

Fraternity Problems of North Carolina Colleges Should Be Worked Out at Joint Session

Both Faculty and Fraternities Will Be Represented at Meeting Which Will Be Held Sometime in the Near Future.

Solution of scholarship and initiation problems facing college fraternities at North Carolina colleges and universities is to be sought through a conference of faculty and fraternity representatives, it was announced recently by E. L. Cloyd, dean of students, North Carolina State College.

Dean Cloyd is chairman of a committee of faculty members of the North Carolina College Conference, which proposes to discuss the matter with the fraternities. State, Duke, Carolina, Davidson, Wake Forest, and Elon are represented on the committee, which is to meet as soon as the chairman gets his plans arranged.

"That there is a need for solving the situation is quite apparent," Dean Cloyd said in making announcement of the plans of the conference. "We want the fraternities to feel free to discuss the situation in regard to admission of freshmen to fraternities, scholarship requirements, and institutions. While we have suggested this move ourselves, we hope the fraternity members will feel that they will have an equal part in all discussions."

The fraternity problems of some of the institutions represented appear at this time to be of no consequence, said Dean Cloyd, while at one or two of the colleges attention should be given to the matter, in the opinion of the faculties.

National fraternities and their headquarters are also interested in the matter. Such suggestions that no student be initiated until he passes all his freshman work, initiation be postponed, or pledge day be set after the fall and winter terms, and others, have come from national officers of the organizations.

Members of the committee are: Dean Cloyd, chairman; Francis Bradshaw, University of North Carolina; Dr. Moore MacConnell, Davidson; Professor H. B. Jones, Wake Forest; Dean W. W. Wannamaker, Duke University, and Dr. T. C. Essick, Elon College.

University Receives More Recognition

Recognition from abroad has come to the University through its membership in the National Student Association of America, which body has recently been admitted to membership in the Confederation des Etudiants, a world-wide organization with headquarters at Brussels Belgium.

The purpose of the Confederation des Etudiants, organized after the World War, is to further the possibilities of permanent peace by interesting itself in international athletics, publications, and debates which will bring about a better understanding between the students of various nations of Europe, Africa, North America, and South America.

BRADSHAW TALKS TO CLASS OF '32

Explains Rule of Cutting Classes Before and After Holidays

Dean Bradshaw explained the University regulations in regard to Thanksgiving holidays at chapel yesterday. As Mr. Bradshaw explained the rules, the length of these holidays was determined by a committee of the faculty six years ago. At that time the decision of the committee was placed before the student body, and after a discussion by the students the present holiday of from Wednesday at 1 o'clock until Monday at 8:30 was adopted.

"The University gives what it thinks a reasonable holiday," said Mr. Bradshaw, "and we expect the students to be reasonable in their observance of the rules that have been made." Mr. Bradshaw further explained that reasons that would be valid at any other time for excuses from class would not be accepted.

"The penalty for cutting class on either the Wednesday before or the Monday following Thanksgiving, will be a month's attendance probation for each class cut," said Mr. Bradshaw.

Miss Farrar to Give Talk in Greenville

Miss Elizabeth Farrar, assisting in the Bureau of Community Drama, will make a 5-minute talk on drama before the southeastern district meeting of the North Carolina Education Association at Greenville tomorrow.

A system has been worked out by the Bureau of Community Drama by which closer co-operation may be had among dramatic teachers in the state, and Miss Farrar will go next week to Fayetteville in behalf of the project. Miss Nettina Strobach, head of the Bureau, will go to Charlotte, Winston-Salem, and Durham to organize and further her plans.

RADIO LISTENERS DWINDLE AS HERB'S SUCCESS ASSURED

Crowds of Students Throng Stores on Main Street Hearing Returns.

Under a stuffy cloud of tobacco smoke a crowd of tense-faced students and townspeople watched and waited in the Smoke Shop all night long as Dean Paulsen sat up on an elevated perch and read the bulletins through a megaphone. In Sutton's another crowd sat in silent deference to the radio announcer.

