TAR BABIES AT VIRGINIA TODAY FOR FINAL GAME

Freshmen Meet University of Virginia Frosh in Charlottesville This Afternoon.

ARE UNDEFEATED TO DATE

Too Few Games Played for Carolina to Claim State Championship, But Frosh Have Had Impressive Season.

Twenty-five scrapping members of the Tar Baby football squad left last night for Charlottesville where they stage their last and final game of the season with the Virginia frosh this afternoon.

The Carolina yearlings have not dropped a game so far this season. Wins over State and Maryland and a tie with Duke is the record and every man is determined to put the Virginia game beneath the "won" column. Both Virginia and Carolina have played the Maryland frosh, the Tar Babies coming out with a 12 to 0 win while some time ago the Cavaliers got only a tie count. This looks well for the Carolinians, though comparative scores mean little.

It would be rather a hard matter to make any claim for the Tar Babies as State champs. There have been too few games with other state teams to consider the idea, but as it stands the Carolina freshmen licked the State Wolflets 18 to 0 and gained a 6-6 score with Duke. The Blue Imps have wiped up everything else in the state and if one were able to judge by comparative scores the Tar Heels could claim a joint championship with Duke, or second place, at least.

VIRGINIA GAME HOLDS INTEREST

Few Predictions Can Be Safely Made as to Turkey Day Outcome.

Football mentors are doing a rushing business this week. For the last several days Coach Collins and his staff have been putting their charges through the final polishing for the Duke game today. In the meantime they have been grooming the Tar Heels for the annual Turkey Day clash with the Virginia Cavaliers which comes off Thursday in Kenan Memorial stadium along with the dedication of the huge bowl.

Time will tell the results of the Duke game rather shortly but there are still a few days left to speculate over the outcome of the game with the Cavaliers.

Scores Favor Virginia

From the standpoint of scores the Old Dominion eleven has a better chance to carry home the bacon. But all those who have been here long enough to witness any of the annual Thanksgiving struggles between the Carolina and Virginia teams will assure those in doubt that if the Tar Heels ever fight this is one time they do that thing, and that past records have no relation to this game in the least.

Getting a little closer to the subject we find that the Heels registered a 7 to 6 victory over the Old Liners of Maryland in a sea of mud on Emerson field while the Cavaliers licked the Maryland eleven 21 to 0 last Saturday.

Cavaliers Lay Off Today

And another thing: since their last Saturday's victory the Virginians have put their undivided efforts toward preparing for their invasion of North Carolina, no game being scheduled for today. On the other hand the Heels have had to divide their time in order to be in favorable condition to meet the Blue Devils this afternoon and also be able to take on the Cavaliers Thursday.

If the Tar Heels lick Duke this afternoon they will have proved themselves as strong as Virginia, Duke being one of the strongest teams in the state.

If the Devils win this afternoon's contest Tar Heels will fight all the harder on Thanksgiving day against the Cavaliers.

There's no way of getting around it, the team that wins the Turkey Day contest is going to have to fight hard for their victory.

Southern Cross-Country Meet Brings Eight Teams to Campus; Carolina Favored to Win Title

Harrier Meet Scheduled for Emerson Field at 11:30 This Morning—Georgia and Virginia Have Good Teams—Visiting Teams Arrived Yesterday Afternoon.

Eight of the outstanding Southern Conference institutions have entered teams in the cross country championship run to be held on Emerson Field this morning at 11:30 o'clock.

The final entries are Georgia, Virginia, Georgia Tech, Kentucky, Washington and Lee, Maryland, N. C. State, and Carolina. All of these teams have made impressive records and nearly all of them have individual stars of rare ability.

Success Assured
Final plans and arrangements have been completed and the success of the meet is practically assured, barring adverse weather. The run will be started promptly at 11:30. Contestants must report to the clerk of the course at 11:15 and officials are requested to be on Emerson Field before 11.

