Stockton Presiding Over Annual Meeting of Newspaper Institute

President of North Carolina Press Association is Directing Program of Fourth Annual Mid-Winter Gathering of Newspaper Folk.

There is, according to the Good Book, a time for all things. Hence with a program of practicalities for active newspaper workers featuring the fourth annual Newspaper Institute which started here last night and will continue thru Thursday and Friday of this week, it seemed especially fitting that the president of the North Carolina Press Association, who is to preside over such of the meetings as require that sort of thing, should be a dyed-in-the-wool, blown-in-the-bottle 20-minute newspaper egg.

A. L. Stockton, managing editor of the Greensboro News, came with that paper when it was just emerging from the chrysalis of the Industrial News. Indeed, some of the plagues of its Egyptian bondage probably still existed in the form of payments overdue on Mergenthalers, press and news-print. For Messrs. Hildebrand and Jeffers, the original owners, there was nothing much in prospect except a wide-open field and plenty of work.

But no paper ever lined up a more competent staff composed of those who, if they did not like to work, so hated having labor about them unperformed that they gave an effective imitation of love and affection.

As the News has gone forward and Mr. Stockton has become one of its owners, he has found a trifle more time—for ten years he had none—for visiting, has learned the golf clubs by name and is said to make a ripping Kiwanis speech; but he is just as easy to find at the News office as hitherto.

He's easier to get along with, too; but has not as yet joined the Millennial Dawnists of the Fourth Estate who expect remission of sins without shedding of blood or good news-stories written otherwise than in the sweat of one's brow, high or low as the case may be.

WELCOMED INSTITUTE

President Harry W. Chase who delivered the address of welcome at the opening session of the fourth annual Newspaper Institute here last night.

CHASE DELIVERS WELCOME ADDRESS

Speeches by B. Arp Lowrance and J. A. Parham.

The fourth annual North Carolina Newspaper Institute got underway at the Carolina Inn last night with the address of welcome by Harry W. Chase, president of the University, and addresses by B. Arp Lowrance, Field Secretary of the North Carolina Press Association and J. A. Parham, managing editor of the Charlotte Observer.

"The difference in the attitudes on what constitutes journalism taken by American and by English newspapers is typical of the essential differences in the outlook of the peoples of Europe and of this country," President Chase asserted. The English reporter carefully conceals what his story

Today's Institute Speaker

Marien E. Pew, editor of Editor and Publisher, well-known weekly publication of the newspaper profession, will be the only out-of-state speaker of the annual Newspaper Institute which opened last night. His address will be the feature of the annual dinner at 6:30 this afternoon.

University Student Government Has Reached Acme of Perfection

Elimination of Rules and Regulations Was Aim of Convention, Declares Jonas.

The student government at the University has reached the very acme of perfection, in the opinion of a large number of representatives of major colleges and universities all over the country, according to C. R. Jonas, president of the student body, who attended the convention of the National Student Federation of America at Lincoln, Nebraska, just before the holidays.

President Jonas spoke before the delegates to the convention, who represented 160 of the more outstanding institutions of higher education in the country. These representatives were all very much amazed to learn that no constitution or by-laws are in effect here.

"The opinion prevalent at the convention was that all student government is working toward the elimination of rules and constitutions," Jonas stated in an interview with a TAR HEEL reporter recently. "The delegate from Princeton University announced that his school had abolished the constitution and by-laws this fall by which student government had previously been conducted. All the delegates were unanimous in declaring that the University has a wide reputation for excellence in student government and in adherence to the precepts of the honor system here."

The convention of the Student Federation is held annually to discuss problems of student government and to broaden the outlook of the delegates who attend it on problems of self-government. The delegates are usually the student government heads in the schools they represent.

Most of the work of the convention this year was done in the sessions of groups divided according to the section of the country they represented. Committees made reports on various phases of the honor system and of student government. Delegates attended the convention, which is a division of the International Students' Federation, from the University of London, from Paris, and from Honolulu. It lasted two days and three nights. An invitation to meet at the University of Missouri next year was accepted. The Federation will be extended an invitation to meet here the following year.

NOTICE!

It was announced yesterday by the business office that all students, who have not paid their bill for the winter quarter or made some arrangement about the matter, must do so before the end of this week.

