

HEELS TO DEFEND THEIR GOLF TITLE

Five Teams to Battle in Second Annual Sedgefield North Carolina Intercollegiate Championship.

The University of North Carolina will defend its title to the intercollegiate golfing crown of the state over the course of the Sedgefield Country club the latter part of the week, when at least three and possibly five leading college teams will assemble to do battle in the second annual Sedgefield North Carolina Intercollegiate Championship.

The three teams which have definitely entered for the event are the University of North Carolina, Duke University, and Davidson College. Wake Forest may send a team to take part in the mix-up, as may also State College.

While the event is scheduled for performances on each of three days, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, the first two days will be devoted to team matches between the several schools. The big offensive will be held Saturday when the competing teams will play 36 holes for the best aggregate score and school championship honors. In addition to the trophy to be awarded the winning team, the low medalist and best individual college golfer in Saturday's 36-hole engagement will be awarded a trophy.

Last year, the University of North Carolina won the championship crown with an aggregate score of 685 points for the 36 holes, and with a lead of 35 points over Davidson college, its nearest competitor. Playing for the Blue and White last year was the formidable Tom Royster, June Adams, W. B. Mason, and Luther Steward. Royster was the low scorer for his team, hanging up a card of 169 for the 36 holes.

While the university carried off the team honors last year, a member of the Davidson team annexed the low medalist honor and the individual intercollegiate championship of the state. This title went to Davidson's Boyce Martin by virtue of 169 for 36 holes and his victory in a play-off with Royster of Carolina, who had the same number of tallies to his credit.

Spring Basketball Practice Is Held Three Times Week

Spring basketball practice is now being held every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday afternoons in the Tin Can. Coach Shepherd urges that all men who are interested in trying out for next year's varsity and who are not occupied in some other form of athletics at present attend these practices.

Although the squad numbers around fifteen candidates at present, only four of the varsity squad of the past winter have been attending them. Teams are picked from those present and scrimmages held. A great deal of interest is being manifested by the applicants and it is likely that sharp competition will be afforded the veterans in securing berths on the 1930 team.

Those members of the past winter's squad now attending are Marpet, Dameron, Choate, and Farleigh. Practices begin promptly at four o'clock.

Student Oil Engineers Operate Real Refinery

Norman, Okla.—A 250-barrel oil refinery provides a laboratory for students of petroleum engineering at the University of Oklahoma.

Heretofore students were forced to work in oil company plants during summer months to gain practical experience. The new refinery, a gift from manufacturers, will be operated exclusively by students in making straight-run gasoline.

A derrick has been constructed for study of oil recovery by natural and artificial means.

TAR HEELS LICK OLD LINERS 7-1

Wright, Rookie Pitcher, Has Situation Well in Hand at All Times.

Wright, rookie pitcher, had the Old Liners eating out of his hand Tuesday afternoon and his team mates piled up seven runs to give the Tar Heels a seven to one victory. The Heels bunched their hits in the second inning to score four runs and again in the fifth for the remaining three. The Old Liners' lone score came in the third inning when McGan received a walk, Kay hit a single, and McGan was allowed to score when Satterfield missed a hot one hit by Radice.

Rand, sophomore second-baseman, found one of Hess's hooks in the second inning and added one more to the Heel's list of home runs by driving it far out into right field. Phil Jackson, following Rand, completed the downfall of Hess by driving one into deep center for another four bagger. Leschinsky then relieved Hess and the scoring was stopped for that inning.

Captain Nap Lufty, for the Heels, and McGan, catcher for the Old Liners shared batting honors each making two hits out of three trips to the plate. The fielding by the Tar Heel infielders was not up to its usual standard. Several costly plays were made that could easily have been chalked up as errors without hurting the scorer's conscience.

This was the last game on schedule before the Heels start on their northern trip today. They are scheduled to meet the Old Liners again tomorrow on Soldiers Field and meet the Cavaliers the following day in Charlottesville. V. M. I., V. P. I., and Washington and Lee are on tap for successive days next week.

HEEL CINDERMEN BATTLE GENERALS

Washington and Lee Come to Emerson Field Saturday; Fletcher Brings Stars.

The Tar Heel trackmen will meet Washington and Lee on Emerson Field here next Saturday in one of the feature dual meets of the 1929 season. The Generals, always a strong foe on the cinder path, boast one of the leading teams in the Southern Conference this spring, and the Tar Heels are priming for a stiff meet.

The Generals romped home with a wide victory over Maryland last Monday, opening their season in impressive style, and Coach Forest Fletcher will bring several stars to Emerson Field next week. Leading lights will be Captain Backus, in the half-mile and mile; Grant, sprinter; Pomeroy, pole vaulter; and Sandifer, in the sprints and broad jump.

Captain Backus won his mile from Maryland in 4 minutes 38 seconds and came back to run the half in 2 minutes flat. Grant won both sprints; Pomeroy cleared 11 feet 6 inches in the pole vault, and Sandifer jumped well over 21 feet in the broad jump.

Those records speak for fine battles here next week, for the Tar Heels will present stars in each of these events. Dave Nims and Minor Barkley will battle Backus in the half-mile, and Barkley will team with June Fisher in the mile. Ken Smith and Ken Gay will battle Grant and Sandifer in the sprints, and the brilliant Vernon Cowper will be after pole vault honors. Cowper has cleared 12 feet 9 inches this year.

