

The Wheels Start Moving

Legislature Meets Tomorrow

By Bob Walker
A definite stand on the V-12 Fees Bill will probably come when the Legislature meets tomorrow night at 8:00 in New East's Phi Hall for its first business session of the new trimester.
Action will be taken on the basis of recommendations drawn up this afternoon in a joint meeting of the PU Board and Finance committee.
Advisory Group
An advisory group from the Finance committee had earlier submitted suggestions to the committee, which is composed of E. O. Brogden, chairman; Kat Hill; Ed Clark; Jack Webb; Bob Burleigh; Lois Ribelin; Nancy Smith; and Reid Thompson. They will consider all possibilities and advise the legislators of their decision.
It was pointed out that Graham Memorial's board of directors has passed a resolution which will withdraw them from any block fee which may be passed; the athletic association has already set up its own fee; the PU Board has tentative plans for adopting a fee to cover both the TAR HEEL and Carolina Mag. Therefore the problem which is now before the Legislature is to decide what action must be taken to meet the changed circumstances caused by the two withdrawals.

Voting Privileges
Another question slated for discussion is that of voting privileges for the various military and civilian groups on the campus. As soon as it is completely appointed, the Elections committee will attempt settlement of that situation.
A special investigations committee headed by Bill Thompson will report its findings on the position of the Town Council. This group will probably recommend some change, either for reorganization or discontinuation, in an effort to unify town and campus. Town students on the committee besides Thompson are Lawrence Britt, Betty Marks, Hilda Weaver, and Charlie Vance.
New Officials
New speaker pro-tem of the Legislature is Dick Pollock. Also elected recently were Lawrence Britt as Elections committee chairman, and Marshall Parker as sergeant-at-arms.
Three action shots and one formal group picture will be taken for the Yackety Yack tomorrow night, it was announced.

For her chorus Miss Izen has selected coeds on the basis of their physical attractiveness and personality as well as their dancing ability. Chorines are Ginger Lippsey, Mary Payne Jett, Betsey Couch, Harriet Jefferson, Marion Saunders, Nancy Robinson, Peggy Miller, Gean Sasser, Jean Oberst, Jeanette Miller, Edith Shapiro, Monnie King, Jeanne Cannon, Peggy Teague, Betty Folsom, Cassie Caldwell, Elizabeth Stifel, and Peggy Stanton.
Orchestra in Pit
For the first time in a Sound and Fury show there will be an orchestra in the pit. Recruited by orchestrator Al Bergman, just for this show, it is made up of outstanding campus musicians. First on this list, is Les Leiber, tenor saxophone player, who before entering the Army ASTP had his own publicity office in New York and handled public relations for Harry James, Benny Goodman, and Paul Whiteman, and collaborated with Whiteman on a book, "How to Lead a Band." His first appearance on the Carolina campus was four years ago when he played with Paul Whiteman's orchestra for a Chesterfield show here.

Technical directors for the production are: Dot Brown, Scenery; Mary Lib Kearney, Stage Manager; Marguerite White, Costumes; Merrill Kelly, Lighting; and Fran Defendorf, Pub-be in fine shape for the Tar Heel game. The rapid improvement of Walter Stickel, a V-12 student who reported only three weeks ago, has greatly bolstered the Red and Blue line. A tackle on the freshman team, Stickel was shifted to guard when he reported and has taken hold of the job as though he had always held it. He may replace Ray Stengel, converted fullback, on the left side of the starting forward wall.

The Quakers' fullback spot remains open, however, with two stars vying for the starting nod. Art Vincent, a Pittsburgh boy, started the Navy game, but was replaced on occasions, notably, by little Grover Jones, a 5 foot 6 inch work-horse from the coal mining district of the Keystone state.

Bob Odell
Carolina followers, of course, will have all eyes upon the sensational Bob Odell at blocking back. Odell, prominent possibility for All-American honors, has played stellar ball throughout the season, proving the winning margin in more than one contest. His ability to block, tackle, call signals, pass, run, and receive, have made him an all-around threat, and a definite worry for the men from Carolina. Bob added to his sensational playing during the opening Quaker games this season by just recently scoring the tying tally against a favored Army eleven, and intercepting a Navy pass for the lone Penn score in last week's fracas.
The Tar Heels will be playing their first major contest following the Navy shuffle during mid-season. Coach Young, left without 9 regular starters and 22 varsity members, has had two weeks to revamp his squad in preparation for the Pennsylvania contest. His efforts have uncovered several new names, and proven their worth in the light of the last two Tar Heel victories.

Tar Heels
Carolina is expected to field pretty much the same line-up as that which met the Gamecocks. Joe Kosinski, freshman sensation from Andy Bershak's home town, is being counted licity. Directors Mary Louise Huse and Jack Ellis would like to have more assistant technicians, especially in lighting and scenery, and would like anyone interested to contact them.

ASTP Head Wears Two Silver Bars

Coming back from their seven day furlough, ASTP foreign area and language students no longer found their commanding officer to be Lt. Edward V. Horton. It is Captain Horton now. Also recently promoted was the executive officer, now 1st Lt. A. P. DiPasquale.
Last week a number of new ASTP students arrived at UNC as replacements.

Senior Budget Group

The Senior class Executive and Finance committees this week elected a Class Budget committee. Committee members are Turk Newsome, C. B. Cary, Mary Lou Truslow, Alice Hutchison and Jane McClure.

Speaking of American students, Dr. Sommer claimed he had never met a troublesome student since he has taught here, and that is probably because he is not the type of professor that students enjoy troubling.

upon to repeat his previous performances against State and South Carolina, while his reserve Howard Weldon, last year's Alabama freshman guard, will probably see plenty of action, in view of his fine showing last week.

It will take a formidable offense to bring home a victory from Philadelphia, however, and attention this week during practice has been placed not merely on the usual scouting reports but a great deal on the offensive possibilities of the traditional single wing. Besides Kosinski, the backfield will probably boast Billy Myers, Hosea Rodgers, who scored two of the Tar Heels' three touchdowns against the Gamecocks, and Jack Fitch, sophomore wing back, who rose to a starting varsity berth following the Navy graduation.

The line will feature Henry and Barney Poole at the ends; Cornogg and Oliver Poole at tackle; Jones and Strayhorn at guard; and Richardson at center.

Although songs from Gilbert and Sullivan works are preferred, any vocal selection will do for the voice tests.
