

Coach Collins Sends Football Men Through Stiff Scrimmages; Meet Wake Forest Next Week

Two Days of Fair Weather Give Coaches Chance to Work Tar Heels.

Heavy scrimmage work is due to greet the Tar Heels this afternoon. Thursday and yesterday the coaches sent the varsity men through scrimmages and the same schedule is likely to be followed this afternoon, for only a week remains before the opening game, and Coach Collins must fill several vacancies caused by injuries to men likely to get the call against the Demon Deacons.

The Tar Heels finished their preliminaries and conditioning exercises during the first week, and the second week found the entire squad scrimmaging in the afternoon sessions. That is the first test of mettle of candidates, and the Tar Heels met it well. The ends and backs started it off Monday and Tuesday, and on Wednesday the Carolina coaches sent two full elevens into the fray.

The coaches have made two shifts in order to bring the Carolina forward wall up to the standard of former years.

The two shifts are in the line and affect the lettermen only, with Nelson Howard moved from his right tackle position to the left tackle berth left vacant by Captain Garrett Morehead last season. Ray Farris, scrappy guard who fought his way to an All-Southern berth in three games last fall, has taken over Howard's post on the right side of the line.

Both of these shifts are calculated to strengthen the big blue line, since it places Howard—experienced as he is in tackle play—on the left flank with the rookie guard who may replace Farris. On the other hand, Farris will be materially aided in learning tackle tactics since he can play beside such a powerful guard as Shuler. Eskew or Blackwood seem the logical candidates for Farris' old guard position.

This shifting about was thoroughly tested in the daily scrimmages last week, and the coaches seemed pleased. It is evident that the University will have another of those strong lines that have become traditional here.

Heavy rains this week have put a crimp in Tar Heel practice plans, but the coaches have narrowed the likely squad down to a prophetic minimum, and observers have already begun naming probable starting teams. Sam Presson, regular end of last year, is out with an injury and will probably be the only one of ten lettermen to watch the entire contest from the bench.

Albert Whisnant, veteran quarter, has met heavy competition from Erickson and Gray, but the Charlotte boy will probably start against the Deacons. How long he stays in the game is a matter of conjecture, for "Mac" Gray is showing the best form of his three years on the varsity squad. If Whisnant does make the grade during the next week, there will be only three posts left to the care of youngsters.

Julian Fenner, freshman end in 1926, is a husky prospect for Presson's right flank, and the former Woodberry play will probably get the starting call if he recovers from a shoulder injury. The other positions will go to veterans.

After all is said and done—with the Tar Heels on the home-stretch of pre-season training—the first team to face the Deacons may show Sapp, left end; Howard, left tackle; Blackwood, or Eskew, left guard; Captain Schwartz, center; Shuler, right guard; Farris, right tackle; Fenner or Holt, right end; Whisnant, quarterback; Ward, left halfback; Spaulding, right halfback; and Foard, fullback.

Glee Club To Hold Tryouts for Singers

The University Glee Club will hold tryouts for new members Monday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in the practice room at Person Hall. All who are in school this year, whether freshmen or upperclassmen, are eligible. All who wish to try for places in the club are advised to be present as this is the only tryout which will be held this quarter.

The Glee Club has taken several extensive tours throughout the United States and one two months tour of Europe. The management is definitely considering a tour more pretentious than any of the past for next summer. Since members gain priority by length of membership, it is advisable that all be present at the tryout.

The Philanthropic assembly will hold the first meeting of the year Tuesday evening at 7:15. Only old members will attend this meeting.

Applications of new men wishing to join the society will be received at a meeting one week later.

Coach Collins

"Chuck" Collins, head coach of the Carolina football team, is beginning his third season as chief mentor of the Tar Heels, and indications point to a successful season for the charges of the former Notre Dame player.

ALUMNI TO GET CHOICE OF SEATS

Old University Men May Secure Reserved Seats for Games First.

Alumni of the University will be accorded special consideration in the distribution of tickets to the five football games to be played in the Kenan Memorial Stadium here this fall, it was announced today.

Application cards for the home games were sent out from the Central Alumni Office yesterday to the alumni in "good standing," meaning those who have shown an active interest in the work of the Alumni Association. The cards will be sent to the remainder of the alumni on September 10.

Carolina's first home game will be with Wake Forest here on September 29. Last year some 13,000 saw that opening game, many of whom got in free because there were not enough ticket booths. With the Kenan Stadium providing seats for 24,000, no difficulty is anticipated in accommodating the still larger crowd expected for the game this year. Too, there will be plenty of ticket booths for those who fail to reserve seats.

The second home game will be with V. P. I. on October 20, when rivalry with the Gobblers will be renewed after a lapse of several years.

The biggest home game of the season is expected to be the clash with Georgia Tech, Southern Conference title holder, on October 27. Graduate Manager Charles T. Woolen has been receiving batches of applications for reserved seats to this game ever since it was placed in the schedule last fall. Indications are that Kenan Stadium will be sold out before the date of the big contest.

The fourth home game is with South Carolina on November 10 and the fifth is with Duke on December 8. South Carolina's football stock has mounted rapidly in recent years, that game should draw well; while the game with Duke should stand a good chance of being another Stadium filler.

WILLIAM BARROWS KILLED BY FRIEND

The University student body and the many friends of William Barrows will regret to learn of his death on August 11, at his home near New London, Connecticut. Barrows, with a friend, was out hunting rats in a barn near his home when the gun which his friend was carrying accidentally discharged shooting Barrows in the thigh. It is reported that he bled to death before he could be carried to a hospital.

