BINGHAM HALL TO BE COMPLETED BY FIRST OF YEAR

New Building Will Fill a Long Pressing Need of the Commerce School.

Bingham Hall, the new Commerce building will be available for occupancy January 1, according to an announcement made Monday by the architects. The new building which was begun in May of this year faces the new South Campus and is located on the northeast corner of the new library.

The Italian style of architecture employed in the construction of the new building follows that of Saunders and Murphey Hall. The architects' drawings show a building 141 feet long by 52 feet wide, of the same general style as Murphey and Saunders, although of smaller dimensions.

On the first floor is located the office of the Dean, assistant dean, the secretary, a lecture room, five classrooms, two seminar rooms and on the second floor are five classrooms, five seminar, and two conference rooms, a statistics laboratory and a resources and industry laboratory. The third floor contains an advanced accounting laboratory, four additional classrooms, three conference rooms, two seminar rooms and two offices.

The building is of the usual fire-proof construction throughout, and the same workmanship and finish is maintained as in the newer buildings on the campus. Bingham Hall is the first building on the campus to use metal sliding sashes. The window trim is also of metal while the corridors have concrete floors.

Agitation for three years for a new commerce building is culminated in the completion of the new structure. The inadequate room for the department which occupied part of the Sanders building were supplied by the biennial budget for the University made by the state.

A new era for the commerce department will begin with the use of the Bingham Hall, it is said. Building of a good commerce department has been going on for the past few years and with the completion of the new modern structure the department hopes to rank with the best in the South.

Orange County Gives Hoover Big Majority

In Orange county Hoover had a majority of 764 votes over Smith. Chapel Hill itself went Democratic in the national ballot, but since Carboro and other towns in the county gave Hoover a majority, the Republican candidate was successful. The county ballot was; Smith 1799, Hoover 2504.

For governor, Orange county gave Gardner 2432, and Seawell 1856. Except in the case of J. H. Hanner, who was defeated for membership on the Board of County Commissioners by W. H. Ray, the entire Democratic ticket for county offices was successful. The following was the Democratic ticket; for senators 16th district: S. C. Brawley and R. W. Scott, for representative in the general assembly: A. H. Graham, for sheriff: W. T. Sloan, for registrar of deeds: C. H. Jones, for treasurer: G. G. Bivens, for coroner: S. A. Nathan, for members of the board of county commissioners: J. H. Hanner (defeated) by W. H. Ray, Republican candidate, G. A. Johnston, and J. C. Lloyd.

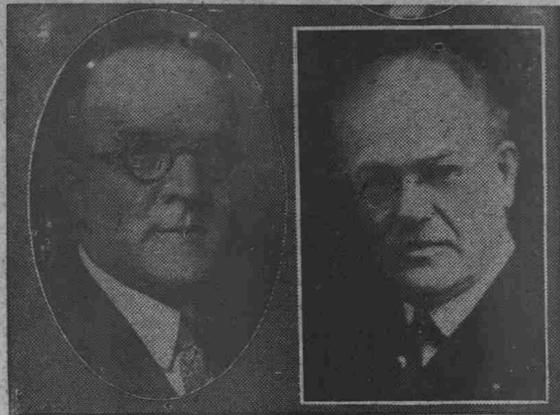

Miss Sharkey Will Talk on Wednesday

Miss Josephine Sharkey, of Chapel Hill, child expert, will address the Aycock Parent-Teacher Association of Greensboro Wednesday afternoon. For the past week Miss Sharkey has been conducting classes dealing with the growing child at the courthouse in Greensboro.

Miss Sharkey is an interesting and authoritative speaker, and to show their appreciation and gratification for the work that she has been accomplishing, the officials of the Association have secured her for an address at their school. Her remarks will deal with the same type of subjects that have been discussed in her weekly classes.

Dr. Royster, Dean of the Graduate School, left Monday afternoon for St. Louis to represent the University at the Association of American Universities.

Distinguished Educators

Two of the distinguished educators who will address the first annual Southern Conference on Education to be held at the University November 15, 16, and 17 are pictured above.

Dr. George D. Strayer, Director, Institute of Educational Research, Division of Field Studies, Teachers College, Columbia University, generally regarded as the foremost authority in the country on financial trends and policies in public education; and Superintendent Frank D. Boynton, of the Ithaca, New York, Schools and President of the Department of Superintendence of the National Educational Association.

More than 30 college presidents, a number of governors, state superintendents, and many other prominent educators have already accepted invitations to attend the Conference.

