WILLIAM DEAN WILL PRESENT STRONG CAST

Will Be First Time Organization Has Toured With Production.

When the Town Stage Society comes to Chapel Hill to present Rachel Crothers' play, "He and She" in the Carolina Playmaker Theatre the nights of March 8 and 9, the event will mark the first time that that group composed of University of South Carolina, students and townspeople of Columbia has ever toured with its productions. The current year is the tenth since the founding of the organization, and the third that the organization has been under the direction of William Dean, internationally known actor.

"He and She" is an excellent production of a good play. The cast is reputed to be the strongest that has ever taken part in a Town play, which is in itself a recommendation.

In the cast the stellar roles awarded on the basis of excellence in interpretation were given to Miss Epps Jones for her portrayal of the character Daisy Herford, and to Mrs. Julius Taylor for her unexcelled acting in the lead part of the work, that of Mrs. Ann Herford, when the play was performed in Columbia recently.

The question of a married woman's right to a career in the face of her home and family responsibilities is one that has been discussed for years, and probably will be discussed until the millennium brings peace to all disturbing questions. This is exactly the situation with which "He and She" has to deal.

Professors Koch and Heffner announce that beginning with this production no persons will be seated during the time that an act is in progress.

University Prof Is Contributor to Map

Recently the West Virginia Geological Survey published a "Geological Report and Map of Pendleton County, West Virginia," of which Professor W. F. Prouty of the Department of Geology in the University of North Carolina is a co-author. Almost all of the map work is a result of Dr. Prouty's individual efforts.

The area studied and mapped in this report is approximately one thousand square miles, and it includes some of the most attractive mountain scenery to be found anywhere in the eastern part of the United States. In many parts of Pendleton County massive white Medina sandstones cap many of the higher ridges. In places this sandstone rises vertically to form a great wall more than two hundred feet in height. In this same region, also, the Paleozoic sediments are many times repeated in outcrop, due to the great amount of earth crustal folding which took place during Paleozoic time. Some of the larger mountains are great undisturbed canoe-shaped, arching folds (anticlines), while others are either the resistant axial portions of canoe-shaped trough folds (synclines), or the bevelled edges of highly tilted resistant strata, usually sandstone. In this region the valleys are made chiefly by stream action in the softer shales and with limestones.

This is the fourth geological report to be published by the West Virginia Geological Survey in the last four years in which Dr. Prouty has been a principal contributor.

"PINK" GUTHRIE NOW WITH STATE

Prohibition Cases Feature Court Docket for Past Few Days; Robberies Continue

Quite a number of cases have been handled within the last few days by the local court. Practically all of these cases dealt with violations of the prohibition laws with the exception of one. Gurney Rigsbee and Horace Fann were found guilty of being drunk and disorderly, and were fined $5.00 and the costs in each case. Sam McKnight was arrested for drunkenness several days ago, but was released on bond. On the following day, however, he was again found drunk and fined $5.00 and the costs on each charge. Isaac Jones was given 30 days on the roads for being drunk, and James Foushee was fined $5.00 and costs for disorderly conduct.

"Pink" Guthrie, the champion denatured alcohol drinker, was discovered yesterday morning apparently feeling like a million dollars, and was consequently taken in tow. It was decided by the court that "Pink" had been embibing too much for his health, and he was ordered to help the State maintain its roads for the next thirty days.

In the meanwhile, however, the thieves who are implicated in a series of petty robberies still continue their work. Sunday night someone entered Mrs. Daniel's boarding house and made away with a crate of eggs and a large ham.

Senators Put On Successful Dance

Declared by Many to Be Best Affair on This Year's Program.

The Dialectic Senate dance last Saturday night proved to be one of the most successful dances that any organization at the University has ever held. More than ninety-five persons attended the hop which was held in the Di Hall, on the third floor of New West building.

The figure, which was both intricate and excellently done, was cut by the following couples: Garland McPherson and Neoma Sturgeon; N. H. Brown and Elizabeth Rogers, Taylor Bledsoe and Margaret Burgaw; Walter Spearman and Helen Dorch; H. N. Patterson and "Babe" Johnson; T. R. Karkker and Crowell Oliver; John Norwood and Henrietta Underwood, and Aubrey Parsley and Margaret Carlton.

Music for the event was furnished by Alex Mendenhall and his twelve piece band. The decorations in a blue and white scheme were carried out by Frazier Glenn.

