

The Tar Heel

Georgia Tech and U. N. C. Clash on Kenan Field Today

Many Old Grads and Football Men Who Starred in Days of Yore Will Reune Here Today

Is Proclaimed Homecoming Day By University for All Former Athletes and Teams As Far Back as '89 Are Represented.

COME FROM FOREIGN SOIL

Much Telling of "What Used To Be Done" in Get-Together.

By M. R. ALEXANDER

If there's anything in the song about "fair weather" when "good fellows get together," today should show the fairest weather possible for the titanic struggle between Georgia Tech and the University of North Carolina in Kenan Stadium here.

The University proclaims the day Homecoming Day for all former athletes, and the "old boys" have accepted the invitation to reunite by the hundreds.

Teams from as far back as '89, when the University's first football team brestrode the gridiron and broke even on a two-game season down to last year's Blue and White aggregation, are represented. They come come back to their alma mater from widely scattered sections, two even from far off Ceylon. What yarn swapping there'll be when the "old boys" get together and tell how it "used to be done."

Rev. Lacy L. Little will, both from point of years and distance traveled, hold the rights of seniority. Dr. Little comes on furlough from Ceylon, where he is a missionary. He played on the University's first eleven in the spring of 1889 and captained the team the following year. He will have a pair of "buddies" in George M. Graham, Durham broker, who played with Dr. Little in '88 and '89 and captained the Tar Heel team in '90, and Dr. Charles S. Mangum, University professor of anatomy, who donned his football togs in 1890 and made an end post.

He will also have a fellow "Celonese" to keep him company in the person of Dr. William P. Jacobs, who was a football man in 1904, and who is now at home in New York after a number of years of research on a Rockefeller Foundation in Ceylon.

From the 1891 team will come S. A. Ashe, Jr., Chief Deputy Clerk of the United States District Court, Raleigh, and Dr. Norfleet M. Gibbs, of New Bern.

William Rand Kenan, Jr., donor of the beautiful stadium in which today's game will be played, and a football man in '93 and '94 will be present and with him a number of men who played alongside him—George R. Little, Elizabeth City banker; Willie D. Merritt, Roxboro Lawyer; and Judge William A. Devin, of Oxford.

Robert S. Busbee, Raleigh insurance man, will be back from the victorious teams of '95 and '96; Paul C. Collins, of Hillsboro, from the '97 team; Frank Bennett, Jr., Wadesboro scientist, who played in '97, '98, '99 and '00; Graham Woodward, President of the Alumni Monogram Club, from the baseball team of '99; Louis Graves, publisher of the Chapel Hill Weekly, from the team of '00 and '01; and General Albert L. Cox, former State Commander of the American Legion, from the teams of '01, '02, and '03.

From University teams of the first decade of the century are a number of prominent men—W. F. Carr, Durham Manufacturer; Judge W. C. Harris, of Raleigh; Louis T. Moore, Wilmington Chamber of Commerce Secretary; "Next Governor," O. Max Gardner; Dr. L. C. Dunlap, of Albemarle; Wade A. Montgomery, of Charlotte; C. C. Garrett, High Point manufacturer; S. F. Teague, Goldsboro lawyer.

The names of some of the men from the next ten years are perhaps better remembered in the athletic world: George B. Mason, Gastonia lawyer, trackman in 1911; W. Carey Dowd, publisher of the Charlotte News, basketball '13; Robert Strange Jr., Wilmington banker, football '11 and '12; Henry P. Foust, Greensboro, football '14; Dr. David Thomas Tayloe, Jr., of Washington, who captained the Tar Heel grid team two years running in '14 and '15, and his

Hon. Max Gardner

Prominent among the men attending the Monogram Reunion today is Hon. Max Gardner, next governor of North Carolina. He was during his University days, an outstanding star on the football team, and a prominent figure in various other campus activities.

PLANS MADE FOR PRESS CONVENTION

Seventy-Five Representatives Expected at North Carolina Collegiate Press Association Sessions.

Davidson and Queens college will be joint hosts to the delegates of the North Carolina Collegiate Press Association which will convene at Davidson College, November 1, and continue for three days. Tugh Murrill of the Queen City Printing Company and J. W. Daniels of Clemson College have been secured as speakers for the meeting. Both of these men are in great demand in the journalistic world, and their presence at the conference will add much to the success of the program. Mr. Daniels will speak at the opening banquet at the Maxwell-Chambers hotel Thursday evening. Mr. Murrill will address the convention Friday morning.