The Tar Heels, who are playing host to the other teams, will be defending the crown they won in last year's hill-and-dale classic held at Athens, Ga. The mainstays in Carolina's fight to defend its title will be Hoyt Pritchett, sensational distance star, John Henderson, a letterman from the 1925 harrier teams and one of the most consistent winners in the blue and white uniform this season, and Red Fisher, star of last year's yearling outfit and twice winner of the annual cake race. Others who are expected to show up well for the Tar Heels are Captain Galen Elliott and Minor Barkley.

The selections to be offered by the quartet in the order of their rendition are as follows:

Jeffress Will Address Alumni in Meeting Here Next Wednesday

Greensboro Mayor and Publisher Secured as Principal Speaker for Alumni Association Luncheon at Carolina Inn—Is Prominent University Alumnus.

E. B. Jeffress, publisher and Mayor of Greensboro, will be the principal speaker at the dinner session of the General Assembly of the University Alumni Association, which convenes here next Wednesday with a luncheon at the Carolina Inn. This announcement will be met with general approval by the alumni body since Mr. Jeffress is an alumnus held in high esteem.

Beginning with the one-o'clock luncheon at the Carolina Inn the afternoon session will consist of necessary reports and business matters of the Association. Reports of the officers, necessary nominations and elections, topics concerning local club and class activities, will be items of the business meeting.

Woollen to Speak

In addition there is listed a short talk by Chas. T. Woollen, University business manager and graduate manager of athletics on the "Story of the Stadium." "Shall the Alumni Review be a weekly?" is a question that will come before the Assembly for discussion and possible action.

Outstanding Harrier

John Henderson, letterman from the 1925 cross-country team, is back in uniform this year as an outstanding Tar Heel harrier. He is expected to place among the first three in the Southern Conference meet here today, while rumor has it that he will push Hoyt Pritchett, captain of the Carolina track team, hard for first place in the titular event.

Golf Team May Be Organized Tuesday

The organization of a University golf team will be considered at a meeting of all men interested Tuesday morning at Chapel Hill in Gerard Hall, it is announced by the promoters of the new sport.

Present plans, it is understood, call for a regular schedule during the spring, though complete details have not yet been worked out. All men who find it impossible to be present at the meeting Tuesday morning are asked to get in touch with Billy Vanstory at the D.K.E. house, or June Adams at the S.A.E. house sometime before Thanksgiving.

GERMAN DANCES DURING HOLIDAYS TO BE ELABORATE

Final Plans Completed for Spectacular Set of Thanksgiving Dances.

FIVE HOPS ON PROGRAM

Swain Hall Being Used for First Time for Mid-Season Dances—Weidemyer Engaged for Music—Gala Decorations.

Turkey Day is almost here and German Club plans for the annual celebration of that festival are receiving their final polishing. As has been previously announced, the dances will be held in Swain Hall with the popular Weidemyer furnishing the music. These two facts should serve to make this year's Thanksgiving hops some of the best dances ever held on the Hill, for heretofore Swain Hall has been obtainable only for finals. In addition the orchestra engaged is considered excellent.

The executive committee of the German Club has been meeting frequently during the past two weeks, and all details of the coming series have been thrashed out. There will be five dances beginning Friday afternoon, November the twenty-fifth. The first hop, lasting from four till six will be sponsored by the Minotaurs. The dance Friday evening from ten till one will be given by the Ginghamols. Saturday morning the dancing will begin at eleven and last until one, while the second afternoon dance of the series will start at four and continue until six. These hops have not been assigned to any organizations. The Fall German Saturday evening from nine till twelve will conclude the series.

The decorations will be installed by Upchurch of Raleigh. The color scheme very likely will be worked out in orange and red, fall colors. The job is one of the best offered by the firm, and the interior of Swain Hall will be a solid mass of festoons, soft lights and novel ornaments.

Pacifism Debate With British Tuesday Night

NASH HEADS THE FRESHMAN CLASS

Strudwick Nash Elected President with Ned Lipscomb as Vice-President.