During the early part of the night the crowd cheered announcements favoring Smith. This soon died away, however, and by midnight not so much as one soft Southern voice was raised in approval or protest. It became a grim silent watch with the watcher's favorite a dying man.

As the reports more and more ominously favored Hoover the group of watchers dwindled. At 1:30 the announcer stated that if Hoover carried all states in which he was ahead he would have a landslide. Upon hearing this many weary ones arose and went home. Democratic hopes went down and down as the hour of dawn drew near. The Old North State was going Republican, Kentucky and Tennessee, and the Old Dominion.

Before day everyone realized the cruel truth expressed by a disgusted watcher as he stumbled out of the door, "Well, boys, the Solid South has gone to Hell!"

Heel Debaters Get Favorable Decision Over British Women

Audience Decides Co-education Has More Advantages Than Disadvantages.

Monday night in Memorial Hall, a crowd of about nine hundred witnessed one of the most interesting debates staged at the University within recent years. The University team composed of J. C. Williams, E. H. Whitely, and R. M. Albright defeated the British team composed of Miss Margery Sharp, Miss Nancy Samuel, and Miss Leonora Lockhart. The Oxford system of judging was used. Before the debate the vote was 149 to 113 in favor of the affirmative. A vote taken after the contest showed 103 to 133 in favor of the negative. The British team upheld the affirmative side of the query; the Tar Heel team the negative.

The Britishers were witty and possessed a kind of dignified ease which is seldom possessed by American debaters. They based their arguments on conclusions arising from the differences in masculine and feminine desires. The British women were of the opinion that men and women need a different sort of education, because they are interested in different fields of activity.

The University team based their contentions largely on the social advantages from a mingling of the sexes in co-educational colleges.

NOTED LECTURER TO APPEAR NEXT ON PROGRAM HERE

Is First Speaker This Year on Entertainment Committee Schedule.

Students in the College of Liberal Arts will be presented the second feature of the Entertainment Program for this year when Sherwood Anderson, noted author, lectures here on November 15. Anderson is the first lecturer to appear on the schedule, the other entertainment this fall being a concert by Paul Whiteman and his Orchestra a short time ago.

Born in Ohio
Born in Camden, Ohio, in 1876 Anderson was educated in the public schools and soon took a fancy to writing. He has written many novels, most of which have produced favorable comment and criticism. Winesburg Ohio, one of his earlier books, is a series of sketches. Perhaps his best-known writings are Many Marriages, Horses and Men, and Poor White. His most recent novel is Dark Laughter. The author has attracted much attention through means of his unusual style of writing. He has also acquired the reputation of being an excellent lecturer.

Lectures Usually High
The regular price of admission to his lectures is two dollars, but through means of a favorable vote last spring when the question of a student entertainment fee was presented to the College of Liberal Arts, all those enrolled in this college will be able to hear him at a considerably less cost.

Three additional entertainments have been definitely booked for the remainder of the year, and other features are tentative. On January 18 Count von Luckner will lecture; on February 27 E. H. Sothern will appear in a Shakespeare Recital; and Richard Halliburton will lecture on April 15.

Students in the College of Liberal Arts have been issued season tickets which they are to present at the door for admission. Students of other schools may purchase tickets for this event.

DI SENATE HOLDS SHORT MEETING

Senators Table Resolution Favoring Immediate Completion of Graham Memorial.

The meeting of the Dialectic Senate Tuesday night was the shortest regular meeting held thus far this quarter. This can be explained by the fact that several members of the senate are deeply interested in politics.

Senator Gilreath called a meeting of the Constitutional Committee for next Tuesday night. The project under consideration is that of re-drafting the constitution.

At the suggestion of Senator Alexander the senate voted to table indefinitely the resolution that the Dialectic Senate go on record as favoring an immediate completion of the Graham Memorial.

