PARAGRAPHS

"Science Students Perform Wonders," headlines the N. C. C. W. Carolinian. Well now, aren't they some of the Glorious Girls?

We haven't heard nary a word of late as to whether Al Smith is still unavailable.

Examinations and spring holidays are coming, but mightn't someone recollect that spring elections are also due within the next few weeks?

"Chicago Greets Two Noted French Flyers," headlines a daily. Probably welcomed them with a miniature gang warfare or a bombing exhibition.

MOSTLY ABOUT SUMMER SCHOOL

It is well for the undergraduate student to begin considering plans for the coming summer, though assailed with approaching examinations and spring holidays and rumblings of politics, national and local. The appearance of the preliminary announcement of the University summer school suggests a profitable and enjoyable way in which students may spend the summer quarter.

The old purpose of the summer school—that of training teachers and giving instruction to raise the standard of their certificates, and to provide instruction for delinquent students—has given way to the modern concept of making the summer quarter one of the worth-while periods in pursuing an education. The University summer session has come to be recognized as the fourth quarter of the scholastic year. Courses galore that lead to the various degrees are offered. Annually many students remain, or come, for the summer school to accelerate the process of graduating. The quality of instruction, the strength of the faculty and the quality of the students are on par with those of the regular session. Incidentally, the University of North Carolina summer school is the largest and ranks as probably the best in the South.

The two terms comprising the summer session last year ended the latter part of August. Dean N. W. Walker, director of summer school, declared that it had been the most successful session in the history of the institution from the standpoint of the faculty, quality of the student and the work done, and the general lack of disciplinary action on the part of the faculty executive committee. Director Walker announces that he expects an even larger and more successful session this summer.

The students who have not decided how they will spend the coming summer months will do well to give the University summer school consideration.

Campus Beautiful is Victim of Careless, Thoughtless Students

Editor's note. The editorial article published below was written by a member of the Grounds Committee recently appointed by the Central Administrative Council of the student government and announced by President Charlie Jonas. The TAR HEEL commends the thought contained in the article to the student body, faculty and others, and supports the author in hope that the abuses of the beauty of the campus can be curbed.

(By Charlie Nelson, Member Grounds Committee)

A matter which has caused grave concern to some of us here at Carolina is the habit some have of making unsightly paths across the campus. If we could all be concerned this practice would soon cease.

We should all consider this matter as our problem and set about to solve it. A little thoughtfulness is all that is necessary. Before we came here we all noticed and perhaps helped our mothers and fathers make a beautiful place which we call home. In a few years we shall all have the same problem to work out again. While we are at Carolina we should feel that the campus is no less our home for the four years that we are here, and should lend every effort to make it as beautiful as we know how. The actual work of this is done by the University, and so we are spared most of the labor. All that is asked of us is a little cooperation, a little thoughtfulness.

Paths have been laid out for our convenience; we should use them and not make others which are very unsightly. A glaring example of thoughtlessness can be pointed out in the path that has been worn from Old East to the gate opposite the post office. How much time is saved? About thirty seconds! But how much is lost? The beauty of the campus is greatly marred.

Those in charge of the grounds have put down paths wherever possible for the convenience of those who have worn them. They have indicated their willingness to do their part. But this must be taken into consideration: they have gone to the trouble of putting down paths for our convenience. Shouldn't we co-operate just a little and be willing to take a few extra steps, and not demand a path where it would be unsightly? Shouldn't we be willing to do our part to make our campus one of the prettiest in the country? If each of us were laying out our own yard around our own house wouldn't we sacrifice convenience for beauty in some instances? This is our "yard" for four years so let's be willing to give up a little for beauty's sake and not take so many short cuts.

The beauty of this campus has always been something of which Carolina men have been justly proud. Years ago our fathers were kept off the grass by fines imposed by the Phi and Di societies which were governing bodies on the campus. This was done because Carolina men were proud of their campus and wanted to deter any of the thoughtless among their number from destroying its beauty. Today we, the students of Carolina, are the governing body and must look to ourselves for our discipline. The duty rests on all our shoulders for we have this heritage from those who have gone before. We should feel our responsibility and meet it like men; and, imbued with a spirit of what is often termed civic pride, hand it on to others who come after us. Taking into consideration the period of transition that we are now going through and which naturally causes things to be very much torn up, we should do our own part in keeping this campus beautiful.

Thoughtfulness and co-operation should be our motto and with this in mind we should develop a feeling of pride in the beauty of our campus which will go down to those who come after us as a tradition. In later years when we return as alumni we will see a place of beauty, and will be filled with a mixed feeling of pride and satisfaction knowing that we did our part.

