Film Producers Arrived Here Yesterday

Plan To Shoot Actual Takes Next Week

Desire Students For Group Shots

Raoul E. Pagel arrived here yesterday from Hollywood and immediately began laying the groundwork for filming the local shots in the forthcoming movie of the late Tom Wolfe's best-seller, "Look Homeward, Angel."

Mr. Pagel, who is production manager for the company, said that Arthur Ripley, the co-producer and director, and the other members are due to arrive on Saturday or Sunday, and the actual "shooting" is scheduled to begin next Wednesday.

Mr. Wolfe, who is ranked in the

"EXTRAS" AND "CROWDS"

The movie company can use a limited number of "extras" for the filming of classroom and campus shots next Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, Mr. Pagel told the Tar Heel last night. Any men or women students who are interested are invited to leave their names at the desk in the Y.M.C.A. Lobby today (Saturday).

The studio can also use any number of students and townspeople, up to 1,500, for the crowd scenes in the Playmakers' Forest Theatre, scheduled for 12 o'clock next Thursday and Friday, which will be the highlights of the whole production.

There is no pay for this, just the chance to see how the movies work, and to take a part in a great picture honoring the University campus and its famous alumnus, Tom Wolfe. No need to register; just be on hand at the Forest Theatre a few minutes before noon on Thursday, October 26.

very forefront of modern American novelists by many critics, was a native of Asheville and an alumnus of the University of North Carolina. A large part of the book dealt with his life as a student here, and persons and scenes in Chapel Hill are to figure prominently in the forthcoming motion picture version.

"In normal times we would bring the whole troupe to the University and take all of the local scenes in the picture here," Mr. Pagel explained yesterday. "However, this would require moving over a hundred people across the country, which would take several pullmans, two baggage cars, and a special train.

"This being impossible in these times, we will do the next best thing, taking all the background material here that we need, and then 'cutting this into' the parts which we take in Hollywood."

In this way, Mr. Pagel said, the company will have to bring only eight or ten key-men to Chapel Hill, including the producer, director, cameramen, and stand-ins for "Eugene Gant" and the main characters. He plans to have all preliminary arrangements ready for "shooting" by the first of the week and to devote the rest of next week to actual "takes."

After leaving here, the troupe will

Seven Students Are Selected To Run For Key Positions

Although talk of the forthcoming elections has been brewing for some time the first official mention of party candidates was made late Thursday night when the University Party announced its full slate of candidates for key campus posts.

The Student Party which is being organized has not yet made official statement of its candidates to the Tar Heel. Both parties, however, are earnestly gearing for action in the November elections.

The University Party will support in the forthcoming election Archie Hood for the post of vice-president of the student body; Bill "Jenks" Tripp for secretary and treasurer of the same organization; Charles Hackney for Speaker of the Legislature; Charles Wickenberg for editor of the Tar Heel and Jeanne Parry for editor of the Yackety Yack. Jim Dillard was selected as a candidate for membership on the PU board and Bob Weant for vice-president of the CAA. The above mentioned posts are campus wide, and are actually the main positions as far as the student body and publications are concerned.

Other candidates listed under the wing of University Party support are Dick Ferguson, Jim Boothe and Dick Ford for civilian student council representatives; Jack Vernier and Forrest Leathers for Marine student council posts; Johnny Ring for V-12 student council representative and Mason Whitney for NROTC council representative.

Heading the University Party this year is Dick Willingham as chairman, Ted Haigler as vice-chairman, Winkie White as secretary and Fret Crider as treasurer.

Investigation of the proposed expenditures for each candidate is being made in order to keep the party within the expense bounds of election bills passed by the student legislature.

According to the general agreement of student leaders, the elections will be conducted as soon after the start of the trimester as possible.

Charles Hackney hails from Washington, D. C. He was a member of the tennis team last spring, president of the University club, president of Kappa Sigma, member of the legislature, and prior to attending the University was a page at the nation's capital. Jeanne Parry is from Miami, Fla. While here she served on the Yack staff last year and in Harcum junior college she participated in the publication of the yearbook.