More than 75 delegates are expected to attend the convention, representing all of the college publications of North Carolina. Many reservations have been received by the officials at Davidson College, the greater number of the student representatives have not as yet mailed in their credentials.

The officers of the North Carolina Collegiate Press Association elected at Duke University last spring are Walter Spearman, University of North Carolina, president, Miss Katie Gravely, N. C. C. W., first vice-president; Charles Pratt, Davidson College, second vice-president; Miss Alice Dowd, Meredith, secretary; and A. S. Parker, Guilford, treasurer.

Alpha Kappa Kappa Holds Initiation

The Beta Iota Chapter of the Alpha Kappa Kappa, national medical fraternity, held its annual initiation on Saturday, October 20th, 1928. This fraternity is composed of students in the medical school and each year takes in a number of students from the first year medical class. There were twelve members of the class initiated the past week.

The men initiated are: Landis G. Brown; Hubert L. Clapp; William Cogdell; Frederick M. Dula; Joseph R. Westmoreland; Lacy A. Andrews, Jr.; Louis J. Ring; George C. Allen; Samuel E. Pace; William E. Wilkinson; Arthur T. Strickland; and J. N. Dawson.

Staff to Meet

There will be a very important meeting of the whole TAR HEEL staff this morning at nine o'clock. It is requested that every member who can possibly do so please be present

PLANS UNDERWAY FOR THANKSGIVING GERMAN DANCES

Charles Dornberger and His Victor Recording Orchestra To Furnish Music.

The Thanksgiving dances this year will be held Friday and Saturday, November thirtieth and December first, in Bynum Gymnasium. The final plans have not yet been completely formulated, but are in such an advanced stage that announcement of dances can be made at this time.

There will be, in all, five dances given by the German Club. The first dance will be held Friday afternoon, November thirtieth, from four-thirty until six-thirty o'clock. The second dance will be Friday evening, from ten o'clock until one o'clock. Three dances will be held on Saturday, December first. The morning dance will begin at eleven and will continue until one. The participants will then be given a chance to rest until four-thirty when the music will begin for the afternoon dance. This will end at six-thirty. The final dance will begin at ten o'clock and will continue until twelve, when the Fall dances close, and the weary couples leave the floor, unanimous in their praise of the manner in which the dances were carried out and vowing to be on hand for the next set.

The music will be furnished by Charles Dornberger and his Victor Recording Orchestra, nationally known dance orchestra. The German Club is to be considered very fortunate in being able to secure this famous orchestra. It has had a very successful season and is rated by

HARDEN SPEAKS TO STUDENTS ON PARTY PRINCIPLES

Appeared Here under Auspices of Student Republican Club.

The fact that law has been violated is no justification for its repeal and the Republican party takes no part in such logic, Junius H. Harden, of Burlington, Republican candidate for Congress from the Fifth District, declared here Wednesday night, in discussing the prohibition issue in an address on Republicanism principles before University students, faculty members, and Chapel Hillians.

"The Ten Commandments have been violated ever since they were handed down to Moses on the Mount, but no one for that reason ever suggested that it would be in order to have them repealed."

"There may be abuses under the prohibition law that can and should be eliminated; but this country, with its vast industries, its airships and automobiles, will never again hark back to the liquor business. It is impossible."

Mr. Harden spoke under the auspices of the student Republican club. He was introduced by the president, Thomas S. Rollins, of Asheville. "The Republican Party," he declared, "is strenuously opposed to the repeal or any change in the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution, and likewise to any modification of enforcement."

Mr. Harden extolled the Republican party's long record of efficient and substantial achievement of the last 70 years in which there have been but two Democratic presidents; its

Student Presidential Straw Vote Gives Al Smith Large Majority

Many Students and Faculty Members Crowd Polls Throughout Day; Several Orations Made.

HUGE CROWD VOTES

Fifteen Students and One Faculty Member Vote for Thomas.

