PU Board Appoints Flagler, Wallace To Tar Heel Posts

By VITA RICHTER

Due to recent resignations, the Publications Union Board held an emergency meeting on Sunday afternoon at three p.m. in Graham Memorial and appointed Fred Flagler, managing editor, and James Wallace, circulation manager respectively of the Tar Heel.

Flagler was sports editor of the Tar Heel last year under Horace Carter, AS, USNR, and at the same time worked for the University News Bureau. While in high school at High Point, he was editor of the school newspaper, "Pointer." During the past summer he wrote sports news for the High Point Enterprise and handled state desk.

The new circulation manager, Jimmy Wallace, filled this recently vacated position on a temporary basis from August 27 to September 18, but the election makes his appointment official. He is the oldest member of the TH staff in length of time served and is now enrolled in law school here.

"Cookie" Maret was unanimously elected secretary of the PU Board, and Fred Flagler its treasurer in place of the retiring temporary members, Miss Vita Richter and John Kerr, USNR. The matter of the appointment of a managing editor of the Yackety Yack was temporarily shelved when the board's authority to make such an appointment was questioned. The history of emergency appointments to the Yack includes two appointments by the PU board which were subsequently approved by the student legislature. They were: Hunt Hobbs on September 29, 1942, and Karl Bishop on April 8, 1943.

It was pointed out by some members present that the board's only authority was the appointment of a business manager since the board's original purpose was for fiscal purposes alone. Further it was suggested that in the past the editor appointed the entire staff, and last year when Tyler Nourse was elected editor of the Yack he appointed Cookie managing editor, in which capacity she has acted since.

Pending a further clarification of this matter, Miss Maret was designated to act in the capacity of editor for a conference yesterday afternoon with representatives from the Charlotte Engraving Co. and Lassiter Press. This conference is necessary now since nothing has been done all summer on the yearbook, and new decisions need to be made immediately concerning paper and layout. A dummy is to be prepared by Cookie pending further appointments.

Thus the notice which appeared in last issue of the Tar Heel is void, since no managing editor will be appointed, but applications for editor should be submitted to Margaret Woodhouse at the Yackety Yack office in Graham Memorial.

The Publications Union Board is working on budgets at this time and Floyd Gillis of the Student Audit Board has been invited to the next meeting on September 28 for an open discussion.

Present at the meeting were Dr. W. Wells, Dr. E. Hartsell, Dr. J. Lear, Margaret Woodhouse, Cookie Maret, Fred Flagler and Vita Richter.

Welfare Fund For Navy Men Is Explained

False Rumors On Expenses Cleared

The Navy V-12 Welfare Fund, composed of the profits derived from the operation of the Scuttlebutt during the period in which it was operated as a Ship's Service, was created for the benefit of the V-12 unit as a whole, and according to members of the auditing committee, none of this fund has been spent for the benefit of any group or activity which did not offer equal benefits to all members of the unit.

This statement was issued in answer to a number of false rumors concerning the alleged use of Welfare Funds in financing several dances and parties at which the attendance was limited to some special group rather than the entire unit. All of these rumors were declared to be false and entirely without basis.

The main expenditures to date have been for theatre tickets which were distributed to all V-12 men several weeks ago, and for various items of furniture including chairs, tables and ash trays which have been placed in the lounges of the Navy dormitories. However, the dances which have been held in Woollen Gymnasium on the last two Friday nights were financed by the fund. Arrangements for the last dance were made by the Fleet Club but it was pointed out that the dance was held for the entire unit and was not to be considered as a Fleet Club function.

The Welfare Fund is administered by the V-12 Commandant upon the recommendation of the Welfare Fund Auditing Committee which is composed of Capt. J. W. Marshall, Lieut. J. D. Hill and Lieut. L. A. Rich, representing the Marine V-12, Navy V-12 and NROTC, respectively. It was added that, although suggestions for spending money and applications for such expenditures may be made to any member of this committee, all such expenditures must have the approval of the Commandant before they can be granted.