Barrows was a member of Chi Phi fraternity and had previously attended Amherst College for a year. He entered here as a Sophomore this past fall and during his stay here made many friends and acquaintances. He was an occasional contributor to the Tar Heel, and active in many sports on the campus. The University regrets to hear of his death, for in him it has lost an earnest student, a gentleman, and an enthusiastic supporter of Carolina.

Captain Schwartz

Captain Harry Schwartz (above) star center on the University football squad, has for years been one of the outstanding figures on southern gridirons. Four years an All-Southern High School center at Charlotte High, Schwartz again rated the all-star berth as a freshman at the University, and last fall in his second varsity season he was prominently mentioned for All-Conference. He has never been outplayed by a pivot opponent, and he begins his final varsity campaign as one of the bulwarks of his team's forward wall.

MURPHY ASSAILS SENATOR SIMMONS IN ADDRESS HERE

Veteran Politician from Rowan Bitterly Denounces Simmons as "Judas Iscariot."

Speaking at a Democratic rally here last night, Walter Murphy of Rowan county, veteran member of the General Assembly and nominee for reelection, bitterly assailed the Anti-Smith stand taken by Senator F. M. Simmons.

Declaring that he wished to speak in a language that nobody could misunderstand, he described Senator Simmons as "the traitor, the Benedict Arnold, and Judas Iscariot of North Carolina Democracy."

The address was the first of a series that are to be delivered here during the fall by representatives of both of the major political parties, with the view to having both sides presented, as has been the custom in the past.

Mr. Murphy was frequently applauded, especially when he declared: "I have told the voters of my county that I don't want a single one of them to vote for me unless they can vote for my captain, and the captain of your Democracy and my Democracy today is Alfred E. Smith."

"It is a matter of small moment to me whether or not I go to the State Legislature," he added, "but I am supremely anxious that the people of North Carolina observe allegiance to the party that brought them out from under the yoke of the carpet-bag rule and has been chiefly responsible for their progress of the last sixty years."

"I ask you: How can any red-blooded Democrat forget his allegiance to such a party? I believe in following the leader selected by the majority. I gave my heart to the Democratic party years ago, I have never hesitated to follow its chosen captain, and I pray God that I will never be fool enough to take any other course."

Mr. Murphy asserted that the "real issues of the campaign have been obscured by the question of prohibition and religious intolerance. The real issues," he said, "are the record of dishonesty, corruption, and fraud under the administrations of Harding and Coolidge."

"It is a strange thing," the speaker continued, "that the Senator now opposing Governor Smith is the same man who once said that his definition of a good Democrat was one who voted the whole ticket from constable to President."

Referring to Mr. Hoover, he said it was also "strange that it took the Republican candidate 50 years to find out what country he was a citizen of and what party he was a member of."

YACKETY YACK NOTICE

The Business Staff of the 1929 Yackety Yack will meet this afternoon in the Yackety Yack office at 2:00 o'clock. The new staff for this year will be formed, and every energetic man should report. There is plenty of work for everybody, so don't be backward.

The Yackety Yack office is in the basement of the Alumni building, around the corner from the Tar Heel office.

MEMBERS OF RUSSIAN NOBILITY PARTICIPATE IN "THE MYSTERIOUS LADY" SCENE

Poignant memories of the gay and colorful festivities that held full sway in Warsaw before the great Red tide of revolution swept away every vestige of aristocracy, came to the minds of the several hundred Russian refugees who participated in the cafe scenes for "The Mysterious Lady" at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio.

Among the group of foreign players who appeared in the scenes for the new Greta Garbo picture were a prince and a princess, two generals, eight colonels and numerous other former holders of royal military rank and honors.

Prince Yucca Troubetskoï and Princess Natalie Golitzin were the members of Russian nobility who were seen among the groups of "atmosphere" players recruited by Fred Niblo, the director for the scenes.

The cafe in which the scenes were taken was an exact duplicate of a favorite Warsaw rendezvous, where the Russian aristocracy formerly gathered for their merriest affairs and social gatherings. It was designed by Alexander Toluboff, former Russian engineer, who knew every nook and cranny so well he was able to prepare architectural sketches from memory.

Fittingly enough, Prince Troubetskoï was permitted to wear a uniform in keeping with his former rank. Ex-military officers also were given uniforms with appropriate insignia.

How Gold Prospector "Went Scotch"

Minneapolis, Minn. April 30, 1928

Larus & Bro. Co. Richmond, Va. Dear Sirs:

Two years ago last winter I went into the Red Lake gold fields in Canada. It was a tough trail from Hudson, over 140 miles of snow and ice. There were fourteen of us on the trail going in, and frequently at night when seated around a big camp fire, some one would ask me for a pipeful of Edgeworth. These Canadian boys sure like our Edgeworth.

In four weeks' time I ran out of Edgeworth. I was glad to get "most any old tobacco."

One day, however, I dropped in to Dad Brown's tent, a 72-year-old prospector, and seeing a can of Edgeworth on an improvised table, back there 150 miles from the "steel" I perked up at once, saying, "Dad, I'm plum out of tobacco—how's chance for a pipeful?" "Help yourself," he said. So pulling my heavy duty pipe from my pocket, I loaded it with Edgeworth, packing it in so tightly that I couldn't get the least bit of a draw.

I excused myself for a moment, and stepped outside to remove about three pipefuls to put in my pouch. Dad stepped out, saying, "You're worse than any Scotchman I ever saw." Then I confessed. I told him what happened to my Edgeworth—that I was just dying for a smoke, and he understood right away. He said, "Boy, Edgeworth is mighty scarce in these parts, but I reckon I can spare what's left of that can. Help yourself."

You can just bet your last nickel that I guarded this Edgeworth with extreme care until I got back to the "steel."

Yours very truly, C. M. Bahr