A grand total of 1188 votes was polled in the presidential straw referendum held Thursday. The contest was held in the name of the Student Body, sanctioned by Ed Hudgins, president, but the active management was in the hands of the Democratic and Republican clubs, headed by Phill Whitley, of Wendell, and Tom Rollins of Asheville, respectively. Great interest was manifested throughout the day, the polls being crowded at all times, and several orations were delivered by campus political leaders to their partisans in the course of the contest. Among the more vociferous of the Anti-Smith Democrats was Miss Sarah Purrington, famous as a feminine political leader for the past several years, who though not in school now, happened to pass by the election booth and could not resist the temptation to indulge in old time activities.

An analysis of the vote reveals that 744 students voted for Smith and 36 faculty members for a total of 780, while 288 students and 4 faculty members voted together for Hoover for a total of 392. The name of Norman Thomas did not appear in the ticket but was written in sixteen times, his vote being divided among 15 students and one faculty member.

It is also of interest to note that Smith's margin is approximately the same as it was in the straw vote last spring, when he polled 509 to 261 for Hoover. The University is said to be a cross section of life in the state, boys from nearly all of the 100 counties in North Carolina being registered here. If this is true, North Carolina is much stronger for Smith than the press and other straw votes throughout the state have indicated. Discounting the natural enthusiasm of youth for a leader of magnetic and glowing personality, he would still carry the old North State by a handsome majority.

Many Notables To Watch Game Today

High officials from both Georgia and North Carolina will view the Tech-Tar Heel game today.

Sitting with President Harry W. Chase in the guest box will be Governor Angus W. McLean, and Governor L. G. Hardeman of Georgia, President M. L. Brittain of Georgia Tech, North Carolina's next Governor, O. Max Gardner, himself a famous Carolina football player in his day, and a number of other notables.

INSTITUTE OF POLITICS OPENS

Here Under Auspices of North Carolina League of Voters.

The Institute of Politics opened here yesterday under the auspices of the North Carolina League of Women Voters with the University Extension Division Cooperating.

The purpose of the Institute is "to provide opportunity to hear and discuss the national Democratic and Republican platforms and candidates." Sessions were held in Gerrard Hall at 2:30 yesterday afternoon and at 8 o'clock last night.

At the afternoon session Prof. Frank Graham of the University Department of History presented the Democratic platform and Prof. M. S. Breckenridge of the School of Law presented the Republican platform. A general discussion followed. A discussion of the amendments to the state constitution to be voted on at the coming election was conducted by some member of the University faculty at this session. Mrs. Clarence Shore, of Raleigh, third vice-president of the League, presided.

Issues and candidates were discussed at the night session which was presided over by R. B. House, Executive Secretary of the University.

Speakers were Mrs. J. Borden Har-

Powerful Golden Tornado Will Battle Tar Heels Today; Tech To Use Full Strength in Tilt

Air Passengers For Game Are Due Here This Morning

A tri-motor Ford monoplane, carrying sixteen spectators for the Carolina-Georgia Tech game is expected to land at the local airport this morning. Edward Brockebrough, pilot of the North State Aircraft Company, received a telegram from Atlanta requesting a description of the field, and stating that the airplane would make the trip if conditions permitted. Brockebrough said that the pilot of the huge plane should experience no difficulty in making a landing on the runway of the field. He also said that a Fokker Universal monoplane from Greensboro, and another plane from Winston-Salem are expected. All three of these planes will be stored in the newly constructed hangar overnight and will probably leave on Sunday.

TURNER SPEAKS AT CHAPEL MEET

Pastor of First Baptist Church, Greensboro, Gives Interesting Talk.

"Thinking, trying, toiling, trusting, but the greatest of these four is trusting," were the closing words of a chapel talk given last Thursday by Dr. J. Clyde Turner, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Greensboro who is conducting a series of evangelistic services at the Baptist Church. In beginning his talk, Dr. Turner said that at one time there was a banquet held in Philadelphia to which were invited mayors, Supreme Court judges, and other prominent citizens. This banquet was given in honor of John Wanamaker. The meeting was held not to honor the business ability of the merchant nor his connection with the government, but to pay tribute to the man, the great character.

"When asked by a representative of a magazine what was the secret of his success, Wannamaker said, 'I can tell you in just one sentence. That sentence has only four words, and those words all begin with the letter T. That sentence was Thinking, trying, toiling, trusting.'"