Botany Department Gets Section of a Large Cypress Tree

The Botany department has just received a four and a half foot section from the trunk of a cypress tree which is over six and a half feet thick through the largest part. After a careful counting of the rings, it was determined that the tree was more than nine hundred years old at the time it was cut.

The section, which came in a box car of its own, is the gift of the Cymmer Lumber Company of Florida. The section weighs more than eight thousand pounds. After its arrival Tuesday, workmen of the T. C. Thompson and Brothers Company, contractors for the University's new library, cut off a section a foot thick from the piece, while it was still in the car.

Miss Epps Jones

Miss Epps Jones (above) who will appear here next Friday and Saturday nights with the Town Stage Society of Columbia, S. C. She will take the part of Daisy Herford in Rachel Crothers' play "He and She." Miss Jones is widely known as an actress of exceptional ability and her work in the production to be presented here has created much favorable comment. The play is under the direction of William Dean, internationally known actor.

GLEE CLUB WILL GO TO ASHEVILLE

Will Feature Program Given By Conference on Musical Education.

The University Glee Club, just recently returned from its winter tour of the southern states, made such a favorable impression in Asheville at its appearance there that it has been cordially invited to return and feature the program tomorrow evening at the City Auditorium as a guest of the Southern Conference for Musical Education, which is holding its biennial meeting in Asheville this week. The concert tomorrow evening in that western city will be strictly an invitation affair, but over two thousand people are expected to attend.

The program which the University Glee Club will render will be the same as given on the last trip, with Professor Kennedy playing the accompaniment, but as one of the highlights of the convention, the distinguished New York concert pianist, Mieczyslaw Munz, will be jointly featured alternating with the club in appearance in the evening's program.

Among those attending the convention are 500 of the most prominent musicians in the 12 southeastern states, and also 600 selected high school students participating in a joint meeting of the All Southern High School Chorus and Orchestra meeting, also convening in Asheville this week. The latter group will appear in a big concert on Friday evening under the direction of a famous guest director from New York. 50 very prominent northern and western musicians are also invited guests for the Music Education Conference, and have signified their anxiety to hear the North Carolina Glee Club tomorrow evening.

TIPPET TO SPEAK ON "NEW SOUTH"

Appearance Here Is Sponsored By Liberal Club, Discussion Group.

The Liberal Club, newly organized discussion group, will sponsor the visit that Professor Tom Tippet, faculty member of Brockwood Labor College and director of the Brookwood Extension Department, will make to Chapel Hill, Wednesday, to address a meeting that will be held in Gerrard Hall at 7:30 o'clock.

The subject of Professor Tippet's speech will be "The New South." It is Tippet's intention to approach his subject from an impartial viewpoint stressing the trend of the South's commerce, its rapid rise in the field of industry, and the inevitabilities of present day industrial policies of Southern manufacturers from industrial, educational, and cultural standpoints.

Tippet has had a long and varied experience as coal minor correspondent and business manager of the "Federated Press," writer for the Labor and Liberal press, director of Workers' Education for United Mine Workers in Illinois, and faculty member of Barnard summer college for women workers in industry.

The Liberal Club was founded for the purpose of supplying a medium for the free expression of any problem growing out of the ramifications of the present social structure. The usual meeting night of the group is Tuesday and the place is the Retreat room of the Y. M. C. A.

Meyer Returns

Mr. H. D. Meyer, professor of Sociology at the University of North Carolina, has just returned from Asheville where he delivered the closing address at a convention of representatives of the student councils of all the AA-1 high schools in the state. This convention was the annual meeting of the student councils of the state, and Dr. Meyer was the only faculty member to address this organization.

Dr. Meyer spoke to 125 representatives of 55 AA-1 high schools on "Six Rules for Adolescent Leadership." The students themselves discussed topics dealing with extra-curricular activities, programs, discipline, and student government, which included the honor system problem.

John Mason of Charlotte was chosen president of the convention which will convene at Salisbury next year, while Boyd Morris of Greensboro was elected vice-president.

Dance Postponed

The Order of the Grail has called off its dance which was scheduled for next Saturday night. The final examinations for the quarter are to be held in a short while and the dance has been postponed. No date has yet been set for the dance. This action completes the dance program of the Grail for the quarter, two dances having already been held under its auspices.

TEXAS DEBATERS WIN OVER HEELS

Held in Celebration of Texas Independence Day; Small Audience Hears Argument.