Charles Wickenberg, candidate for editor of the Tar Heel, has been a member of the Tar Heel staff during the summer months. Prior to coming to Carolina, Marine Wickenberg was stationed at the University of South Carolina where he was a member of the Gamecock, official student newspaper. He is a member of the YMCA cabinet, the interfraternity council and a member of Sigma Nu.

Carolina Debaters Meet Georgia Team

Charles Nice and Julia Moody will make the trip to Athens, Ga., November 4 to represent the University of North Carolina in a dual debate with the University of Georgia.

Extensive tryouts were held Tuesday night in the Grail Room, and from the 13 students who vied for the privilege, the Debate Council selected four to participate in the debate.

Charles Nice and Julia Moody will debate the affirmative in Athens, and Herbert Weber and Billy Mackie will debate the negative here.

The debate, scheduled for Saturday night, November 4, will embrace a pertinent topic: Resolved that a fourth term is justifiable.

In the debate which was held earlier this week, on the similar subject: Resolved that President Roosevelt should be elected rather than Thomas E. Dewey in the coming elections, Robert Morrison and Charles Nice, upholding the affirmative defeated Billy Mackie and Bill Crisp.

The Council has announced plans for conducting its annual intramural debate tournament during the last week in November. All students may engage in this tournament and all organizations are invited to sponsor teams. A trophy will go to that organization whose team wins the most debates.

Tar Heels in Service

Since Pearl Harbor, the casualty list of UNC alumni in service has reached 205, according to figures compiled through October 13 and released by the secretary's office of the General Alumni Association. One hundred and seventy-nine citations, excluding Purple Hearts, have been awarded to Carolina alumni, and of the casualties, 110 are dead, 44 missing and 54 wounded.

Pharmacy School Celebrates 50th Year Wednesday; Commemorates Founders

By Pat Kelly

Dr. Edward Victor Zoeller of Tarboro and Franklin Wills Hancock of Oxford, the two men largely responsible for the founding a half-century ago of the University of North Carolina School of Pharmacy, will be honored at a testimonial dinner here Wednesday night, October 25.

The event is being arranged by the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association, and druggists from all sections of the state are expected to attend to join with the School of Pharmacy in honoring the "two grand old men of pharmacy in North Carolina," who have also won national recognition, including the presidencies of the two major national professional bodies.

The Pharmacy School at the University of North Carolina, which is now the largest in the South and ranks as one of the best in the nation, was started as the result of repeated requests from members of the State Association. Dr. Zoeller and Mr. Hancock, who are the only living charter members, were both members of the Committee on Education, which led the campaign for the school here. That was in 1897, and the School of Pharmacy and the parent Association have worked hand-in-glove ever since for the best in pharmaceutical training, standards, and progress.

Chapel Hill druggists look to the local school for between 90 and 95 percent of their new men and women each year, and when there is an acute shortage in pharmacists, as at present, the Association aids the school in interesting new students, providing them scholarships, and placing them in good jobs.

This closely-knit working partnership has been a major factor in the school's steady growth from one professor, 17 students, and two rooms down till today, when it has a faculty of six, a peacetime enrollment of 150, and its own building with 35 rooms, including its own auditorium, library, laboratories, and dispensaries.

Enrollment in most professional schools is, of course, way off due to the war, but the first-year pharmacy class here numbers 22 boys and 22 girls, all of them 16 and 17 year-olds, and three returning "GIs," and is said to be the largest first-year class in any school in the East.

The Association also has its offices in the Pharmacy School, thus making Howell Hall play the dual role as headquarters of the University's School of Pharmacy and as the capital for the druggists of the state.

Dean Edward Vernon Howell was the first head of the school, serving from 1897 until his death in 1931. Dean J. G. Beard, who had been a member of the faculty since 1909, has held the post for the past 13 years. W. A. Gilliam of Winston-Salem is president of the State Association, and W. J. Smith is secretary, with offices here in Chapel Hill.

In addition to their part in securing a Pharmacy School here, Mr. Hancock served as trustee of the University for 14 years, while Dr. Zoeller was awarded the honorary degree of Doctor of Pharmacy here in 1922. The latter was honorary president of the American Pharmaceutical Association in 1929-30, while Mr. Hancock was honorary president of the National Association of Boards of Pharmacy in 1934-35.

