

Tar Heel Paragraphics

Woodberry Forest School, located at Orange, Va., almost always contributes several men to the University football squad each year. This season there are four former Woodberry stars in Tar Heel togs, and all seem virtually assured of varsity berths. The quartet from the Old Dominion prep school are Albert Whisnant, quarterback; Julian Fenner, end; Nelson Howard, tackle; and Strudwick Nash, halfback.

"Mac" Gray, candidate for quarterback on the University football squad, seems likely to achieve an ambition in his senior year. He is remembered for saving the Duke game in 1926, running down a Duke runner from behind to prevent a tie score and possible victory in the closing minutes. Since that time he has kept trying, and this year he may make the varsity grade.

Ned Lipscomb, giant center on the Tar Heel grid squad, is keeping the Lipscomb name fresh in the minds of North Carolina football fans. He is a brother to Charlie Lipscomb, tackle on the University squad for the last three years, and Ned is even more husky than his big brother. He is understudy to Captain Harry Schwartz at center this year, and will likely see some service before the Heel eleven completes its 1928 schedule.

The University football squad has never lost a game in its new Kenan Memorial Stadium, but it will be hard pressed to keep that record clean during the 1928 season. After a mediocre start last year, the Tar Heels braced to whip both Davidson and Virginia on the new field that was dedicated last Thanksgiving. This year's schedule brings Wake Forest, V. P. L., Georgia Tech, South Carolina and Duke to Kenan Stadium.

Captain Harry Schwartz, star center on the University football team, is beginning his third and final year of varsity football at the Tar Heel institution. It also marks his eighth year as one of the South's outstanding pivot men, for he was All-Southern High School center for four years at Charlotte High before entering the University.

University football fans are praying just now that the entire Tar Heel eleven may be on par with the center trio in the Carolina line. Captain Harry Schwartz, center; and Bud Schuler and Ray Farris, guards, all won All-State berths last year and were mentioned for All-Southern posts.

The Tar Heel football squad invades the far North this season for the first time since 1923 when the University and Yale discontinued grid relations. The Tar Heels are carded to oppose Harvard at Cambridge on October 13 this year.

The football squads at the University seem to prefer linemen for captains. This is indicated by the fact that Tar Heel captains for the last seven seasons have played in the forward wall. Captain Harry Schwartz who will lead the Heels this year, plays the center position. Leaders in six seasons past include two tackles, two guards, one center and one end.

All previous records for football crowds in North Carolina may be smashed more than once during the University's 1928 season. The crowd of 28,000 that saw Carolina and Virginia dedicate Kenan Memorial Stadium here last Thanksgiving set the high mark, but University authorities expect 30,000 or more for the Georgia Tech game this fall, and the Duke-Carolina game may draw equally as well.

More than one of the University grid stars were seriously mentioned for All-Southern posts last fall, and all of them should make stronger bids during the coming campaign. Outstanding of the number are Captain Harry Schwartz, star center; Odell Sapp, 190 pound end, who stars as a receiver of forward passes; and Ray Farris peppery 180 pound guard of last season, who will perform at right tackle this fall. Southern sports writers will watch these huskies before naming their all-star elevens.

It is more than likely that eight lettermen will wear University colors into action against Wake Forest next Saturday, September 29, when the Tar Heels and Demon Deacons meet in Kenan Memorial stadium here. With ten vets back in togs, Coach Chuck Collins has all but two slated to start in that opening game. Sam Presson, regular end a year ago, is out with an injury; and Tommy Gresham and Jimmie Ward both play left halfback. One of the pair will start, but both will probably see action that day.

There is another of the Beaufort County Warrens on the University football squad this year. Addison Exum Warren, former star tackle on the Tar Heel eleven and now an outstanding heavyweight boxer, was the first of the line of eastern Carolina huskies. John Warren, a younger brother up from last year's freshman team, is out for Brother Add's right tackle berth this fall.

With two veteran left halfbacks back in camp this fall, the right side of the University backfield will be left to the care of rookies. Leon Spaulding, reserve on the Carolina eleven last season, is competing with Nash and Maus, who came up from the freshman teams of last year and the year before. Jimmie Maus, hefty threat of the 1926 Tar Babies, did not play football last year due to a summer baseball injury, but he is making a strong bid for a backfield call in early season practice.

