Seven Entertainments Listed by Committee

List for Next Year Not Yet
Completed; At Least Nine
Programs to Be Given.

The tentative program of entertainments as released by the Entertainment Committee calls for more than seven events next year. Although the list is not complete the entertainers scheduled are well known throughout the state and with the addition of at least two more events the program for next year is likely to prove highly successful.

Those scheduled to-date are: Bertrand Russell, December 3. Isadore Duncan Dancers, February 24; Lorado Taft, three lectures on Art, May 19, 20, and 21; Helen Pugh, Asheville pianist, date undecided; Ratan Devi, Indian music, dances, and songs, date undecided; Cincinnati Chamber Orchestra, early in May; Gros Marionettes, two performances, either late in October or early in November.

There are to be at least two others to be added to this list.

Last year a committee selected the program but this spring it was decided to let the Liberal Arts students vote on a tentative list of entertainers and for the selection to be made from the list selected by the students.

The work of the entertainment committee this year was highly successful as a varied program was presented and a surplus of about two hundred dollars remains at the end of the year.

All students in the Liberal Arts school pay a fee for the events, while other students and townspeople are allowed to buy season tickets during the fall.

Engineers Inspect Power Plant

The entire freshman class in engineering made an inspection trip of the University Power last Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons. While on this trip the group made a thorough inspection of the coal handling machinery, the feed water heaters, and other boiler equipment as well as the boilers proper.

Carolina Playmakers Enjoy Best Year in History Says Heffner

Associate Director Predicts
Bright Future for Players;
Says Season Successful Financially and Artistically.

"Our eleventh season has been the most successful from a financial and artistic standpoint that we have ever had," said Hubert Heffner, associate director of the Carolina Playmakers in discussing the year's work with a reporter yesterday. "We are planning a bigger and more elaborate program next year. Our season tickets will remain at a low price, the plays will be presented three nights instead of two, and we are looking forward to a successful season doing big things."

Already an extensive Northern tour has been booked for November with engagements signed for in New York, Boston, Wellesly College, Brooklyn, Richmond, and two in Baltimore. The plays for the tour have not been selected, but it is understood that at least one of Paul Green's plays will be taken and Loretto Carrol Bailey's play "Black Water," provided it can be re-written in a satisfactory form. The other regular tours are being planned also.

A recent American play will be staged in the fall to open the season, Mr. Heffner stated, with production fixed for early October. Many new actors of merit are expected to be with the organization next year. In addition to their regular performances, the Playmakers will offer their patrons two outstanding attractions, if the present negotiations are completed. It is expected that the Little Theatre of Dallas Texas will bring a play here and the Morning Height-Players of New York who are working for the amateur rights of John Erskine's dramatization of his Helen of Troy will present that play.

During the past season the Playmakers took their three regular tours, and in addition took a short vacation tour to the eastern part of the state

German Club Notice

W. L. Marshall, Treasurer of the German Club, announces that members of the Club may secure tickets for Finals from him at the Sigma Nu House any afternoon this week. All members who have not paid their dues for Finals are requested to do so immediately.

TAYLOR SOCIETY HEARS DR. PERSON ON INDUSTRIES

Managing Director of National Society Speaks Here on Industrial Relations.

"Now, in 1929, the problem confronting industry in the South is that of industrial relations, and the main highway for the solution of this problem lies along the road of scientific management," stated Dr. H. S. Person, managing director of the Taylor Society in a talk before the local student chapter of the organization Tuesday evening.

After tracing the parallel developments of business management and scientific business management to 1914, Dr. Person drew from his discussion the three primary rules of scientific business management as they were developed by Mr. Taylor. These principles are: A scientific study of the entire range of activities covered by the industry, a standardization of parts of the industry, and a complete control of the entire business.

At the beginning of his talk Dr. Person congratulated the local student chapter on its activities since organization last winter. "I think you have a great opportunity before you," declared the speaker. "You

HUDSON APPOINTS CLASS COMMITTEE

Junior Class Executive Committee Appointed; Malcolm Seawell is Chairman.

