PARAGRAPHS

At last the Open Forum columns have something to talk about—unfortunately.

And the newspapers have something to display upon their front pages under scare headlines—also unfortunately.

When TAR HEEL headlines declare that "House Will Talk," we are almost persuaded to believe either in fairy stories or else in modern miracles of mechanical power.

After seeing Miss Ronny Johansson's delightful dance recital last night, we know why Sweden is so much better than Denmark—for Sweden produces the charming Miss Johansson and as for Denmark, why there is only the old story of "something rotten in Denmark!"

Miss Johansson says that she prefers Chapel Hill to New York—"because it smells so much better!" And the village scores again.

Graduation Week is scheduled for the first appearance of the daily TAR HEEL—two Commencements in one, as it were!

An Opportunity For Service

The Third Annual Track and Field Meet for Southern Preparatory Schools which will take place Saturday afternoon on Emerson Field will attract the highest type of secondary school athletes. Participants will be here from all parts of the South. Many, in all probability, intend to continue their activities, academic as well as athletic, in some college or university next fall. The impression which Carolina makes on them at this time will certainly be a large factor in determining whether they matriculate here or at some other school.

A few weeks ago the TAR HEEL, through its editorial columns, requested the co-operation of the student body in entertaining the debaters and trackmen in Chapel Hill for the annual High School Week. Whether or not there was co-operation will be shown by next year's entrance record. The meet to be held Saturday is no less important than the high school meet. It is essential to Carolina that the finest quality of both high school and preparatory school material enter here. Much has been done by the Senior Order of Daviens to interest prospective students in the University. When prospective students come here to attend a track meet, however, the responsibility shifts. It becomes a matter for the individual Carolina men to promote by taking an active interest and by co-operating with those who have been delegated to take charge of the affair. Surely here is an opportunity for the student body to do a very real service for the University.

EDITORS EXPLAIN APOLOGIES To the Student Body:

It seems that an entirely false interpretation has been placed upon the apologies which we made in Tuesday's Tar Heel to the student body in regard to the Yellow Journal.

It was our intention in these apologies merely to convey to the students our regrets for having participated to some extent in the affair in view of the fact that we were elected by the student body to campus offices. Our statements were not directed toward the removal of any share of our guilt. Although we realize that this year's Yellow Journal had no place on the University campus, we did not apologize to individuals, and to the student body only in regard to our relationship to them as editor and editor-elect of the Tar Heel and The Carolina Magazine respectively.

FAVORS BOOKER PLAN

To the Editor:

The substitution of the Booker plan of student government for the present form has been discussed for so long a time and at such length that about all anyone can say concerning the matter would only be a repetition of what has already been said. There are, however, certain facts which need yet to be emphasized.

One of the main arguments which those opposed to any change in the present form of student government at Carolina bring forward is that the present form is well enough and well enough should be left alone. If the present form of student government is well enough, this would be the wrong attitude to take, for such an attitude is not only conducive to indifference to reform, but is in the end conducive to a state of unconcern for the success of the existing form.

But I contend that the present form of student government at Carolina is not well enough. Who would say that the present representation is fair? Only a very small number of offenses, especially cheating and drinking, are ever tried under the present form.

"But," say admirers of the present form of government, "it is the duty of every member of the student body to report offenses." Do they do it, may I ask? "We are free," they say, "to consider the circumstances under which an offense is committed." That is just the trouble now. The same relationship would exist between some students should they be brought before the student council, that exists between a millionaire and a poor man before our courts. The Booker plan would abolish the situation, for, should it be adopted, a code of laws will be drawn up which will be the same for Tom as they are for Harry. After all, crime is crime.

"But," say those opposed to any change in student government, "the proposed plan will be too cumbersome." It will be just as cumbersome as the student body makes it—no more, no less.

K. C. Frazier Talks To Frosh Council

K. C. Frazier, Professor in the department of history, spoke to the Freshman Friendship Council Monday night. The other cabinets of the Y were present as guests of the Freshmen.

Prof. Frazier chose as his subject "Anglo-American Relations." He discussed the recent sinking of the "I'm Alone," a Canadian rum-runner that was shot by the U. S. rum cutter off the coast of Florida. This was a very delicate matter to handle in the diplomatic circles.

Canada and America have become an example of how friendly nations can get along without disputes and hard-feeling. The recent occurrence illustrates how two great powers can settle their questions by arbitration.

After the speech a short discussion group was held with Mr. Frazier answering questions about diplomatic relations.