In a rather listless debate on the proposition that the United States should join the World Court without reservations, the debaters from the University of Texas won the decision of the audience, 23 to 8, in a contest with the Carolina debaters in Gerrard hall Saturday night. Only a small audience heard the contest. The debate was held in celebration of the Texas Independence Day and came after the supper of the North Carolina Texas club. Professor Carlton C. Rice of Catawba college, president of the Texas club, presided.

Arthur Sandlin of Texas opened the argument for the affirmative with a strong appeal for the World Court on the grounds that it would insure world peace. He showed that it would be in keeping with American policy of hundreds of years to encourage peace, and would be a great step toward making the world safer for democracy. He drew an analogy between the wars and the old time duels of the west. Law stepped in and stopped the duels; the world court would do the same things for international wars. It would guarantee at least a fifty per cent insurance against war, he contended and plead that it would be worth America's time to take this step.

In the opening argument for the negative R. B. Fisher, of the class of '31 outlining the case for the negative, showed that the World Court could not prevent wars and therefore it would be useless for America to join it. He described the sentiment in favor of the Court in America today as due to the efforts of scheming American financiers who would make much money by our adherence to the court. In short, he stated, it would be an idle and useless step for America to take as she could gain little for peace and it would involve her in the disputes and jealousies of Europe. He would rather that we stay out.

Closing the plea for the affirmative, Frank D. Stubbeman took the stand that whatever the consequences America should go into the court because of the good it would do toward promoting peace. He told of the horrors of the next war, if there should be one. He attributed the negatives' objection to a lack of understanding of the query and to superficiality.

E. L. Haywood, '31, continued the case for the negative and showed where America would be entering a court that is founded on principles opposed to American practice. "A back door entrance to the League of Nations" was all he could see that would come out of our going into the court.

The rebuttals were somewhat livelier than the main speeches, but Texas seemed to have the edge throughout in their interpretation of the question and in their humorous jabs at the negative.

A number of high school students from Greensboro and elsewhere who are debating the same question in their annual triangle debate were present.

Reorganization Is Subject of Assembly

What should prove a very interesting meeting will be the convening of the Philanthropic Assembly tonight, when the topic of discussion will be whether the Di and Phi should be reorganized. The Assembly will gather as usual in its hall in New East, at seven-fifteen.

The resolution is a timely one, as the organization has come in for its share of criticism on the lines of unprogressiveness. Representatives of the Assembly will thrash out the matter tonight, and have prepared for one of the liveliest programs of the year.

UNIVERSITY BAND GIVES EXCELLENT PROGRAM SUNDAY

Most Difficult Selections Played With Ease and Perfection of Professionals.

By DONALD WOOD
The University of North Carolina Band, under the direction of T. Smith McCorkle, appeared in concert Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock in Memorial Hall as the fourth in the current series of Sunday afternoon programs held regularly on the first Sunday of each month. About five hundred people attended the concert, and all were very well satisfied with the program.

Opening their program with Rossini's Overture, La Donna del Lago, the splendid trumpet section of the band came immediately into prominence. The harmony of the instruments was very good, the piece was well played, and those who worship overtures applauded the number heartily. Rollinson's Sea Flower Polka was excellent. Charles Hasford White, student director of the band and cornet soloist, was given the leading role in this selection, and he played even the most difficult parts of the piece with the ease and perfection of a professional. Going through the different movements of the number, the band kept good time with him, and, as a whole, the number went off the smoothest of any on the program.

The third selection was the Harmonia Overture (by Galuska). It was true to form of being a long orchestral composition finishing up in one grand finale of harmony. The clarinet section threatened to throw the rest of the players out of time in one or two places, but as a whole the piece went over well.

The fourth feature was a flute duet (Continued on page four)

Issues Volume On County Government

University Press Publishes 434-Page Book by Dr. Paul Wager.

The most comprehensive study of North Carolina county government yet to be attempted has just been brought out by the University Press here in a 434-page volume by Dr. Paul Wager, of the University Department of Rural-Social Economics.

Few adequate studies of county government have been attempted, and Dr. Wager's book is regarded as fulfilling a long-standing need for a volume to acquaint the public with prevailing conditions in county administration, explain cause and purpose of recent legislation, and suggest further improvements.

The work is concerned chiefly, of course, with North Carolina county administration. But, with its analysis of county administration, of advantages and abuses, it has a wider message for people everywhere who wish to understand the significance of local government in a democracy. Development, present practice and organization, and outstanding needs of county government are taken up alike. Dr. Wager made long and intensive research before compiling the volume and had for reference the 43 field surveys of counties in the state done by the University Institute for Research in Social Science.