Bill Tripp Elected To Head Veterans

Meeting Wednesday night in Graham Memorial, the University Veterans Association elected officers and accepted a combination of the two proposed constitutions.

Newly elected president Bill Tripp, president of Steele Dorm and member of the Student Council, announced that Jim Booth was elected vice president, Jim Hedrick secretary and Preston Lemley treasurer.

The Veterans decided to promote the general welfare of veterans and to work in close cooperation with other campus organizations. They also intend to bring about a harmonious relation between veterans, servicemen on campus and the civilian students.

First Coed Hour Held Thursday In Hill Hall

The first in the series of Coed Hours being sponsored by the Coed Senate was held Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock in Hill Hall. Kitty Kelly, speaker of the senate, presided.

The senators who planned the program were Dot Phillips, Betty Lou Cypert, Mary Payne Jett, and Nancy Jane King.

The meeting was divided into four parts. Kitty first introduced some outstanding women on the campus. Dr. Ruby Smith from the University infirmary reminded girls about rules regarding the use of the infirmary. Then Kitty introduced Mrs. M. W. Findley, superintendent of nurses; Miss Geraldine Foster, assistant dean of arts and sciences; Miss Helen McDevitt, math instructor; and Mrs. N. B. Adams, supervisor of War Information Center. Miss Helen McDevitt has the distinction of being the first full time math instructor in the history of the University.

Following these introductions, Nancy Jane King, president of the Valkyries, told of the aims and objectives of this organization. She explained that the Valkyries is the honorary society for women on campus and members are selected for leadership, loyalty, character and scholarship.

Then Betty Lou Cypert, chairman of senate elections committee, explained the new amendments to the constitution. Afterwards the coeds voted on these amendments as well as on the 1944-45 constitution as a whole. The

At a special election by the International Relations club, Lee Silverstein was unanimously chosen by the IRC members as secretary of the organization. Edith Hash, former secretary, is graduating from Carolina at the end of this term.

Filling its membership requirements, the International Relations club has accepted twelve out of thirty applicants for full membership while nine students were chosen for associate-membership.

After the interviews last week, the following were accepted for full membership: Sara Hebson, Benton Johnson, Rita Lemkin, George Prillman, Glenn Miller, Barbara Schuster, Maxwell Borow, Elaine Bates, Dorothy Rhyne, Gloria Chapman, Richard Wambach, and Myra Sklarey.

Associate-members included: Anne Osborne, Elmo Roberts, Peggy Case, Dot Jansen, Catherine Sloan, Frances Privette, Nancy Correll, Alandra Kambis, and Robert Parham.

The International Relations club has planned a full program for the first trimester, including weekly discussions on topics of current interest and faculty forums on subjects of long-range significance.

CPU Meeting

The Carolina Political union will delve into internal economics tomorrow at 8 p.m. in the Grail room of Graham Memorial, when it enters a discussion of "Industrial Wages, Farm Income and Inflation." Non-members are welcome to participate.

Collection Problem Confronts Yack Business Manager

"OBLIVION IS STARING THE YACKETY YACK IN THE FACE." Such is the startling statement made by Cookie Marett, legislature-appointed editor.

"The students here can save it, though," she went on, "by paying $1.25 by the end of this six weeks term." But, she stressed, to insure its publication EVERY CIVILIAN STUDENT, INCLUDING THE GRADUATES, SHOULD PAY THE FEE. Graduate students will be represented by a special section this year. This fee was formerly collected from each class through the University, but this cannot be done this year due to the fact that the legislature has abolished all class organizations except the Freshman class. The fee cannot be collected from the Freshman class as a class because it is impossible to call a class meeting on such short order.

"It has to be done this way," Miss Marett said, "because there is no other authority that now has that power." Collections will be made individually, starting today. Town students will pay at a booth to be set up in the "Y" either today or Monday.

Other dorms, fraternity, and sorority houses with their official collectors are listed below. Each collector will have a receipt book. Miss Marett warns: "Be sure to get your receipt. They are