Staff Meeting

There will be an important staff meeting of the TAR HEEL in the office in Graham Memorial Thursday afternoon at five o'clock. All old staff members and those persons desiring to work on the TAR HEEL this year are asked to attend the meeting.

Two important bills are up for analysis tomorrow night at the Dialectic Senate as this organization convenes for its 150th consecutive year on the Carolina campus.

The first bill, listed on the calendar as a business resolution, is a motion seeking the establishment of two separate parties in this, the second oldest extra-curricular organization in the United States. The bill is sponsored by Senator Bill Parker.

The bill for formal discussion, sponsored by Senators Trimy Crossman and Julia Moody, has as its objective the establishment of federalized education in the United States. Notice has been served by the States' Righters that opposition to this bill will be heated and a fiery discussion is expected.

Boasting such famous men as William Davie, James K. Polk (who later became president of the United States), and the University's own Dr. Frank Graham and Dean Francis Bradshaw, the Di Senate has continued for one and a half centuries to be one of the leading discussion groups on campus.

The Di meets regularly on the 3rd floor of New West every Wednesday night at 9 o'clock. The Di possesses a private Senate hall in which these meetings are held. Its rule of order is parliamentary procedure strictly enforced.

All new students who are interested in formal discussion and who would like to attend Di meetings are welcome. The floor is open to all visitors and any student may participate in the discussions. Persons wishing to become members of the Di are asked to attend tomorrow night's meeting. Application blanks may be found at the "Y" office. Personal interviews by the membership committee are required before any student may be proposed for membership.

The officers of the Dialectic Senate are President, Bill Crisp; President pro-tempore, Bill Mackie; Clerk, Bob Rolnik; Sergeant-at-Arms, Carl Rhinehart; Critic, Bob Gurney; Debate Council Representative, Buddy Glenn. The office of Treasurer will be filled tomorrow night. Members are urged to attend.

Reunion For Old Grail Members Held

The Order of the Grail which held a reception after the Wake Forest-Carolina game Saturday for the members of the organization who could attend, held a reunion by mail for those who couldn't attend.

Invitations were mailed to the alumni members of the Grail asking them to look homeward September 23. The invitation was an attractively printed booklet which included a synopsis of the present activity of the Grail and a picture of Old East which is familiar to the older members of the outstanding campus group.

Along with the invitation, the Grail mailed cards to alumni members, asking them to write and tell how they were getting along. Approximately 200 answers were received and posted Saturday on a colorful purple and white board which had as its centerpiece the gold plated Grail plaque. Letters and cards were received from Grail members who are scattered from the Aleutians to Australia and from

Nancy Smith Gets Close To Nature Via Hostelry

High up in the mountains above the timber line in the glorious White mountains of Mass., Nancy Smith former President of the PU board, Phi Beta Kappa graduate of last June, almost gave herself up for lost when the heavy mists surrounding the mountain top hid the tiny lodging house from view. Fortunately for her, her companions were experienced travelers, and reconnoitering a little down the pathway, they found the tiny cabin lodged along the roadway, and the frozen travelers gratefully took refuge inside its depths.

Nancy, who hails from Brooklyn and lived in the west before coming to Chapel Hill eight years ago with her mother and sister, said she was always interested in the youth hostel movement and determined that when she was 21 she would take such a trip through the mountains by bicycle and foot.

She wrote to the National Youth Hostel, Inc., in Northfield, Mass., and received from them a reservation for her trip, directions for preparing equipment and a list of necessary items.

She left Chapel Hill in August and stopped in New York to visit her grandmother and meanwhile made for herself clothing that she would need. From Wave cloth rejects she fashioned a pair of shorts, a blouse, a skirt and a sleeping sheet and shopping in the store she purchased a knapsack and other paraphernalia. By adding a pair of seersucker shorts, slacks, a heavy sweater, windbreaker, a pair of moccasins and a compass she started for Northfield ready for her adventure.

The hostels were all modeled after the first of these, the Northfield hostel, which was planned and founded by Isabel and Monroe Smith. It consisted of two floors divided into a recreation room and kitchen downstairs and sleeping bunks in bedrooms upstairs.