Playmakers to Take Three Plays On Second Annual Northern Tour

Will Give Two Performances To Local Audience Before Leaving for North.

By J. E. DUNGAN

In the tour bill that Professor Frederick Koch, and Hubert Heffner have chosen three of the strongest plays that their organization has ever produced, will be used for their second annual northern tour bill. The Chapel Hill performances of the play will be given Tuesday and Wednesday evenings.

Paul Green's "Quare Medicine" and "The Man Who Died at Twelve O'clock" are considered by his critics to be two of his best plays, and sincere.

In "Quare Medicine" the local feminists will probably have a piece that they can take issue with, as Paul Green, a very masculine man, himself, delineates in comic fashion how a husband and his father conspire with an itinerant medicine vendor to regain the control of their household from arch cleanliness and the local foreign mission society. In this as in all of Green's plays you will find no moralizing, no obtruding philosophy, but straight story telling.

The negro play, "The Man Who Died at Twelve O'clock," which is the first attempt of the Playmakers to stage an all colored play, has to do with the schemes of a young colored man and his fiancée, which result in their obtaining the young woman's dowry and the reformation of the old man, who is a confirmed inebriate.

The final play of the bill, which is by Loretto Carroll Bailey, is "Job's Kinfolks." It was presented to Playmakers audiences last spring and was taken by the organization when they made their western North Carolina tour. In "Job's Kinfolks" the thrush of Mrs. Bailey's pen are as poignant as the pinpoints of the knight-errant of old. The play is the heart throb from-mill life in Winston-Salem and has to do with the struggle of a mother to keep her daughter from being taken into custody by correction authorities.

Will Meet Tonight

The Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society will offer its first meeting of year, and its 307th one of its existence in the lecture room of Phillips Hall tonight at seven-thirty o'clock.

The speeches, or lectures, will be made by T. F. Hickerson, who will speak on the subject, "A More Exact Method for the Design of Continuous Beams and Columns," and W. C. Coker, who will speak on "The Flora of North Carolina."

The society is now in its forty-fourth year. It is the policy of the organization to promote scientific research and thought by monthly meetings the second Tuesday night of each college month. In addition a "Journal" is issued, the exchange list of which includes over three hundred other scientific papers.

Sherwood Anderson Here Thursday Night

Sherwood Anderson, noted author and lecturer, will speak in Memorial Hall November 15. This will be the second of the series of entertainments provided for the students of the college of Liberal Arts by the special student entertainment committee.

Anderson has been an outstanding writer in the field of fiction in America for a number of years. Perhaps his most famous books are: "Winesburg Ohio" and "Poor White." For the past year or so he has been the owner and editor of two small town newspapers.

As a lecturer Anderson has had singular success. He has been well received all over the country. His lectures always draw large audiences; the price of admission is usually two dollars.

Three other entertainments have been definitely booked by the committee and others are under consideration. Count Von Luckner will lecture on January 18; E. H. Sothern will appear in a Shakespeare recital on February 27; and Richard Halliburton will lecture on April 15.

State College Honor System under Fire

A committee of one hundred of the leading students of N. C. State college met Wednesday night to discuss ways and means of strengthening student government these. The meeting came as a result of a proposal by the Golden Chain, the senior honor fraternity, that student government be abolished and faculty rule substituted. W. P. Albright, of Greensboro, President of the student body, presided. The faculty committee which met earlier in the day was present.

Last week after the Golden Chain had passed resolutions asking for the abolishment of student government, the House of the Student Government met and refused to act on the proposal. Dan Hutchinson, the backer of the proposal was present and presented the views of the honor society that student government at State has been a failure. With him were several other prominent students who shared his views.

The editor of the "Technician" concurred with the view of the honor fraternity in an editorial published last week. He cited instances where student interest was lagging and said that student government is becoming a farce unless the students can be made to realize the importance of self-rule. In another editorial the paper pointed out how well the honor system works at Carolina.

The controversy over student government is spreading to other colleges. Dr. D. W. Daniel of Clemson college spoke at Davidson last week telling of the laxity of spirit at Clemson college and their unwillingness to observe student rule.

Extensive Campaign Planned by Red Cross

The Chapel Hill committee for the American Red Cross has planned an intensive campaign for the sale of Christmas seals this year, according to a statement made yesterday by Grady Leonard, chairman of the committee, and Odell Sapp, treasurer.