Seniors at Furman University have voted to discard canes and wear derbies as a mark of distinction. Furman seniors do not need derbies as marks of distinction.

The Maroon and Gold, Elon College weekly, was taken over for one issue by the freshman class. Slight misuse of diction, according to our opinion. Should have been "taken in."

Six Chesterfield county, S. C., schools have organized a dramatic club to promote dramatic and social life and to raise money. Perhaps they will call on the Playmakers for guidance.

University of Richmond had a float in the Stadium Pageant Parade held in that city recently. It is rumored that at the dances, our University students have enough to float anything.

Students, soldiers, and members of labor organizations will be admitted free to the gallery in the coming opera season in Chile. University students would be quick to make this a peanut gallery.

John Grier Hibbens, President of Princeton University, says college men have too much money to spend at college. The announcement failed, however, to give the salary of Mr. Hibbens.

Duke University has a plan that the student council thinks will eliminate cheating on quizzes; the names of offenders will be published in the Chronicle. Well, here's one way to get one's name in the paper.

High school graduates in South Dakota who desire to attend colleges may borrow money from a loan fund if endorsements can be obtained from three responsible persons. But is a college education worth the trouble?

The buttons on men's cuffs were first used so the cuff could be opened and buttoned back when duelling, et al. Now the buttons are for women to hang on to—or pull off. They never get sewed on.

A correspondence course in Esperanto, supplemented by radio talks, is given by the extension division of the University of Minnesota. The radio talks are probably being made so the students can sleep in local atmosphere.

Roller skates and bicycles are fast taking the place of cars at Stanford University as means of campus conveyances. The co-eds probably are more accustomed to roller skates—they can be carried more easily in cars.

Three hundred students from Princeton will go to Argentina soon for study and three hundred students from Argentina will probably come to this country. Now who was it who perpetuated the fallacy about a fair exchange being no robbery?

Daily Kansan says redecoration has been the favorite indoor sport at Brown University since the police recently searched the men's dormitories for signs lifted from places of business. No mention of how many students are now decorating police headquarters.

Peru has passed a law prohibiting coeducational schools because this type of education has proved unsuccessful. Question is: Was Peru attempting to popularize companionate marriages; is it curtailing the students' pleasures; or does it think this type of 'education' does not pay?

The Student Council of the University of Akron has passed a rule preventing freshmen from voting or holding freshman offices and disenfranchising all freshmen who are found guilty of not wearing caps and arm bands or parking their cars on the campus. Why not expel the freshman class and have it over with.

Copy of the Japanese edition of Professor Grove's new publication, Rural Mind and Social Weijare, has recently been received in Chapel Hill. Professor Groves has several new books on press which will appear soon. American Marriage and Family Relations, to be published by Henry Holt and Company, is expected to be off the press soon. Another book which will be published shortly is Marriage Crisis.

Never Gets a "Bite" From This Tobacco

Jasper, Tenn. March 23, 1927

Larus & Bro. Co. Richmond, Va. Gentlemen:

I have always wanted to smoke a pipe. After several attempts I gave my "taste" up, for with each trial I got a blistered tongue.

One evening, when looking over a certain outdoor magazine, I read that a certain fisherman could catch more fish when using "Edgeworth," so I decided I would try "his" tobacco—for I am no poor fisherman! The next day I tried to secure Edgeworth. The local country storekeeper did not have it, so I sent by a friend to the city for my first Edgeworth. Two things have happened: I still smoke Edgeworth, and the local storekeeper always has a supply.

I catch fish and never get "a bite" from Edgeworth!

Yours for keeps,

gets you there and back in Cunard Comfort... without severely punishing the bankroll

Sailing "Tourist Third" is adventure that begins when you go up the gangplank.

You will dance on moonlit decks to the rhythm of a college orchestra no feet have yet resisted. You will swim in salt water in an improvised deck tank. You'll play the delightful deck games that youth-on-a-lark deifies. And there'll be bridge,—and conversation,—and sometimes lost sleep! But of course you have your choice between missing sleep and fun.

Do you realize how very inexpensively this can be done on big Cunard ships such as the CARONIA, CARMANIA, SCYTHIA, LACONIA, LANCASTRIA and TUSCANIA? You are berthed in a comfortable, clean cabin, you have good food, nicely served, with ample deck space and you enjoy the company of your own kind of people... because they are others like you who feel the adventurous call of traveling Tourist Third Cabin.
