CPU To Bring Lister Hill To Campus

Famed Liberal Set To Speak For Roosevelt Plans Being Made For Radio Hookup

New Deal man of action Lister Hill, junior senator from Alabama and one of the South's most spirited progressives, will send the Carolina Political Union speaker program for the year off to a bang-up start when he addresses the campus from Memorial Hall at 8 p.m. Saturday, October 7, on the topic, "Roosevelt Must Be Re-elected."

Hill will arrive from Raleigh with Joseph Daniels, ex-ambassador to Mexico and owner of the Raleigh News and Observer, sometime Saturday afternoon. He will be met in Raleigh by CPU chairman Jimmy Wallace and a reception committee. A banquet in his honor will be given at the Carolina Inn at 6 p. m. for members of the CPU and civil and military administrative officials. The speech, which will be concluded with a question-and-answer period, will be followed by a reception at Graham, Memorial, open to everyone.

The senator's unflinching stand behind the New Deal Democrats has led him into battles in behalf of adequate military preparation long before the imminence of war, working with Billy Mitchell in his insistence that air power be given cardinal importance in the military program. As a member of the senate military affairs committee, he came into sharp conflict with "Our Bob" Reynolds, who headed that group for some time, over the probability of America's becoming involved in war, the North Carolinian combatting measures for preparedness on the conviction that there would be no conflict.

Having done what he could to prepare for war, Senator Hill has since devoted his efforts to preparation for peace. He represents one of the "H's" in the B2H2 (Ball-Burton-Hatch-Hill) resolution for the establishment and maintenance of an international authority with the power to preserve international peace.

In 1940 it was he who had the privilege of nominating President Roosevelt for a third term. His backing of Roosevelt policies has been constant, and his speech Saturday night before the student body will be a first-hand report on the chief executive based on close friendship and understanding. With unprecedented enthusiasm the people of his state have given him their unquestioned support, having elected him to the House of Representatives seven times without opposition before sending him to the Senate.

Popular with the press as one who enjoys talking either on or off the platform, Hill was described by the Atlantic Monthly in May as one "nearest to the great 18th century Southerners, who were at once revolutionaries and builders."

Paul Young Needs Tenors and Altos For Choral Group

The University Glee Clubs, to date with a membership of 125 members announced that there are still vacancies in both the men's and women's clubs. Altos and tenors are especially needed, announced director Paul Young.

Despite war time transportation difficulties it is hoped that the Men's Glee Club can make some trips to near-by points. The Men's Glee Club will present a joint concert with the Women's Glee Club in a program of Christmas music, early in December. Each club will present a portion of the concert and will join in some work to close the program. Portions of the concert will be broadcast, and other special radio programs are being arranged.

Requests from army camps are already arriving for the services of the Women's Glee Club. The women's club is expected to take several trips to camps in the area.

Members of both glee clubs are invited to sing with the Chapel Hill Choral Club, which will give Handel's "The Messiah" before Christmas vacation.

Freshmen Orientated In Two Week Session

Orientation exercises for the new freshman class have been in full swing for the past two weeks to help familiarize the new students with the campus and its traditions.

The freshmen, meeting in Gerrard Hall each Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights have heard representatives of various campus organizations give brief talks on the functions and purposes of their respective groups.

Bill McNeely, vice-president of the Student Council, presided over the freshman chapels and inaugurated the new men in Carolina's honor system.

Informative speeches by Dr. Bagby and Dean House rounded out one of the longest freshman orientation periods of University at war.

Because of fraternity rushing, freshmen did not meet last night, but their tri-weekly sessions will continue next week.

Di Votes Down Federalized Education

In one of the most hotly contested sessions of its recent history, the Dialectic Senate voted down, Wednesday night, a federalized education bill aimed at establishing federal control and finance of public education systems.

The bill, presented by Senator Moody of Atlanta, Ga., embraced 10 articles and, besides several technical stipulations, provided for a National Commission of Education in which each of the forty-eight states would have one representative. Appropriations for a standardization of curricula, facilities, and personnel were to come from Congress and compulsory attendance of all citizens between the ages of 7 and 18 was to be imposed.

Three amendments to this bill failed. One, seeking to remove the minimum of 9 months school terms, was proposed by Senator Gurney but was shortly defeated.

Previously, in business session, Senator Will Parker produced a bill seeking DI VOTES, page 3

Owen Hall Elects Slate Of Officers In Lengthy Session

In a two hour session punctuated by frequent debates on parliamentary procedure, Owen Hall elections were held on Wednesday night, to name officers who will serve until spring.

