U. N. C. LOGICAL FOR INITIAL ART SCHOOL IN SOUTH

So Says Mrs. Elizabeth O'Neill Verner In University Lecture.

IS ARTIST OF PROMINENCE

Mrs. Verner Has Distinction of Being First Woman University Lecturer; Foresees Rise of Art in South.

A woman delivered a regular University lecture here for the first time in the history of the University when Mrs. Elizabeth O'Neill Verner, noted Charleston, S. C., artist, spoke in Gerard Hall on "The South in Relation to Art" Monday night.

Mrs. Verner occupies a prominent place among present-day American artists. She is one of the foremost etchers in the country, and is a member of the New York National Arts Club and the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts.

"Unquestionably the University of North Carolina is the seat of learning in the South today," she declared. "That is the reason why our first great art school should be started here. Your Carolina Playmakers and your Music Department make a splendid foundation."

Materials in South

We have the materials here in the South for an immortal art," the speaker told her audience. "I challenge any section of the country to produce anything like what the word 'South' embraces. It tells a story of glory, suffering, prosperity, inheritance, and all those things that we have for a background."

"Sad to say, there has not been much relation between the South and art in the past, but the day is dawning when the South is to be painted. We have found that you have to make an art. Though we actually have the art here it isn't ours until we take it in. This means work, much work and hard work."

Art for South

"We have merely thought of our Southern art long enough, we have lived on imported art long enough. I personally think that it is better to grow weeds in our own garden than to import orchids."

"There is now an eager need throughout the South for art education," she declared. "Southern students have to leave the South to study."

FOOTBALL GAME THIS AFTERNOON

"Virginia" Meets "South Carolina" in Third Winter Practice Game.

In the third game of the winter practice series, Virginia meets South Carolina at 2 o'clock this afternoon in Kenan stadium.

Grady Pritchard and "Rabit" Bonner, former stars, are coaching the South Carolina team, while Tom Young and George McDaniel, letter men of the past season, are tutoring the Virginians. Albert Whisnant is the only monogram man on the Cavaliers outfit and is assisted in the backfield by Maus, Wagner, and Erickson. Steve Furches, who alternated with Whisnant in running the team in the fall of 1927, is at the helm of the Virginia team, and has with him Phil Jackson and Spaulding, who were beginning to make a good showing at the close of the past collegiate season but did not play enough to be awarded letters.

The other man is House, up from the freshman team, who made a good record as fullback with that squad. Nelson Howard, with the Palmetto lads, is the only letter linesman on either of the two elevens. The others are varsity reserves or freshmen.

Exam to Remove French Conditions

Barker, who is in charge of the examinations. Mr. Barker is anxious to confer with all who are planning to take an examination then, and requests that they see him during the coming week on the third floor of Murphey.

Boxers Will Meet Georgia and Wrestlers Face Duke in Double Bill at Tin Can this Evening

First Bargain-Bill of Season Promises to Be Hard Fought Affair.

DUKE HAS STRONG TEAM

University of Georgia Bringing Pugilistic Team of Unknown Strength; Boxing Starts at 7:30 O'clock, Wrestling to Follow.

The first big boxing-wrestling show of the season is carded for the Tin Can tonight. While the basketeers are matching shots with Duke at Durham, the Carolina boxers will take on the University of Georgia outfit at 7:30 o'clock, and the Duke mat team will furnish the opposition for the Tar Heel grapplers one hour later.

Both of these exhibitions are booked as feature numbers, and to them the Carolina coaches, Rowe and Quinlan, are pointing their proteges. These two crucial events have been the cause of extra stiff practice sessions during the entire week, and as a result the two aggregations are primed for the affairs of tonight.

The Methodists from the Durham institution have, undoubtedly, one of the strongest mat teams in the country this season. Led by Captain Hank Culp, the highly touted All-South-Atlantic unlimited star, the Dukesters have impressive wins over some of the outstanding wrestling teams of this and other sections. The big feather in the Blue Devil cap is a decisive win over the strong Navy aggregation at Annapolis. Then another outstanding Duke victory is the 22 to 3 decision over State College. The Tar Heels won from the same institution by a 13 1-2 to 9 1-2 count. So a victory from the Blue Devils will bring added laurels to Quinlan's men. With the improvement that the Carolina cohorts have shown recently the Devils are in for a stiff match tonight.

Following the Duke affair Coach Rowe will pit his latest edition of pugs against the Georgians. Carolina whipped this team last season by a comfortable 5-2 margin. The Tar Heels will meet them here again this year in top form. With a 4 to 3 loss to Virginia against them last Saturday, the Heels came back to win over by Duke 6-1 count Wednesday night at Durham. After several shifts and changes Rowe has a settled aggregation of fighters now, and an aggregation that will fight from going to gong.

Coach Quinlan announces that he will start the same seven that thrashed State, in the go against Duke. This lineup shows D. Moore in the 115 division; Thompson in the 125; Wood in the 135; Abbott in the 145; R. Moore in the 158; Twiford in the 175; and Morehead in the unlimited section.