Jimmie Hudson, president of the rising junior class, announced yesterday that the Executive Committee of the class would be composed of the following men: Malcolm Seawell, as chairman, Will Yarborough, H. N. Patterson, Clyde Dunn, Pete Wyrick, Mayne Albright, Ed Hamer, Henry House, and Noah Goodridge.

Beside the committee appointed by President Hudson, the officers of the class will also serve as ex-officio members. These are: Jim Hudson, president; Artie Marpet, vice-president; Clarence Weeks, secretary; Obie Davis, treasurer, and Prince Fussell, student council representative.

Number of History Men To Leave for New Appointments

A number of instructors in the History Department here are leaving the University at the end of this term to take up duties at various other institutions next fall. Practically all the instructors who are leaving this year will serve at the institutions to which they are going as assistant professors in history.

The following list includes those who are leaving at the end of this school year: Mr. C. C. Crittenden returns to Yale to finish requirements for his doctor's degree in history. Mr. J. W. Patton goes to Citadel at Charleston, S. C., as assistant professor of history. Mr. H. T. Shanks goes to Birmingham Southern College at Birmingham, Alabama, as assistant professor of history. Mr. Shanks and Mr. Patton take examinations for the Ph. D. degree here this June.

Leaves This Fall

Parker Hayward Daggett, head of the Department of Electrical Engineering in the University of North Carolina and a member of the faculty for the last 19 years, has just made known his acceptance of an offer to become Dean of the College of Engineering at Rutgers University next year. The position carries a salary of $10,000 annually.

Professor Daggett is one of the most able and popular members of the University faculty and his loss to the University will be keenly felt. He is president of the North Carolina Society of Engineers and is an officer in several other engineering societies.

Professor Daggett will be second ranking dean at Rutgers, where he is to direct a large program of extension and expansion.

HENDERSON GIVES EINSTEIN PAPER TO UNIVERSITY

Manuscript of Noted Scientists
Given to Math Department
By Dr. Henderson.

Dr. Archibald Henderson, well-known mathematician and head of the University Mathematics Department, has recently presented the department an interesting and valuable souvenir in the form of a framed manuscript written for Dr. Henderson at his request by Professor Albert Einstein, famous scientist and author of the Theory of Relativity.

Dr. Henderson was so fortunate as to secure this manuscript when he was engaged in advanced research work at the University of Berlin in 1924. The manuscript is a quotation from Professor Einstein's address at the Memorial Meeting in honor of Professor Max Planck, author of the Quantum Theory.

The text of the manuscript is as follows: Man tries to form a simplified conception of the world in a manner somehow adequate to himself, and to conquer the world of reality by replacing it to a certain extent by this picture. The painter, the poet, the speculative philosopher, and the naturalist do it, each in his own way. In this picture he places the center of gravity of his emotional life in order to discover there the peace and stability which he cannot find within the all too narrow circle of turbulent personal experience.

Publications Make Many New Ventures During Past Year

Not since the adoption of the Publications Union Board plan of publication control has a more important step been taken in connection with the publications here than the decision to install a daily paper on the campus. The voting of the Daily Tar Heel culminated the most successful year in the history of the publications and marked the first venture of its kind in a South Atlantic University or College.

Progress was made all along the line in student publications during the past year. A capable group of editors formed the nucleus for successful operation of the four publications: Tar Heel, Yackety Yack, Buccaneer, and Carolina Magazine. The editors of the respective publications were: Walter Spearman, June Adams, Bill Perry, and John Marshall. Associated with the editors were the business managers: Marion Alexander the Tar Heel, Guy Hill, the

WILY APPOINTED CHAIRMAN SENIOR CLASS COMMITTEE

President Green of Rising Senior Class Selects Executive Committee for Coming Year.

R. C. Green, president of the rising Senior Class, announces the appointment of the executive committee of the Senior class for next year. The executive committee handles all the class business and has charge of the dances and other entertainments sponsored by the class. Fleming Wily, of Durham, will be chairman of the committee. Wily was treasurer of the sophomore class and managed the freshman tennis team last year.