Workers in the campaign are as follows: Old East, J. C. Beakley and S. E. Crew; Old West, S. E. Palmer and T. H. Edwards; "J," F. M. James and Fred Bunch; Grimes, Clarence Clodfelter and K. D. Raper; Manly, Bill Bobbitt and Fred Moore; Mangum, J. G. Pleasants and Sam Gorman; Ruffin, J. A. Lang and E. S. Oakes; "F," J. W. Farthing and J. M. Henderson; "G," G. Mercer and B. C. Moore; "I," C. M. Edson and H. E. Gibbons.

Carr, H. J. Fox and C. W. Goldston; New Dorms, C. D. McKethan and Bill Higdon; Steele, T. R. Karricker and R. E. Graham; Smith, J. Paul McConnell and C. B. DuBose.

Fraternity committees will be announced at a later time.

JONES WINS PASS

Joe Jones feature writer for the Tar Heel was awarded the week's pass to the Carolina Theatre offered by the managing staff of the paper to the reporter who was the author of the best article in the three issues of the Tar Heel the week ending November 3.

Annual Southern Education Conference Opens Thursday

Two Governors, Thirty-Five College Presidents and Twelve State Superintendents of Public Instruction Among Notables to Attend—Sessions Open Thursday Night.

The final program for the first annual Southern Conference on Education to be held at the University on next Thursday, Friday and Saturday, was announced here tonight by Dr. Harry W. Chase, president of the University.

Reservations have been made for approximately 150, and the attendance may go beyond that. The program reveals an imposing array of speakers and discussion leaders.

Planned as the first of an annual series of such meetings, the Conference is designed to bring together not only people engaged in the technical work of education but also men and women interested in public affairs throughout the south.

The conference will open Thursday night, November 15, with a banquet, at which Dr. Harry W. Chase, and Dr. Douglas S. Freeman, editor of the Richmond, Va., News Leader, will be the principal speakers.

At the second day's session, over which President Harry Louis Smith of Washington and Lee will preside, President Lotus D. Coffman of the University of Minnesota will speak and also Frank D. Boynton, Superintendent of Schools, Ithaca, N. Y., and President of the Department of Superintendence of the National Educational Association will make a talk.

The Friday afternoon session at 2:30 o'clock will be devoted to special conditions and objectives. Dr. L. R. Wilson, University Librarian, will talk on Libraries; Morse A. Cartwright, Executive Director of the American Association for Adult Education, will discuss adult education, and Dr. A. D. Browne, of George Peabody College for Teachers, will speak on physical education.

The final session Saturday morning will be devoted to the general topic of the financing of public education. Prof. George D. Strayer of Teachers College, Columbia University, generally regarded as one of the foremost authorities in this field in the country, will head up the discussion. Ample opportunities for recreation have been provided. Thursday evening the members will be the guests of the Carolina Playmakers; Friday evening they will attend a concert by the University Glee Club, and Saturday afternoon they will have a number of diversions from which to choose—a football game, golfing, tour of the University campus, or a visit to Duke University.

President H. W. Chase Speaks To Student Body at the Annual Armistice Day Service Monday

KYSER'S BAND TO PLAY AT U. N. C. VIRGINIA DANCES

Tar Heel Orchestra Has Much Success Since Leaving the Campus.

Kay Kyser and His Band, former University orchestra, which has been scoring a number of successes in engagements played in Northern cities during the summer and early fall, will play for the Thanksgiving Dances at the University of Virginia this year on the occasion of the annual North Carolina-Virginia football classic, according to word received here today.

The dances will come on Wednesday and Thursday nights, November 28 and 29. The orchestra will also play for the Washington and Lee Thanksgiving dances on November 30 and December 1.

Kyser organized his orchestra here in the fall of 1926, and after a successful year and a half of college dances and concerts in this and neighboring states, he began a tour of the North.

They spent a successful summer at Mentor Beach, near Cleveland, O., and Thursday they closed out a month's engagement at the Cameo Restaurant in Erie, Pa. They are to begin a two-week engagement at the Arcadia Ballroom on Broadway on Armistice Day prior to coming South.

BENEFIT MEET HELD BY BOXERS

Battle Royal by Four Local Negroes Is Feature of Affair.

The first boxing meet of the year was held as a practice session in the Tin Can Friday night before a crowd estimated at five hundred as a special benefit for the fund for purchasing uniforms for the local band. The bouts were fought in great style despite the fact that a few of the participants were receiving their first taste of competition in the squared circle. Coach Ed Butler referred the matches.