The most likely seven battlers to face the Georgia Bull-Dogs includes Coley, bantam; White, feather; Allen, lightweight; Captain Butler, welterweight; Brown, middleweight; Sapp, lightweight; and Shuford, heavyweight.

Maj. Phillips to Talk in Chapel Monday on State Opportunities

The eighth of the series of talks being conducted in Chapel by the Bureau of Vocational Information will be featured Monday by an address by Major Wade H. Phillips, Director of the State Department of Conservation and Development, on the subject of "The Opportunities in North Carolina Today."

The Bureau of which Major Phillips is head has been doing extensive work in advertising the state. The economic resources have been surveyed by his staff and the results of the researches has been spread over the country. Only recently the Department issued a book called "North Carolina, the Fifth State in the Union" in which the state's bid for new manufacturing plants was emphasized by the great amount of natural products and the nearness of raw materials.

The Major has been very busy with his work and is well acquainted with the possibilities and the opportunities that are open in the state today.

Undefeated

Captain Ed Butler, of the Boxing team, has fought his way to a place among the South's most outstanding amateur fighters, having never lost an intercollegiate bout during his three years with the team, and being present holder of the Southern Conference title in the welterweight division.

This season he has won all three of his fights, and may be seen in action tonight against the University of Georgia mittmen. It is intimated that he might prove a formidable candidate for the American Olympic club when eliminations are held this spring.

FINAL PLANS FOR MID-WINTER HOPS

German Club Executive Committee Arranges Details for Approaching Dances.

The executive committee of the German Club met Thursday night to put the finishing touches on the plans for the mid-winter dances. The dances to be held in Bynum gymnasium next week-end, according to their decision, will be five in number beginning Friday afternoon, February 17, and lasting through Saturday evening.

The dances include the Junior prom on Friday afternoon, the Gorgon's Head ball Friday evening, and the German club dance Saturday night. The Saturday morning hop will not be assigned to any sponsor. The dance Saturday afternoon will be given by the Delta Tau Delta fraternity, which will be holding its Southern Convention on the Hill at that time.

One of the outstanding features of the dances, besides the music of the popular Oliver Naylor's Orchestra, will be the decorations to be installed

Dr. Chase Eulogizes Everett In Talk to Chapel Students

The life of William Nash Everett, the late Secretary of State, was held up to University students by President Harry W. Chase, in a chapel address yesterday as "one of the best examples of a man whose ambitions were not limited to mere money-making, but who devoted a large portion of his time to the promotion of fine causes."

Dr. Chase was discussing money-making and service as rival ambitions and cited the life of Mr. Everett as one who combined the two in admirable manner.

"You who are still plastic with brewing dreams and ambitions can well look to this great man as an example of devotion to fine causes," Dr. Chase declared.

"I do not mean to say that making money is not important," Dr. Chase

MOVEMENT AFOOT TO PUT POLITICS BEFORE STUDENTS

Senator Copeland, of New York, Finds Himself Unable to Appear Here.

OTHERS TO BE SECURED

Meeting This Morning to Formulate Plans for Presenting National Issues to Carolina Students; Clubs May Be Organized.

In accordance with the policy of arousing student interest in national candidates for President, announced by Dave Carroll and endorsed by the TAR HEEL, Senator Royal S. Copeland of New York was invited to speak here. Senator Copeland has expressed his regret that lack of time prevents his accepting the invitation.

Senator Copeland was asked to speak here after President Harry W. Chase had approved the idea of having well known figures in politics invited to Chapel Hill to endorse different candidates before the student body. Mr. Louis Graves, a good friend of Senator Copeland, wrote to urge him to come here if possible. George Gordon Battle, noted New York lawyer and alumnus of North Carolina, was also asked to use his influence.

The movement to crystallize expression of interest in national candidates on the campus was inaugurated with the editorial, "Politics! Politics!", which appeared in Thursday's issue of the Tar Heel. Plans have been made and are being carried out to make the movement successful. Brownlow Jackson, chairman of the State Republican Committee has been asked to designate available speakers for Republican candidates. Chairman Whitener of the Democratic Committee will be asked to furnish speakers to support the candidacy of Lowden. In the near future clubs will be organized to support the various candidates, and a program of speeches will be worked out and presented.

The following students have been asked to help formulate the plans for campaigns. They are requested to (Continued on page four)

Carolina Drama on Radio Monday Night

Prof. Koch Will Be in Charge of University Hour.

The sixth University Radio Hour to be broadcast from WPTF, Raleigh, next Monday afternoon at five o'clock, will be devoted to drama. Monday begins National Drama Week, and the University is uniting with 32 radio stations over the country in a nation wide dramatic program. Professor F. H. Koch, director of the Carolina Playmakers, will conduct the hour.

Professor Koch will speak on the subject, "Plays in North Carolina," and will trace the progress made in the Tar Heel state along dramatic lines. He will read the first play ever written for the Carolina Playmakers, "When Witches Ride." This play was written by Elizabeth Lay, who is now Mrs. Paul Green. This one-act play has great possibilities for radio production, according to Morgan Vining, who acts as announcer for the Extension University Radio Hour, which is conducted by the Extension Division.