In explaining these words of John Wanamaker, Dr. Turner said "We do not take time to think. Thought life is the sculpture that molds our character. We ought to take the time to think about the serious things of life." In reference to trying, Mr. Turner asserted that we all have ideals, but that most of us are content to sit and let our visions fade away.

"Toiling is just another word for just good old hard work," was Dr. Turner's statement. "Nothing comes not as a result of work. Trusting, the crown of it all, is walking in the light of the glow from the eternal. It is walking hand-in-hand with God."

Chi Psi Entertains With House Party

The Chi Psi fraternity is entertaining at its first house-party of the year, held in honor of visiting girls and alumni, who are attending the Carolina-Georgia Tech game.

Among those present are Misses Evelyn and Mary Lou Colburn, Eunice Glenn, Jane Lynch, and Salley Jackson, of Asheville; Ruth Buchan, of Henderson; Mary Malone Best of Louisburg; Pat Miller of Greensboro; Elizabeth and Margaret Green, of Richmond, Va.; Kathryn Warlick, of Duke University; Betty White of Lumberton; Ellen Agee, of Anniston, Ala.; Dorothy Evans of Raleigh; Sarah Oliver of Pine Level; Elizabeth and Virginia Mobley and Lillian Robinson of Charlotte.

Chaperones for the occasion will be Mrs. Colburn, of Asheville, and Mrs. Green, of Richmond.

The Phi Alpha fraternity announces the pledging of Robert L. Kushner of Danville, Va.

COACH SHIFTS LINE

Carolina Ready for Tech Plays; Hoosier Clash Well Scouted By Heels.

A Golden Tornado that has engulfed everything within reach in its treacherous arms blows over Kenan Field this afternoon and will seek to sweep the Tar Heels of the University of North Carolina into its folds. Not only has the rapidly moving tornado from Atlanta turned southern teams back but reached national prominence last Saturday when it swept the many times national champions from Notre Dame off Grant Field with a 13-0 victory.

The Techmen will meet a Tar Heel team that gave them a great battle last fall. Every sports writer in Atlanta remembers the great game the Heels played last year when the Georgia team was lucky to eke out a 13-0 victory over the Carolina eleven, and without doubt quite a few of the Atlanta players remember that same game when the Heels swept the field four times to within inches of Tech's goal only to lack the punch to put the ball over. It is well remembered how the 1927 Tech team barely managed to score its first six pointer and then scored again in the last minutes of the game when "Stumpy" Thompson broke loose and ran three quarters of the length of the field for another touchdown.

The Blue Team that took the field against Georgia Tech last year was famous for its ability to carry the ball to within the shadow of its opponents goal and then to lack the punch to score. But this year Coach Collins has a different team representing Carolina. The Tar Heels have gained the necessary confidence and are leading the North Carolina teams in scoring to date. The Heels have scored a total of sixteen touchdowns. In conference play the Heels have scored 40 points to 35 scored by their opponents.

Both teams will send brilliant players into the fray. Coach Alexander has more stars to use than Coach Collins, but none of them shine more brightly. Two of the greatest southern centers to face each other in recent years will match wares this afternoon. Peter Pund will lead the Techmen while Harry Schwartz captains the Heels. In all probability there will be another great battle such as was waged last fall in Atlanta between those two centers. Schwartz's outstanding work in that game won him praise throughout the South. While the brilliant Pund has gilded himself with mythical all southern honor. Both of these luminaries are seniors and both are leading the greatest teams their institutions have known since they first donned varsity uniforms.

But mentors will have more in their lines than these two stars. Coach Alexander will have Waddey Spear, and Drennon along with Pund in his forward wall. Three of the regulars in the forward wall of the Techmen will not start against the Heels due to injuries. However, their places will be well filled.

Behind this line there will be four of the most brilliant backs in the south, Durant, Mizell, Thomason, and Randolph. These four men have played sensational football this fall and have worried all of Tech's opponents with their uncanny ability to do almost everything a back is supposed to do and to do all of them well. But Coach Alexander does not depend on these backs entirely for he has several reserve backs whose names have been strung across the sport pages on more than one occasion. A plunging Texas Ranger, Fatcher Lumpkin, heads this list. Lumpkin is one of the hardest driving backs in the south. He stands well over six feet in his socks and he packs a heavy punch. The big boy has cracked every line he has been against this year for gains. Atlanta fans doubt if the Heels can stop him.