In the bantamweight match Vaughn won out over Gray in a fast setto. The featherweight bouts brought forth good and bad boxing. Clark and Redwine had a slugging match with both standing toe to toe and throwing the leather wildly. Cummins and Kearns engaged each other in a flashy exhibition with Cummins having much the better of the match. Webb won over Grier in the lightweight division with some fast work in the ring. Brown defeated Parsons easily in the middleweight class due to a much superior knowledge of the game. Another bout in this weight was fought between Obie Davis and Watan and proved to be a draw. Allen and Studdard met in one of the classiest fights of the evening with Allen gaining the decision. The former is fast assuming the form of a championship contender in his new weight and may scramble quite a few ears before the close of the season. Avery won out over Bullard in a closely fought match in the lighthweight bout.

The fun of the evening was presented in the form of a battle royal between four negroes who hit each other with everything in sight save the resin on the mat. The students crowded around and tore up the ring to give the gladiators, but by that time the winner had crossed Emerson Field and was well on his way home. This closed the engagements of the meet for the evening.

The band played before the bouts and during the frays for the enthusiastic spectators. About one-hundred dollars was taken in at the gate for the uniform fund to furnish the band by Thanksgiving for the Carolina-Virginia game.

Phi Meets Tonight

The meeting of the Philanthropic Literary Society tonight will be especially interesting. The calendar calls for a discussion of this resolution: "Be it resolved that ignorance is bliss."

Dean Hibbard Gives List of Men Who Fell in Battle; Music Was Furnished by the University Band.

President Harry W. Chase addressed the assembled students in Memorial Hall yesterday morning at the regular chapel period, urging them to dedicate themselves to the cause of permanent peace. The annual Armistice observation was postponed from Sunday because of a conflict with the services of the village churches.

"I ask you to work for peace for a better and more stable world," Dr. Chase said, "not in the sense of the pacifist, however, who runs from the problem, but from the standpoint of citizens of the world who desire continuous prosperity and understanding."

During the course of his remarks Dr. Chase vigorously upheld the purpose of the League of Nations, and pointed out that while the League being only a human organization had made errors, its real purpose was succeeding. The body has met in important sessions each year since the Armistice to consider peacefully their political and economical problems.

Secretary Kellogg's multilateral treaties came under the praise of the President, who expressed the belief that the effort on the part of the Secretary of State to outlaw war was a noble one, but did not go far enough because it provided no machinery to carry out the policies embodied in the treaties.

The Rev. Alfred S. Lawrence, rector of the Episcopal church, opened and closed the meeting with invocation and benediction.

The University band played two selections before and during the program, and Professor Smith McCorkle directed the students in the singing of America.

Dean Addison Hibbard, head of the Liberal Arts College, read the honor roll of dead that fell in the service of the country. An appeal for the Red Cross was presented by Grady Leonard, acting executive secretary of the Carolina Y. M. C. A.

Playmakers to Give Performance Tonight

The Playmakers productions to be presented in the theatre tonight will mark the first attempt since 1918 to enact a play with an all negro cast. "The Man Who Died at Twelve O'clock," by Paul Green has three negro actors.

The leading role of the play will be filled by Professor Hubert Heffner. Because Southern audiences are extremely critical judges of colored impersonations the drama organization has concentrated on this play. Every effort has been exerted to make this presentation a sincere one. An especial grease paint has been purchased to make the actors more definitely real.

The only other play that the Playmakers have ever produced was "The Fighting Corporal" written in one of the first play writing classes that Prof. Koch taught at the University. The author of the play, Louisa Reid, aided the directors of the play, which was presented the fall of 1918. Because of the audience's reception of this play the Playmakers organization has never felt entirely competent until this fall to stage an all colored play. The directors were urged by cities on the Northern tour route to include a play of the type of "The Man Who Died at Twelve O'clock" in this year's repertoire.

To Attend Meeting

Mr. R. M. Grumman, head of the Extension Division, Dr. Frank Graham of the history department, and Dr. H. D. Meyers of the sociology department will attend the State Parent-Teacher Association meeting which will be held in Raleigh the 13, 14, and 15 of this month.

Dr. Meyers is a member of the State Board of Managers and he will conduct two of the conference discussions groups. Dr. Graham will speak on "Library Extension Work" and Mr. Grumman will deliver the certificates to members for their work during the summer Institute which was held in Chapel Hill during the past summer.
