 1915 when the margin of the Heels' win was 41 to 6.

A colorful crowd of 9,000 spectators gathered to see the opening of the University's vast grid temple, drawn more perhaps by the new stadium itself than by the game to be played. But if the people came only to see the stadium—then they also received a treat in the way of a football game. Not since 1922 has the Tar Heel eleven trussed its stuff in such fashion.

The towering concrete stands rose to commanding heights on each side of the playing field, sheltering a crowd that seemed almost swallowed in the wide expanse of amphitheatre. When William Rand Kenan, Jr. gave the stadium as a memorial for his father and mother, provisions were made for 24,000 people. Saturday the crowd that filled only the middle sections made up in enthusiasm what it lacked in size. The Tar Heel team, too, caught that enthusiasm and swept up and down the field in impressive manner to roll over a quartet of touchdowns.

STUDENTS DECRY ALCOHOLIC WASTE

Half Gallon Jar of Corn Thrown from Car on Chapel Hill's Main Street.

"Don't cry over spilled milk" did not apply to sweet essence of corn Saturday afternoon when a passing motorist dropped from his car a half gallon fruit jar of corn whiskey on Franklin street in front of the Carolina Confectionery. A recent addition to the police force was a block away and smelled the whiskey, so he said. When he arrived on the scene there was a score or more of mournful looking students standing around the fragments of glass and the large wet spot where the liquid landed on the pavement. Nor did the students simply take a look and walk away. Instead they stood over the spot like they would have over their grandmother's grave, and now and then came close to get the full benefit of the penetrating odor.

Some wag, probably wishing a test drill for the fire department, lit a newspaper and threw it on the large wet spot where the whiskey was still standing in small puddles on the street. Everyone quickly retreated to avoid the blaze, but instead of the alcohol igniting and burning up, the spectators heard a sizzling sound of water and fire in contact, and the paper was extinguished. Some boot-legger knew his mixtures too well.

The whiskey was thought to have been thrown from a car bearing a Sanford license which was seen to pass the corner coming from Sanford only a moment before the crash of the bottle was heard. The officer stated that the only charge against the party would be breaking glass on the street as there is no law to prosecute a person after he has spilled the whiskey. However, no one admitted the loss in hope of regaining it from the city.

CROWDS PRESENT AT DANCE HALLS

Visitors Throng Chi Phi and Zeta Psi Tea Dances
and Grail Hop.

One of the largest crowds ever present on the Old North State campus was the feature of last Saturday evening's dance program. In fact, it was the largest assembly of pleasure seekers seen on the Hill since that record-breaking crowd of the night after the Davidson-Carolina football game of two years ago.

The Tar Heels' decisive victory over the Wildcats created an atmosphere of unrestrained rejoicing and celebration, and the visitors and students turned with zest from the gridiron to the dance floor.

The game was over about five o'clock, and after an intermission of one hour those invited to the Chi Phi and to the Zeta Psi tea dances assembled at the Carolina Inn and at the Zeta Psi house, respectively, for an enjoyable two hours dancing. The Buccaneers played at the Inn and Kay Kyser and his Orchestra at the Zeta Psi house. Both dances started the evening's program off with a whirl.

Grail at Swain Hall

The two tea hops were over at eight o'clock, and soon after nine the hordes began assembling from far and near for the Grail dance in Swain Hall. The gates were almost crashed, and the men on the door had their hands full keeping the mob back. The boys surged back and forth in front of the building until one by one they were let in the dance.

The dance was well attended, but there was a much larger percentage of girls present than is the usual case with dances of this type. This fact helped the shag considerably. Kay Kyser and his Orchestra were well received. Their music won loud applause and their novelty acts were enthusiastically received.

Monogram Club Honored

The entire roof of the large hall was covered with interlaced streamers of red, black, blue and white, Davidson and Carolina colors.

The dance was given in recognition of the Monogram Club, and a solo waltz was held for wearers of the N. C.

Entries Received from Outstanding Conference Teams of South.

ENTERTAINMENT PLANNED

The fourth annual Southern Conference cross country run will be held here on Emerson Field Saturday morning at 11:30. The meet is being held in the morning to enable the spectators and runners to attend the Carolina-Duke football game in the afternoon.

Entries have been received from four of the outstanding conference teams, Georgia Tech, Virginia, Georgia, and N. C. State. Several other teams have indicated their intentions of entering teams before the entries close tomorrow night. Auburn and Maryland, winners of second and third places in last year's meet, are almost certain to enter.

Cup to Victors

The Tar Heels won last year's meet and are expected to make an excellent showing Saturday. The Carolina harriers have been working hard this fall and have overwhelmingly defeated N. C. State and Duke University. The Carolina Athletic Association will award a silver loving cup to the winning team and the seven individual members composing it will be awarded gold medals. Medals will also be awarded to the first fifteen men to finish the race as follows: to the first five men gold medals, to the second five silver medals, and to the third five bronze medals.

The race will be over a five mile dirt road course with the exception of three short stretches of pavement, each 1-4 mile long. The starting point of the race will be on the track directly in front of the Emerson Field Stadium.

Plans for Visitors

Elaborate plans have been made for the entertainment and accommodation of the visiting teams. Adequate hotel accommodations are being offered to the visiting teams at special rates by the Carolina Inn, the Washington Duke and Malbourne hotels. Free accommodations will be provided by the University Athletic Association. Cordial invitations to attend the Carolina-Duke football game as guests have been jointly issued by the Carolina and Duke Athletic Associations.