Extensive 'Y' Activities Set For New Coeds

YWCA plans for the year include a freshman council for new coeds. The new council, according to Sammy McEachern, has been organized to include all new girls on campus and to better acquaint newcomers with the work of the "Y."

McEachern, who has recently returned from a forum conducted for "Y" presidents at Columbia University, reports that arrangements have been made for the first membership meeting of the organization to be held on October 2.

Members of the "Y" cabinet will call on coeds this week in order to inform them of the nature of "Y" work and offer opportunity for committee membership.

Further plans of the YWCA include supper forums to be held every Friday night and brief worship services which will be held in each dormitory one night during the week. Cooperation among YW and YM officers is a main objective for the year. At the present time the councils of the two organizations are working jointly on a series of free educational movies to be presented to students.

Student Council Posts Open For Two Civilians

Boxes will be placed in the lobby of the "Y" on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week to receive nominations of civilian men students for positions on the student council.

This is for the purpose of filling two vacancies just created by the resignation of Turk Newsome and Jim Hudson who resigned because of other duties.

Nominations are to be placed in the boxes and should include the name and local address of nominee, how long he has been at Carolina, how long he expects to remain and a detailed list of his experience and qualifications which would fit him for work on the student council.

Coed Ball Set For Friday Night

The annual coed ball will get underway in Woollen Gym Friday night with Freddie Johnson, popular campus band leader and his talented group of swingsters set to furnish the music.

The ball will be a semi-formal affair according to an announcement by Kitty Kelly, speaker of the senate and Travis Hunt, co-chairman of the dance committee. Blind dates were being arranged for the 400 juniors, starting last Friday.

The Coed Senate-sponsored affair promises to be a highlight in fall dances. Navy men are to have late permission to attend the dance.

Motion Made By Dr. Emory Is Approved

Friday Session Is Interesting

The Tar Heel learned from Dean F. F. Bradshaw, chairman of the steering committee of the faculty forum, that the faculty had approved a plan which grew out of a July forum discussion for the establishment of co-ordinated programs of study in the University after the war.

Meeting in their regular business session Friday, the faculty held an interesting meeting in which post war plans for extensive formulation of simultaneous courses was discussed.

Dr. J. O. Bailey, Dr. Harry Russell and Dr. Raymond Adams were appointed by the head of the English department to study post war plans for their particular department. Dr. N. W. Robson, of the Political Science department and Dr. F. C. Erickson, of the Geology-Geography department have also done extensive research on the new plan. Other similar committees have been formed and many more resolutions are expected to be adopted by the faculty in their business meetings as the plans are construed in the forum sessions which are held monthly.

Dr. S. T. Emory summarized the discussion of the forum meeting held last July and presented a motion to the faculty business session. The forum meetings do not propose or adopt any motions. Their function is simply to discuss plans for the betterment of the entire educational program here, according to Dean Bradshaw. The motion as presented to the faculty meeting last Friday by Dr. Emory is as follows: Moved:

That a Committee on Co-ordinated Programs be set up to invite the several departments of the University to offer co-ordinated programs of study leading to desirable objectives within their general areas of interest, and to advise with departments in preparing such programs and with students who wished to take such programs or to propose programs of their own; and to collect such programs of study into suitable format and set them in the University Catalog in form convenient for students and advisers of students.

There is a general feeling among educational leaders here that the present program of education lacks something in that students are taking courses aimlessly. The plans for co-ordination of study call for as an example the simultaneous study of a student in English of a novel which has a direct bearing on say a particular course in psychology. Various department heads and members of respective departments will plan such programs in an effort to present the students with the best possible schedule of study when the student begins his junior year.

Students will be given the opportunity to plan a coordinated program of study according to the motion made by Dr. Emory and with the help of faculty adviser suggestions, faculty members feel that in years to come the University Record will have several possible plans for such programs. The motion calls for suitable publication of the proposed programs in the Record.