Coach Bob Fetzter, assisted by Coaches Ranson, Quinlan and Belding, has built his team around ten lettermen this year, and other veterans likely to show against the Generals include Johnnie Harrison, sprinter and quarter-miler; Johnnie Stafford, hurler and jumper; Captain Johnnie Henderson, two-mile star; and "Pot" Adkins and "Puny" Harper, heavers of the shot and discus.

CARL SANDBURG TO BE AT DUKE

Famous Poet and Lecturer to Give Program under Auspices of Faculty Club.

Carl Sandburg, famous lecturer and American poet of note, will give a lecture-recital, called by him "lecturette," at the Duke university auditorium Saturday evening at 8 o'clock. The program is the last of a series being held under the auspices of the Faculty Women's club and the Duke university lecture council.

Mr. Sandburg's programs are a combination of lecturing and of singing and of dramatic entertainment. He recites some of his own verse, sings some to the strumming of his guitar, and lectures some. Rarely have Durham lovers of literature and of folk songs been afforded such an opportunity as will be given them Saturday night.

The poet's books have made him known the world around as the voice of America speaking for her new civilization. American critics, for a long time hostile, have now accorded him a place in the ranks of the foremost modern writers of verse.

Like so many other men who have attained fame in the field of literature, Carl Sandburg has led a very colorful life. Born on an Illinois prairie, he spent his formative years on a farm and working in brickyards and potteries. At 13 he stopped school but later returned and studied for a while at Lombard college in Illinois.

He has lived the life of a tramp; he washed dishes in Denver hotels, worked in mines, saw active service in the Spanish-American war in Porto Rico, and represented a newspaper syndicate in the Scandinavian countries during the world war. From this wealth of experience he draws the themes of his poetry and his songs. He is considered by many critics the most representative American poet since Whitman.

Williams Elected To Head Debate Council

Is Member of Rising Senior Class; Succeeds Bledsoe of Asheville.

During the course of the business session of the Debate Council Monday night J. C. Williams, of Linden, was unanimously elected president of that organization. Williams, who is a member of the rising senior class, succeeds Taylor Bledsoe, of Asheville. To date he has represented the University in eight intercollegiate debates. bate Council is: J. C. Williams, representative from the Di Senate, president; J. C. Harris, representative from the Phi. Assembly; W. W. Speight, representative from the student body at large; R. M. Albright, representative from the student body at large; Professor George McKie, faculty representative, executive-secretary; Professor Howard M. Jones, faculty representative; and Professor Albert Coates, faculty representative. Student members of the council are elected annually; faculty members are appointed by the president of the University and serve from year to year.

According to custom the new councilmen go into office immediately.

"Talk of the Town Sale" on Tomorrow

The "Talk of the Town Sale" will begin tomorrow, and value supreme will reign for 15 days, April 12 to 27.

Nine merchants of the town are co-operating in this big carnival of values, the purpose of which is to show their appreciation of all patronage and to prove to all that Chapel Hill offers as good merchandise and at as low prices as can be found.

A few of the exceptional values being offered by each of the firm are listed on the full page add run in this issue of the Tar Heel, with a cordial invitation to all to visit the respective establishments and see the full line of values being offered during the 15 days the sale will run.

The firms taking part in the big bargain carnival are Berman's Department Store, Andrews-Heninger, Moore-Johnson Hardware Co., Model Market, Strowd Motor Co., Patterson Bros., "M" System, and F. J. Diab.

Editorial Board Meet In Durham

Durham, April 10.—The first annual meeting of the editorial board of "American Literature" closed Monday at noon following a luncheon held at the Duke University union. Members of the board were the guests of the University.

The new scholarly quarterly on American literature is published at Duke, and has a board of editors comprised of eminent authorities in the field from a number of large universities. Dr. Jay B. Hubbell, of Duke, is editor-in-chief, and has the following associates, who attended the meeting; Dr. W. B. Cairns, of University of Wisconsin; Dr. Fred Louis Patee, of Rollins college; Dr. R. S. Rusk, of Columbia university; and Dr. Kenneth B. Murdock, of Harvard university.

Notice
Attention is called to the fact that next week is High School Week here at the University, that is, the high school debating teams from all over the state will be here. The arrangements for caring for the high school boys depend upon the Y.M.C.A., and Mr. Leonard has requested the cooperation of the students who have teams coming here from their home town. Anyone who desires to help in connection with this work please see Mr. Leonard at the Y.M.C.A. building.

Beautiful but dumb

We are reliably informed that the above familiar phrase is applied mainly to certain poor dears in whom all the pituitary runs to pulchritude. A gargyle is "int'restin", at least. Better pick 'em freckled and friendly than lovely but lacking.

And getting our minds back on business... innocuous, unmitigated mildness rather palls in a cigarette, too.

Chesterfields are mild, certainly—but "aren't they all"? The point is that Chesterfields are also "int'restin". They satisfy—and right there is why they gather in the gang.

Taste—the taste and richness of quality tobaccos—that's what matters. And the blend can't be copied; you know you are smoking a Chesterfield, nothing else, at every puff.