Several members of the senate urged that new men take an active part in discussions. It was recommended that some bills dealing with the Freshman class be introduced from time to time. New men were urged to lay aside all timidity and enter wholeheartedly into the discussions. In this connection Senator Alexander suggested that the Di have a bulletin board on which to post bills to be discussed at future meetings.

The major portion, however, of the discussions was centered around Senator Studdert's resolution that all Freshmen be required to join the Cheerios. In defense of his resolution the senator declared that in all kinds of organizations there is respect for seniority. "I am not in favor of hazing, but I do think that Freshmen should be required to perform this function," asserted the speaker.

Senator Dungan, in maintaining that Freshmen should not be compelled to join the Cheerios, asserted that Freshmen already consider membership in this organization an honor. He urged that this phase of the proposition be stressed.

"Freshmen don't wear caps, and they don't even look like Freshmen any more," Senator Alexander said in connection with an attempt to convince his audience that certain things should be required of Freshmen.

Various members of the senate maintained, however, that compulsory membership in the Cheerios would lessen the efficiency of that organization, because people always do a poor grade of work when they are compelled to work.

In the absence of Senator Fox, Senator Henry Brown presided. Immediately after adjournment a representative of the senate wired an expression of grief to Senator Fox whose mother has passed away.

GARDNER WINS EASILY

Many Freak and Financial Bets Being Paid Off by Losing Students.

Chapel Hill and the University campus are returning to normalcy this morning after two days of election tumult. Never before has so much interest been displayed in state or national politics in the village, and an unprecedented number of election bets, freak and financial, were made.

Faculty members and townspeople with infant offspring would do well to safeguard all go-carts and perambulators under lock and chain, since several students must wheel vehicles of that description to Durham as a result of Hoover carrying North Carolina. Local soda fountains will be swamped with customers today as liquid election bets are settled, and bootleggers will witness a depletion of their stock as an aftermath of the political fracas.

Reports indicate that Orange county has gone Republican, as far as the national election is concerned, for the first time in a number of years. County and state Democratic candidates seemed to have a safe margin over their opponents, however.

General surprise and dissatisfaction was expressed on the campus over the unexpected Hoover landslide. Smith was the campus favorite by a large majority in the two or three straw votes held here during the past several months. Democratic adherents gleaned some consolation out of the fact that O. Max Gardner received a good margin over Republican Seawell in the race for governor.

Taylor Bledsoe, president of the North Carolina Smith College League, received many jocular condolences over the fact that his home county, Buncombe, returned a majority for Hoover. He bore up under his burden in splendid fashion, however, and even when reports continued to come in of a Republican landslide he did not entirely give way to his grief.

Student Republicans, although in the minority, celebrated vociferously all yesterday. The political underdogs here since the campaign began, they are having their day now in no unmistakable fashion. Their chief delight seems to be derived from taunting their Democratic classmates. Two fistic encounters and several near-battle resulted yesterday when Democratic students rebelled under the sting of their taunts. About thirty students kept vigil with Dean Paulsen in the Smoke Shop all night Tuesday as the returns continued to come in. Radio returns were received at several stationery and drug establishments in the village.

Alumnus Passes Away

The Alumni Office has learned that Percy DuP. Whitaker, a former editor of this paper, died at his home in Denver Colorado, October 27th, following a long illness. Mr. Whitaker was a graduate of the University Class of 1898, and during his senior year presided over the editorial page of this paper.

He was born in Enfield, North Carolina, son of the late Judge Spier Whitaker, a graduate of the University class of 1861. His father was for a long time a prominent lawyer of Raleigh, serving also for many years as judge of the State Superior Court. His grandfather was also a University student in 1817.

In college Mr. Whitaker was identified with other activities also. He was a member of Gorgon's Head and of Zeta Psi fraternity. In the late war he served as major of field artillery.