Tom Robinson was re-elected to the post of representative to the student legislature and Marvin Morillo was re-elected president of the hall over former Inter-Dormitory Council member Lewis Heniford, who was elected vice-president.

In the elections for Inter-Dormitory Council, the two men who received the posts were Bob Rolnik and Pat Kelly. John May was elected again as Athletic Manager, and David Lillenthal was chosen for the second time as secretary.

John May announced that the first football practice for the forthcoming touch football season would be held on Friday afternoon.

PU Board Recommendation of Cookie Marrett Is Accepted

Along with the discussion of a proposed amendment to the constitution providing for the election of members to the Men's Honor Council, the main action of the Student Legislature in their first fall session Thursday night, was the appointment of Cookie Marrett to the post of acting editor of the Yackety Yack.

Publications Granted $200 For Dark Room

Audit Board Member Heard By PU Group

Aside from the decision to recommend Cookie Marrett to the Legislature for the position of acting editor of the Yackety Yack, the PU board passed on a proposed appropriation of $200 for the establishment of darkroom facilities.

The proposal which was made by Marrett calls for the organization of darkroom facilities which would be available for use by all campus publications, including the News Bureau.

Dr. E. H. Hartsell proposed that the darkroom equipment be supervised by some PU board appointee. This proposal was put in the form of a motion and passed by the board. Applications for the post as manager of the Carolina Publications darkroom will be considered by the PU board when it meets in regular session next Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Floyd Gillis, member of the Student Audit Board, attended the meeting as a guest in which he made suggestions as to the publication budgeting and investing. Gillis stated that the Student Audit Board did not desire to antagonize the PU board, but simply asked that the PU board hear the audit board views on the matter.

The surplus which has been effected throughout the history of the PU board has been invested in common stocks. Gillis advised that common stocks were no good investment for a public trust which he considered the PU fund was. Gillis suggested that the board place the funds into a more stable investment.

In order to cover losses which were suffered on last year's Yackety Yack and other expenses a proposal was made last summer to borrow $3,000. The proposal never got any further. Gillis stated in the meeting Thursday that he saw no need for borrowing when the common stocks could be turned into negotiable investment.

No immediate action was taken by the PU board on the matter, but members of the board agreed that the board should have at least a part of the surplus in a flexible investment.

The Publications Union board met in special session Thursday afternoon to secure a recommendation for the legislature. Marrett was selected by the PU board and recommended to the legislature. The action was necessitated by the resignation of Tyler Nourse who was elected editor last spring.

Marrett has had considerable publication experience, having served as business manager of the Washington Seminary, Atlanta, Ga., annual and written radio script for Atlanta radio stations. She served as managing editor of the Yackety Yack under Karl Bishopric last year and was elected member at large of the PU board for this year. This summer she secured a master's certificate in photography from New York University.

The bill, as brought forth by Ways and Means Committee Chairman Libba Wiggins, provides that at the coming general elections in November the membership of the Student Council be elected by the student body, instead of being added to the council by self-perpetuation. Taking its cue from official figures supplied by Captain E. E. Hazlett, V-12 commandant, the bill proposes a thirteen member council, with the ratio of four civilians, two naval V-12ers, one ROTC, and one Marine V-12, in addition to two hold-over members, to be elected by the council from its past membership. There would be one military and one civilian holdover member. Officers of the council would be elected by the campus at large, including coeds.

Three speakers favored the bill, when the Legislature resolved into a Committee of the Whole. One member, Lucy Lee Kennedy, expressed the opposition's sentiments, stating that under the present setup the Council has an equal number of United and University Party members, whereas the elections would not favor such equality. Miss Kennedy continued that the Council has worked well, and commended it.

Douglas Hunt, member-at-large, keynoted the ideas of those favoring the bill, and pointed out that while Miss Kennedy's commendations were "an apology in the highest sense—for a job well done" sight must not be lost of the fact that under the existing system student government is not in the hands of the governed. He added that the time to fight for student government was always, and that it was unwise to wait until it was out of student hands to revolt. He explained that we cannot lose sight of the gains of 150 years of student government on the Carolina campus because of an emergency situation.

Other speakers in favor of the bill were Cecil Hill, a law student, and Bob Gurney, an undergraduate. The amendment will come before the Legislature for a final vote next Thursday.

The Legislature also passed a bill providing for the election of holdover members, until elections. Three vacancies exist at present. The holdover members will be chosen by the legislature from the ranks of former members.