The other members of the committee are: S. S. McNeely Jr.; Gordon Gray; Bob Zealy; Dick Winburne; Roger Walker; "Red" Seawell; Archie Allen; Ross Porter; Henry Sinclair; Harry Galland; and Ned Giles.

Arizona Writer Praises Heffner For Playmaking

Eleanor Alexander, writing the feature article for the June College Humor on Arizona University has much to say about the work of Hubert Heffner, now associate director of the Playmakers, who was at one time director of the dramatic group at Arizona. He got his training under Koch in the early days of the Playmakers, then went to Arizona and finally returned here to take up his work again.

At Arizona Heffner took charge of the rather worn out dramatic group and completely rejuvenated it. Concerning his work the author says: "He took the straggling University Players whipped them into shape, and by enthusiasm and a very evident knowledge of his subject made the administrators so aware of drama that they at last allowed the old Y. M. C. A. hut, relic of the war, to be used as a Green Room in which Professor Heffner conducted many interesting technical experiments along modernistic lines. He put on rather finished productions of Ibsen, Shaw, Chekov, and some of the very modern ones.

"Under his hand an annual open air presentation of Shakespeare became a tradition and smacked very loudly of the real thing. Each semester three one act plays, and surprisingly good ones, written by members of his play writing class, were produced and he did much to make his students see the wealth of material that lies in Arizona, past and present. At his suggestion, the unimaginative name University Players, which is an Indian word with some deep significance which I have, of course, forgotten.

"Professor Heffner has answered the call to become a member of the faculty of his Alma Mater, and how drama fares at Arizona now, I do not know, but during Heffner's three brief years it was so alive that it awoke almost the entire student body to a surprised activity, and its vibrations seemed to penetrate every part of the university life."

Publications Make Many New Ventures During Past Year

Yackety Yack, Garland McPherson the Buccaneer, and Gordon Gray the Magazine.

The first of a series of changes designed to improve the Tar Heel was the installation of one full-time managing editor for the three editors. George Ehrhart replaced Will Yarborough, John Mebane, and Glenn Holder as managing editor for the paper. With this change, Glenn Holder, John Mebane, and Harry Galland were appointed associate editors and Will Yarborough placed in charge of the sport section.

The next change in the Tar Heel was the decision of the student body to establish a daily Tar Heel. Glenn Holder, of Greensboro, associate editor of the paper, was unopposed in the election of the editor for the coming year, and will direct the publication of the daily paper next year. In

Tar Heel Staff Notice

All members of the Tar Heel who expect to remain on the staff for the coming year must attend the meeting of the staff tonight at seven o'clock. Members not attending this meeting will be dropped. Beats for next year will be assigned at this meeting. All Assistant Editors are also expected to attend this meeting.

THIRD BOOK ON SHAW WRITTEN BY HENDERSON

Biographer of Bernard Shaw
Writes a Book Titled "Is Bernard
Shaw a Dramatist?"

The latest work of Dr. Archibald Henderson, noted mathematician and writer of a series of biographical sketches, is just off the press. This work is quaintly titled, "Is Bernard Shaw a Dramatist?" This title is particularly arresting, since it is a well-known fact that Dr. Henderson considers Shaw the greatest of the living dramatists. Many people say that Shaw is not a dramatist at all but merely a witty debater who casts his ideas into dramatic form.

The present volume, which is the third by Dr. Henderson having Bernard Shaw as a subject, discusses the whole matter in a humorous manner. The sub-title of the book is: "A Scientific but Imaginary Symposium in the neo-Socratic Manner: Conducted by Bernard Shaw's Biographer."

The substance of the book was recently delivered in the form of lectures at the Town Hall and at the Martin Beck Theater, New York City.