Tar Heels Defeat Blue Devil Fighters in Opening Clash

YACKETY YACK PHOTOS
 The Yackety Yack photographer will be here next week for his last time. Appointments will be made at Sutton and Alderman's today and tomorrow from 12 till 3 and from 6 till 7. Make your appointment now or you will be left out when the book goes to press.

Carolina Boxers Work in Old-time Form to Defeat Blue Devils Six to One.

The Carolina leather-pushers won their first victory of the season Tuesday night at the Tin Can when they defeated the Duke University team 6-1.

In the bantamweight scrap Coley of Carolina outpointed Saint Amand of Duke. Coley had the advantage all the way through. He displayed more stamina, and handled his mitts with more cleverness.

White, Carolina featherweight, hammered Max of Duke all over the ring; however, Max stayed with him throughout the three rounds and showed much pluck. White was far the superior boxer.

In the lightweight division, Smith and Mauney staged a fast and furious battle. The men were so evenly matched that an extra round had to be fought to determine the winner. Despite the fact that Mauney of Carolina was bleeding at the mouth at the final bell, he copped the fight.

The welterweight performance was the cream of the evening's performance. Ed Butler, Captain of the Carolina team, and Warren of Duke were the fighters in this bout. Warren displayed furious fighting from the start, and gave Butler an interesting evening. However, Butler won the fight after the fourth round.

Charlie Brown won over Carper of Duke after the fourth round. The match was called a draw at the end of the third. Brown displayed his old style and finally emerged the winner.

The light-heavyweight bout was the only one lost by the Carolina team. Rankin of Duke gained the decision at the end of the third. This bout was the slowest of the evening.

Ox Shuford displayed his old-time form when he knocked Kulp of Duke down in the second round for the count of nine. Kulp managed to weather the storm and was still going at the final bell. This bout was the most interesting of the evening.

NEW DIRECTORY APPEARS TODAY

Contains Numbers and Addresses of All Departments of the University and Town Residents.

The student directory for the season 1927-28 made its appearance on the local campus last night. The book which was scheduled to appear the latter part of October, was delayed on account of difficulty in the advertising departments.

The directory which is published by the Young Men's Christian Association, must pay for itself in advertisements. Mr. H. F. Comer, General Secretary of the local Y, announced that copy for the publication had been in the hands of the printer since October 10. This should have caused an earlier distribution of the book than in the preceding years. The advertising contract, however, was let to a regular advertising firm, which on account of sicknesses and other maladies failed to secure the proper amount of ads in the time limited for publication. In order to avoid a similar difficulty next year, the business contract has been let already and a provision has been made for all ads to be in by September 25 of next

Heel Basketeers To Open Season With Guilford Friday Night

Tar Babies Will Play Oxford High Previous to Varsity Tilt.

The University of North Carolina cage squad will officially open its intercollegiate season here Friday night at 8:30 o'clock, when Pat Crawford brings his Guilford College Quakers over for the curtain raiser. The Tar Heels will enter the fray with six victories and one defeat to their credit. The Quakers also have an impressive pre-season record.

While little is known of the real strength of Crawford's men, it is a safe bet that the Guilford team presented here will carry out the reputation for skill and fighting qualities established by them here in former years. The visitors dropped a spectacular tilt to Elon at Elon, Tuesday night, by the score of 24-23. However, press reports rate Guilford as "one of the best defensive teams ever seen on the Christian floor." So with this report, and the rate at which the Phantoms have been traveling for the last few games, a stiff contest should be the menu for Friday night.

Previous to the varsity title, Coach Belding will pit his Tar Babies against the Oxford High five. The Heels have been hard at work since the holidays, and if they continue the form shown in overwhelming the Four Oaks aggregation, previous to the holidays, the Oxford High quint, headed by Tony Remson—of All-State football fame—should be in for a hot time of it. This game is carded for 7 o'clock.

The probable starting varsity line-ups:

Carolina	Pos.	Guilford
Hackney	Forward	Hayworth
Satterfield	Forward	Coble
Vanstony	Center	Moore
Morris (C)	Guard	Yelverton
Dodderer	Guard	Coletrane

The D. K. E. fraternity was entertained Saturday night at the Carolina Theatre.

Hibbard Warns

Students Should Take Required Work First, Says Dean of Arts School.

Addison Hibbard, chairman of the University Committee of Deans, issued a notice yesterday afternoon calling the attention of students in undergraduate courses to the regulation of the University which states that "In case freshman courses are taken after the student's sixth quarter or sophomore courses are taken after his ninth quarter only half credit is allowed on those courses."

