

Dramatic Festival Will Start March 8

Over Sixty Dramatic Clubs Enrolled for Preliminaries.

The first rounds of the annual spring Dramatic Festival, which will include the production of original and standard one act plays, will begin on the 8th of March according to a statement received from the office of the bureau of Community Drama.

A large number of letters have been coming to the director of the bureau asking for information about the festival and the qualifications for admittance into the field of competition for state honors. At present over 60 of the dramatic clubs of the state have enrolled for places in the preliminaries.

This year will mark a new step in the field of state-wide dramatics and in the spring festival. For some time the colleges and the local communities have not been able to participate in the festival. Under the plan for this year, the festival will last for three days, giving ample time for the presentation of both original and standard plays from the three separate groups of clubs, the high school associations, the community groups, and the college dramatic organizations.

DAVE CARROLL

Though it would be most unwise for me to incur the wrath of the matchless Dynamite Senate, the greatest assemblage of pundits known to grace the earth, I don't believe that even that supernal organization has a man within its fold comparable to Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce for the United States and possibly the Republican nominee for the Presidency. Hoover is the village smithy of national politics; a mighty man is he, hegorra.

Accomplishments

It would be futile to attempt a summary of this man's achievements in the length of a column. Doubtless he has discharged more difficult work than any other living human being. Since his birth at West Branch, Iowa, in 1874, Herbert Hoover's record has been an endless story of Herculean energy applied to human problems. A maze of statistics follows his name in Who's Who. Foreign countries have elected him to high honors; scientific academies have bedecked him with laurels; universities have strung a Chinese alphabet of degrees on his name. Therefore, I am compelled to list only a minute part of this Titan's accomplishments.

In Brief—His Work

Unemployment: In 1921 and 1922 Hoover dealt the tyrannical business cycle a telling blow; too long had its caprice thrown millions out of work. By the distribution of accurate statistics, he warned business men against wild-cat schemes, thereby averting disasters. He promoted a longer working year in the railroad and building industries, thereby helping labor.

Dams and Waterways: Promoted the great dam on the Colorado River; also the St. Lawrence River canal. Developed scheme of inland navigation for all rivers in this country, according to regional systems. Furthered movement to restrain the turbulent Mississippi.

Air and Ether: He advocated and secured regulations concerning the advancement of aviation. . . . Federal regulation of radio broadcasting.

War Service: Every schoolboy knows that Herbert Hoover actually fed Belgium, Austria, Russia, Germany, Balkan states, and hosts of other peoples. I pass over this feat because it is known throughout the world.

And Even Under-ground: He secured laws facilitating exploration of mines containing potash (for farmers) and wells containing helium gas.

Big Business: Successful advocacy of trade associations to eliminate dishonesty. Simplification of patent laws. Enunciation of his great doctrine against waste of time and substance in American production. Urged concentration on useful types of commodities and elimination of worthless industrial products.

Extra-curriculum Activities: Despite the demands of his official duties, Hoover is the chief executive and advisor of more national welfare organizations—worthwhile one for the health of children, scientific research, etc.—than any other man in this country.

Internal Affairs

For the sake of brevity, I quote directly: "His upbuilding of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce in the Commerce Department into a genuine 'service bureau' for the individual American exporter, no matter how small. His participation in the settlement of European debts to the American Treasury. His feeding of Russia in the days of famine. His combat against artificially high prices fixed upon us by foreign combinations in essential commodities. His resolute resistance to the financing of such foreign combinations by American capital against the interest of the American consumer. His successful rectification, by law, of American taxation on Americans doing business in China."

The Hoover Myth

It is thought by some that a man so efficient as Hoover is a better cabinet official than he would be a President. This discrepancy it attributed to his failure to show that he is a statesman as well as an administrator. But William Hard in the American Review of Reviews, which we have quoted and robbed of material, avers that Hoover is a man of intense imagination, humane bearing, and dramatic decisions. To that article we refer all doubting Thomases. It paints the picture of a man unlike the machine which most people mistake for Herbert Hoover.

CLYDE DUNN NEW FROSH TREASURER

Election of New Treasurer Features Freshman Class Smoker Wednesday.

Featured by the talks of Charlie Jonas, president of the student body, and Professor Frank Graham of the University's history department, the freshman class held its first smoker of the year Wednesday night at Swain hall. The election of a new treasurer was also held, Clyde Dunn being selected for the position.

After a course of salad and ice cream was served, during which Kay Kyser's Orchestra played, President Strudwick Nash announced that as the regularly elected treasurer had withdrawn from the University it was necessary to elect his successor. However, he stated that he understood that the former treasurer was contemplating re-entering the University in March, and called for an expression of opinion as to whether a new officer was to be elected or to wait on the decision of the former treasurer. It was unanimously voted to elect another treasurer at the time. Nominations were called for; the names of Clyde Dunn, Paul Wimbish, Bill Parham, and J. C. Goodwin were offered. Clyde Dunn received a majority on the first ballot.

Charlie Jonas was then introduced to the freshmen by the president. Jonas spoke on the honor system and Carolina Spirit.

Following Jonas, Professor Frank Graham spoke on the honor system and the unlimited possibilities of the freshman class. He related several interesting anecdotes concerning former freshman classes. Then he stated that he wished to impress three things upon the class. Athletics, honor, and books. Side-line athletes were scored by the professor.

Detroit Delegates To Speak in Pittsboro

Three delegates from the University who attended the Detroit Student Volunteer Convention held during the Christmas holidays, will present reports of the Conference to the Christian Endeavor of the Pittsboro Presbyterian Church tomorrow night.

The students making the talks are Walter E. Crissman, Wyeth Ray, and Miss Vance Thompson. The Detroit meeting was attended by seven delegates from Carolina. These students have made reports to several various organizations since their return.

Mystery Man Coming To Carolina Theatre

Genesta Will Escape from Barrel of Water on Stage.

Genesta, "Wizard of Wonders," associate of the late Harry Houdini and recognized as one of the leading men in the mystery show business today, will make personal appearances at the Carolina theatre Monday afternoon and evening, according to an announcement made today by the management of the theatre.

Genesta is presenting his original and death-defying escape from a barrel of water and will do it on the stage at the Carolina twice on Monday.

This act, which has been branded as one of the most daring in the show business today, has been played from coast to coast, and Genesta brings with him press notices from some of the leading professors and, in fact, from leaders in the mystery show business, declaring that they are completely mystified by his escape from the barrel of death.