Scotch Plaid

By DICK MCGLOHON

Dear Liz,

I certainly was mistaken about these Carolina boys being so static. Last week I told you that everything here was as dead as hell. Well, it was then, or, it seemed to be. But, of course, me being a sophomore, I don't get all that's going on, especially these undercurrent workings of the political machines and frame-ups. But everybody knows all about the tapings of the Golden Fleas and the Gilded Fuzz—according to nature, fuzz is absolutely necessary for the well-being of the Sarcapsyllidae family and conditions were ripe this week-end for everybody was prospecting and doing a little biting. I'll tell you when these Carolina boys decide to let the world know about something, they put over two or three big things all at once so as there'll be plenty of publicity in the newspapers for the folks back home.

Now, the Golden Fleas thought they needed some fresh blood, so they went out in primitive fashion and took their mates. Ed Hutchins performed a remarkable feat by jumping clear over the heads of five men seated in a row, knocking the sixth man cold trying to reach Glenn Holder, the seventh man on the bench, even after the Governor had declared in his eulogy that Old Memorial was "heavily charged with an intellectual atmosphere of the Golden Fleece."

It was a weird affair—this tapping over at Memorial Hall. All the campus straggled in nonchalantly as usual, including those who were sure of being tapped. There was Johnny Henderson who is said to have brought along a bunch of graduate students to protect him in case of emergency; there was another armed with a fierce grin; a small group of wistful looking co-eds took the back row, hoping to at least get a few words of the Governor's speech—perhaps the Golden Fleas had become more democratic and might take in a few members of the female sex; a sour individual back of me murmured that the Golden Fleas should petition the Kappa Beta Phi's next year.

The Governor opened the affair with such catching gusto that the Golden Fleas fell for it and tapped him right off the bat. Doctor House rose to told all the secrets of the organization; how Jason, the father of the club, had chased down the wooly fleece and that, even to this day, Carolina men were still running their tongues out on a drag hunt.

Everything was as quiet as the night before Christmas when two hooded figures, Ed Hutchins and Charlie Waddell, like two gigantic, black tom-cats, pounced on ten mouse-like victims. The tapping ended and the kluckers faded into the night, leaving ten glad hearts to be congratulated.

Now it's your time to tell me something about N. C.

With love,
Mack.

Duke Boy Dies of Injuries Received In Accident Here

Luther Haywood, a former Duke University student, died early Tuesday morning from injuries received in an auto crash on the outskirts of Chapel Hill Monday morning. Haywood, in company with M. K. Lewis, also a Duke student, Mrs. O. S. Alexander, and her niece, Miss Pearl Alexander were returning from Pembroke and had passed through the business district of Chapel Hill, when the car, driven by Haywood, failed to make a curve and crashed into a stone wall. Haywood's leg was broken and an artery ruptured, which necessitated amputation of the leg. He was given a series of blood transfusions, but he was injured so seriously that he never rallied from the shock.

Lewis received a fractured vertebra and acid burns about the face, which will keep him in the hospital for several weeks. Mrs. Alexander and her niece received no injuries, although badly shaken up. Miss Alexander is a Duke student, and Mrs. Alexander conducts a boarding house where the two boys were staying.

Carolina Band Plays For Raleigh Show

The University of North Carolina Band, directed by Professor T. Smith McCorkle, played at the North Carolina Industrial Exposition in Raleigh yesterday and will play again today.

They will play this afternoon from 3:30 to 5:30 and from 8 until 10 tonight. The State College Band will furnish music on Wednesday and Thursday, and the Wake Forest Band on Friday and Saturday.

DI SENATORS TO SELECT DEBATERS

Try-outs To Be Held Wednesday Night for Members of Junior Class.

The team to represent the Dialectic Senate in the Bingham Memorial Debate will be selected Wednesday night, May 22, in the Di Hall, New West Building.

Any bona fide member of the Junior class is eligible to become a candidate for the team. The Di team will uphold the affirmative side of "Resolved, That the United States should enter the World Court." Speeches in the try-out will be limited to seven minutes, or thereabouts. The elimination procedure will begin at 7:30. Two men will be chosen on a competitive basis.

The debate itself will be staged between the Dialectic Senate and the Philanthropic Assembly during commencement—probably, the second day.

Native Weaving Is Theme of Talk Here

Illustrating her talk with specimens of finished products and movie slides showing processes of weaving, Miss Lucy Morgan, director of the fireside industries of the Appalachian School at Penland, gave an interesting lecture here at the University last week on "Native Weaving in North Carolina."

The lecture was given in the Carolina Playmakers Theatre and was well attended. The Playmakers, builders of native folk drama, are very much interested in all forms of native art. Last year they brought the famous Jugtown pottery makers to Chapel Hill. Already for next year Director Frederick H. Koch has invited the Tryon toy makers and wood carvers to come and give a showing of their work.

Two new galvanized iron letters have been placed over the entrance to the Smith Building, to take the places of the B and D in the name that have been missing for some time.