POTTERY LECTURE MONDAY EVENING

Mr. and Mrs. Busbee To Give Illustrated Lecture on Jugtown Handicraft.

At 8:30 o'clock on Monday evening at the Playmaker Theatre Jacques and Juliana Busbee will give a lecture entitled "The Jugtown Pottery, a North Carolina Folk-craft." The lecture will be illustrated by an exhibit of pottery and by the making of pottery on the stage by two potters whom Mr. and Mrs. Busbee are bringing with them from Jugtown. Mr. and Mrs. Busbee are brought to Chapel Hill under the auspices of the Carolina Playmakers and the art department of the Chapel Hill Community Club. There will be no admission charge.

Mr. Busbee was sent to Roanoke Island by the North Carolina Historical Commission in 1907, to paint settings along the coast of North Carolina for the Jamestown Exposition. He became interested in the Jugtown community and found the people to be descended from the English, Staffordshire potters. Mr. Busbee became so interested that he renounced his profession as a portrait painter to train the younger members of the community in pottery and has organized in Jugtown a folkcraft center. He now has a market in New York for a large amount of his pottery.

Prof. Harland Goes On Lecture Tour to New England States

J. P. Harland, professor of archaeology in the University, is leaving today for a lecture tour of six days under the auspices of the Archaeological Institute of America. He will speak in six colleges and universities in the New England states.

Professor Harland is one of America's most noted authorities on archaeology and pre-historic art. He has recently returned from Greece where he was in charge of certain excavations there. The recognition that comes with his having been asked to give this series of lectures is considered a signal both to him and the University.

The tour will include Harvard, Yale, and Columbia Universities, Wesleyan College, and an art association at Newport, R. I. The Institute wanted to add a number of engagements to this list but Professor Harland could not spare the time from his work here.

The series will deal with the pre-historic Greece and recent excavations. Each lecture will be illustrated with lantern slides made from Professor Harland's own pictures.

Sheik and ye shall find.—Idaho Yarn.

Prospects Poorer with Elongated Guard Missing from Line-up.

VANSTORY BACK IN PLAY

Carolina Still Stands Good Chance to Win, Think Most Sport Writers; "Red" Price Back in Condition.

Carolina faces Duke tonight in Durham with poorer prospects than she did last week, having Big Bill Dodderer with a bad hand so that he will probably be unable to get in the game.

In addition, Duke is at home tonight, which is a distinct advantage, and having lost one contest to the Heels already, the Blue Devils will be in a better position to cope with the rush that has overrun every team in the state so far.

The loss of Dodderer, one of the main factors of the Phantoms' tight defense, would count heavily, but with Vanstory back at the guard position, the situation is not so bad as it would otherwise be. "Red" Price is also in condition to play again, which helps maintain the hopes of Carolina supporters for another state title and an unbroken line of victories in the state.

Carolina surprised everybody by trouncing Duke almost with a double score last Saturday, completely preventing the fast sophomore quartet from Durham from making the impressive showing to which they were accustomed.

Although it is agreed by most neutral sports writers that Carolina stands a good chance to chalk up another win tonight, they also expect that the game will be much closer this time, with the Blue Devils being at home on their own court, and the chances of Hillians being without the aid of one of their defensive stars.

The Duke Chronicle admits the Tar Heels deserved the first game of the series, and has excellent changes of taking the Southern championship, but it also predicts that the Devils will make a hard fight to win the game tonight and that a surprise, unlike that of last week, may result in the gymnasium in Durham tonight.

TAR BABIES WILL MEET BLUE IMPS

Return Match Between Duke and Carolina Freshmen in Durham Tonight.

The return contest between the Carolina Tar Babies and the Duke Blue Imps will rival the varsity encounter between the two institutions tonight, for the Carolina yearlings will be as anxious to avenge their defeat of last Saturday as will be the Blue Imps to make it two in a row.

The absence of Captain Phil Sher from the Carolina last Saturday weakened the Frosh's defense as the Durham boy is one of the best freshman guards in the state. However, Marpet has been showing up well in his new position and the Carolina defense should be improved with this week's practice. Staton and Rogers accounted for more than half of the Blue Imps' points last week and will be watched closely by the Tar Baby guards. Neiman, Marpet, and Edwards have been scoring in all the Freshman contests to date and while Crouch failed to ring up his usual number of goals, all four are expected to give the Duke Frosh a run for their money tonight.

The Carolina line-up is expected to be the same as started last week unless Sher is able to return to his old position at guard. Staton is expected to begin in the first line-up for the Imps, otherwise the Duke starting team is expected to be the same as in the first game.

Misses Katherine McKinnon and Isobel Wenholt were joint hostesses at an afternoon tea Friday from four-thirty until six o'clock at the Woman's building, in honor of Miss Zella Zenf of Detroit, Michigan. Miss Zenf is the guest of Miss Peggie Slavens, and has been an honoree at a number of social functions since her arrival in Chapel Hill.