This rule went into effect with the class entering in 1925 and governs all registration since that time. Dean Hibbard stated there has been an increasing tendency on the part of students to overlook the rule, with the result that they lose part of the credit that they would otherwise receive for freshman and sophomore courses and are obliged to take extra courses to make up for this loss.

Dr. J. V. Danes Will Lecture Friday Night

'Some Problems of Human Geography' Is Subject of Address by Visitor.

Dr. Jiri V. Danes, professor of Geology at Charles University, Prague, and Czechoslovakia's most distinguished scientist, will lecture tomorrow night at 8:30 in Gerrard Hall on "Some Problems of Human Geography."

Dr. Collier Cobb, head of the University Geology Department, made the following statement in speaking of Dr. Danes: "I consider the University very fortunate in securing him as University Lecturer for January. He is an attractive lecturer, speaks excellent English, and illustrates his lectures with lantern slides of superb pictures that he has taken in his travels in connection with his subjects."

The lecturer has travelled widely, having visited the International Geographical Congresses held in this

Former Carolina Boxer To Battle F. Lewis in Raleigh Friday Night

Senior Class to Hold Meeting Tonight

Tonight at 9 o'clock in Swain Hall the Senior Class will hold its most important meeting of the year, according to Ed Hudgins, president of the class. The meeting will be strictly a business session, featured by selection of Class Day officers, dance leaders, and Senior Superlatives.

Members of the committee in charge of the program for the meeting state that it will be snappy, with no long speeches and good eats. Synopcon will be furnished by the Buccaneers while the cats are being served. Several matters, including consideration of the advisability of leaving a class memorial, will be taken up in addition to selection of the superlatives and officials to function in connection with the graduation exercises.

Selection of the senior superlatives is always a matter of keen interest to the entire campus as well as to the members of the class themselves. There is always a number of them, ranging from the most popular man and the best-looking co-ed to the best athlete and the ugliest man.

President Hudgins urged that every member of the Senior class be present—especially the co-eds. Four superlatives will be selected from the ranks of the senior co-eds.

Weaver Features

Good Audience Hears Symphonic Music Discussed at Person Hall.

Yesterday afternoon the third of Paul John Weaver's lectures on "Symphonic Music" was given in Pearson Hall at four o'clock. The lecture is one of the series begun before Christmas and to be continued each Wednesday afternoon for several weeks. Because of its nature, an appreciative audience of musicians and music lovers have been attending the series. Mr. Weaver is especially gratified over the number of students in attendance, and has expressed the hope that more will take the opportunity to study this type of music which is now coming to the front in American music circles.

Pennsylvania Fighter Expected To Be Tough Opponent for Former Student.

Ad Warren, American light-heavyweight champion and former student of the University of North Carolina, will fight Frankie Lewis of Scranton, Pa., Friday night at the City Auditorium in Raleigh. The bout will be staged under the auspices of the Pleasure Fund for the benefit of the penitentiary inmates.

The match has aroused much interest throughout the State. Reservations have been made for ringside seats from many remote towns, east and west. The little town of Edwards, where Warren was reared, has its standbys who already made seat reservations and will be there to pull for Warren. In collegiate circles, much interest has been shown over the fight, and it is understood that a great number of reservations have been made by students.

Arrangements to care for the large crowd of fans expected to attend have been made by the promoters of the bout. Besides the huge aggregation of Raleigh fans and outsiders, hundreds of college boys from Wake Forest, Duke, Carolina, and State are expected. No doubt the auditorium will be packed; however, it is large enough to hold the crowd, having a seating capacity of approximately 5000 people.

Frankie Lewis will, no doubt, prove a tough opponent for Warren. Lewis has fought in over 150 battles, of which 41 were clear knockouts for him. In addition to having fought Young Stribling in Atlanta, he has proved his ring generalship against Flannigan and Marty Galliger. Lewis has done most of his boxing in and around Baltimore, Washington, D. C., and Wheeling, West Va.

Warren has four more southern bouts to fight before leaving for New York in February. His first will be with Joe Sigmund, the South Atlantic Navy Champion. Big Ben Pound, champion of Florida, is the next on Warren's list. His third bout will be with Gunboat Williams, Navy Champion. Tentative arrangements only have been made for the fourth bout in question.