Final Night of Commencement Dances Will Feature Entire Affair; New Men Take Office

Last Issue of Tri-Weekly Paper

Today's issue of the Tar Heel will be the last one issued by the regular staff for 1928-1929. However, during Commencement Week many members of the regular staff will remain over to handle the first three issues of the Daily. Three daily issues will be published during Alumni Week and part of Commencement Week. Marion Alexander, Business Manager, and Walter Spearman, Editor, will manage the paper during its inauguration as a daily.

LITTLE RESIGNS POSITION HERE

Head of Department of Extension
Teaching Goes To Wisconsin
Post.

Prof. Malcolm G. Little has resigned as head of the department of Extension Teaching of the Extension Division of the University of North Carolina to accept a position as assistant director of the Milwaukee center of the University of Wisconsin Extension Division.

At Wisconsin Professor Little will be closely associated with Dean Chester D. Snell, head of the Extension Division, who formerly directed the Extension Division here. He will be in charge of the administration of the day and evening schools of the Milwaukee center.

A native of Connecticut, he was educated at Clark University and at Teachers College, Columbia University. He came here from Wilmington, where for 10 years he was principal of the high school there. Mr. and Mrs. Little are leaving Chapel Hill Saturday.

Dr. Ralph W. Tyler, a member of the extension teaching staff, will take over the administration of the extension teacher training program that was conducted by Professor Little.

Bowman Gray Writes History Of Dances Given in Chapel Hill Since Founding of Uni- versity.

In the early days, there were many obstacles to dancing in Chapel Hill. In the first place, there was a strong sentiment against dancing among some of the religious denominations, particularly the Methodists and Baptists. Then there was the difficulty of transportation, which made it impractical to have anything like the large number of social functions that form so important a part of college life today. Girls often had to come long distances over poor dirt roads and in horsedrawn vehicles. There was always the problem of finding a suitable hall for dancing purposes; also it was not so easy to secure an orchestra as is the case today.

Data are not available which show at just what time the German Club can be said to have had its origin. It is known, however, that as early as 1833 a committee elected by a mass meeting of students petitioned the University Trustees for the use of a room in Steward's Hall, in which to hold the Commencement Ball. The petition was granted, and the ball managers sent invitations to all the great men in the state, including the Governor, asking them to attend in order to give dignity to the occasion. It was also thought that the presence of the Governor at the ball would lend stability to the party.

The President procured from the Secretary of State a charter for an organization which he called the Gynnasium Association. The corporation was chartered, and prominent University alumni subscribed liberally to its stock. Land was bought adjacent to that belonging to the University and a hall built that was far superior to Smith Hall, the one in which

Ball Managers' Figure Will Be Tuesday Night With Execu- tive Committee's Wednesday Night; Six Dances Altogether.

Plans are practically complete for the final dances which will be held in Swain Hall June 10, 11, and 12. The German Club officers are taking great pains to make these dances the best set that has been held in recent years.

Dances will begin on the night of the tenth, with the Opening Ball lasting from 9 to 1. Tuesday, the second day, is the most strenuous day of the dances. The day begins with a morning dance beginning at 10:30 and lasting until 1 o'clock. The only afternoon dance will be held on this afternoon from 4:30 to 6:30.

Tuesday night is to be the time for the Ball Managers' and Commencement Marshalls' Ball. This dance will also be held from 9 until 1.

The closing day of dances has a morning dance and the Final Ball on its program. The morning dance will be held from 10:30 to 1 o'clock as will the other morning dance. There will be no event for that afternoon, but the main affair of the series will come that night. The final dance will be the time for the Executive Committee of the club to have its figure.

Frazier Glenn and Baron Holmes, who have so attractively decorated the dance halls recently, will be in charge of the decorating. Plans call for Swain Hall to be decorated in a futuristic scheme.

A large number of the social fraternities have declared their intentions of having house parties during the dances. Many of the most popular girls in the country and especially those from this and adjoining states are expected to be here.

There are a few vacancies for new members in the club, according to an announcement of Billy Marshall, secretary-treasurer of the club. All those interested in joining the club are requested to see Marshall at the Sigma Nu house almost any afternoon between now and the end of examinations.