"Bud" Eskew, promising guard on the University football squad, comes of a football family. Eskew hails from Greenville, S. C., and is a brother of the "Bud" Eskew who was captain of the Clemson college Tigers last season. The Tar Heel guard is a husky specimen of red-headed temperament and played some nice football in a number of games last fall. He is a second year varsity man, and will push someone for a regular berth this season.

LOOKING 'EM OVER With Wallace Shelton INTRAMURALLY

When the whistle blows next Saturday in Kenan Stadium to open the home football schedule of the University of North Carolina, Chief Cheer Leader Bill Chandler will be able to send the greatest band of organized cheerers into action ever known on the campus, or probably in the South, or anywhere.

The plan that will be in force this year will mark another step forward in the field of organized cheering that has come to be an University tradition. This season every Freshman registered in school will be assigned a permanent seat in Kenan Stadium, in the section directly in front of the press box, on the south side of the field, the same section occupied by the Cheerios last year. All of last year's Cheerio band will serve as group leaders under the chief cheer leader.

Bill Chandler and his staff of assistant cheer leaders will begin training the freshmen next week, with practices to be held regularly until the Wake Forest game, one week hence. The maneuvers and stunts of the new organization will follow the same lines as last year, only on a much grander scale than has ever been known here.

The Intramural Athletic department, this year under the direction of Luther Byrd and Wallace Shelton, will be run on practically the same plan as was in vogue last season, with a few changes, yet to be worked out. As yet no definite opening dates or plans are ready for announcement, lack of sufficient material temporarily holding up the opening of the football season.

However, it is sure that the pigskin season, with the same two leagues-dormitory and fraternity still in action, will open as early as Monday week. Balls will be issued to the separate units in the leagues as soon as they can be secured from the varsity and freshman teams.

UPPER CLASSES TO SMOKE SOON

Seniors Hold First Smoker Tuesday Night; Others To Follow.

Senior, Junior and Sophomore classes will have their first class smokers of the year next week. The Senior class will have its smoker on Tuesday night in Swain Hall at 9 o'clock; the Junior class will have its smoker on Wednesday night at the same place and hour. The Sophomore class smoker will be held in Swain Hall also on Thursday night at 9 o'clock. Because of the Pep meeting on next Friday night before the Wake Forest game, the freshman class will have its smoker on Monday night, Oct. 1.

Sloan Is New Chief of Local Police Force

Chief Featherstone, famed as Bootlegger's Foe, Resigns to Become Durham Cop.

Chief Featherstone of the Chapel Hill Police Force, famed captor of many a still and guardian of the public peace for many years, has left town to accept a position on the Durham force. Filling his boots and brass buttoned uniform this year is W. T. Sloan. Chief Sloan has three men under him, L. I. Rigsbee, C. H. Wright and N. Mayes. The office and headquarters of the local police has been moved to the corner of Columbia and Rosemary streets.

According to Chief Sloan the University is becoming more and more quiet each succeeding year. "I've been on the force five years," he said, "and every years there has been an improvement. There are very few boys who must be told more than once to quiet down." Chief Sloan won a place on the Democratic ticket in the recent primaries, and in the coming election will go before the voters as a candidate for the office of sheriff.

Chief Featherstone, in the course of a long and varied career, won fame as the captor of numberless illicit liquor plants in the vicinity, and as arbitrator between two enthusiastic supporters of football teams playing here. He was known as a firm but reasonable guardian of the law, and a good cop.

Local Rotary Club Hosts To Coaches

The weekly dinner of the Chapel Hill Rotary club was held on last Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock in the ball room of the Carolina Inn. Among the guests invited included President Chase, honorary member of the club, and the entire coaching staff of the University.

The opening music for the occasion was furnished by "Red" Wood who also accompanied the Rotarians in the singing of Rotary songs. Chairman E. C. Smith of the program committee presented Charlie Cash of Durham who played and sang a few numbers for the entertainment of the members and invited guests. This feature of the program was very much enjoyed by those present.

About forty-five people were present.