Tuesday afternoon, at two-thirty, the votes cast in the second and final election of Freshman class officers were counted, and the results announced. This polling was the second, made necessary by the fact that no candidate in the first election received a majority sufficient for his selection. The two candidates for each office having the highest number of votes were run again in the second polling. The results of the count were as follows:

For President: Strudwick Nash 240 (elected); Worth Helms 206.
For Vice-President: Ned Lipscomb 277 (elected); Henry Baggs 163.
For Secretary: Bill Carbine 230 (elected); Mayne Albright 202.
For Treasurer: Bill Bateman 270 (elected); Clyde Dunn 155.
Twenty-five of the ballots cast were unsigned, and for that reason, could not be counted.

C. R. Jonas, president of the student body, stated that the officers would be installed with proper ceremonies in Memorial Hall at an early date as yet unfixed.

Tar Heels Face Duke in Durham this Afternoon; Depend on Strong Line

Duke's Biggest Threat

"Jan" Jankoski, mighty plunging back who has led the Duke team throughout the season, will be the greatest threat on the Blue Devil roster this afternoon. The lad from Milwaukee has ripped every line he has faced this year, and to date leads all the backfield men of the state in scoring. He has pounded his way over opponents' goal lines for fifteen touchdowns this year and has a scoring total of 91 points. Hopes of a Carolina win will be slim indeed if the big University line doesn't stop "Jan."

Carolina Eleven Determined to Stop Jankoski Plunges and Buie Passing Attack.

GAME ON HANES FIELD

Same Line-up Started against Davidson Last Saturday Will Take the Field This Afternoon—"They Shall Not Pass" Is Team Motto.

The Tar Heel football team goes to Durham today to beard the Blue Devils in their own lair, and if all the good intentions and spirit of the Carolina squad has its effect the universal by-word on the campus here tonight will be "Get thee behind me, Devil—in the state championship."

The game is carded to begin at 2:00 o'clock, and by that hour almost every true son of Carolina will be in the stands over on Hanes Field to yell with the same fighting spirit that has driven the Tar Heel gridmen in practice this week.

Great Line

That team spirit this week has much akin to the spirit of the French troops at Verdun and Ypres, for they have taken a mental motto, "They shall not pass." That motto applies to both "Jan" Jankoski's smashing plunges at the line and the aerial thrusts of Sam Buie.

Jankoski has written his name in letters of flame across the southeastern football horizon this season, but they're all alike to the big Carolina line. That line, too, has been praised and eulogized from Baltimore to New Orleans for its stone-wall qualities, and Tar Heel supporters pin their faith on it today.

From flank to flank it is a great line, perhaps the greatest ever developed in the South. Indeed, one enthusiastic sports scribe described it as "the greatest line ever built in Dixie." Those big linemen took two chances to prove their mettle last Saturday, for they stopped the mighty Grey and Nisbet of Davidson twice within the one yard line.

TILLET SPEAKS TO LAW SCHOOL

Charlotte Attorney Urges Students to Acquire 'Capital Stock' of Information.

"The thing that enables a lawyer to succeed is the capital stock of information he gathers in the course of his training and experience," Charles W. Tillett, prominent Charlotte attorney, declared to the law school students in Manning Hall Thursday morning. "A lawyer should always go to the mat with any question of law that comes to hand and master it thoroughly."

Mr. Tillett's lecture Thursday to the entire law school student body came as a climax to a series of five lectures that he delivered the afternoon before to the third-year students. He spoke to them on "The Factors That Control the Organization of Corporations." He outlined the conditions under which corporations should be formed, and gave a detailed description of the procedure by which corporations are drawn up.

"A lawyer is never a good lawyer unless he was a good lawyer before he got his license," Mr. Tillett asserted. "The time that you men are not spending in law school will enable you to display the flashes of ability that are essential to practical success. The time is coming in the near future, with the development of the great industrial South, when a 'capital stock' of information about the law will be of great value and will be at a premium."

The Charlotte lawyer's lectures were the second of a series that is being delivered to members of the Law School by prominent lawyers of the state, under the auspices of the University Law association. Kemp Battle, of the Rocky Mount bar, delivered the first of the series two weeks ago on "contracts."
