Annual Rally Features Beat Dook Campaign

Carolina Delegates Place Hunt, Crisp In Top Posts

Bernard Was Key Figure

Carrying top honors for the second consecutive year, Carolina's delegation to the eighth annual Student Legislative Assembly in Raleigh elected the two highest officers of the session. Bill Crisp and Douglas Hunt were elected respectively to the Presidency of the Senate and the Speakership of the House.

Carolina's delegation Chairman, Rene Bernard, was instrumental in securing the political support of the various delegations which assembled in Raleigh from 13 different schools. It is the second time in the Assembly's history that one delegation has elected both the Speaker of the House and President of the Senate. Carolina's 1943 delegation succeeded in electing the same officers in the seventh annual Assembly.

During the caucus for election of assembly officers, State College Chairman Mandell stated the rule that no two schools would be permitted to hold positions of equal rank in both houses. On a motion from the floor, however, this rule was suspended.

Immediately following the caucus for elections, the Assembly was honored by addresses from Governor J. Melville Broughton and Secretary of State Thad Eure. Both men lauded the educational objectives of the assembly and commented briefly upon the recent political elections held November 7.

Several interesting bills, both of state-wide and national significance, were presented by the several delegations. Carolina's bill outlawing closed shops and non-union shops was passed by both houses. Likewise, by unanimous approval of the Senate, and by a substantial majority in the House, the Carolina bill calling for an increase in the salaries of state-education personnel was favorably endorsed.

State College presented a bill for state-socialized medicine, a program which would provide a minimum of at least one 60 bed hospital in each county. This bill narrowly passed the House by a vote of 50 to 43. Its passage in the Senate was by a much greater majority.

Carolina's delegation also succeeded in passing a bill to appropriate $500,000 for research in agriculture, industry, health, and culture. This research would be administered by the State Planning Board, now located here.

The thirteen colleges which participated in the Assembly hailed from all over the state. Besides the delegations from State College, Carolina, and Wake Forest, representatives were present from St. Mary's, Meredith, Campbell College, Atlantic Christian College, WCUNC, ECTC, Elon College, Brevard College, Lenoir-Rhyne and Lees McRae.

The most heated discussion of the session arose in the Senate when Wake Forest presented a bill for lowering the voting age requirement to eighteen years. The Senate spent almost an hour on this bill and it finally passed by a slim margin. This is the same resolution which will be the topic for Carolina's approaching intramural debate tournament.

A great deal of interest was taken in the session's bills, not only by the 175 delegates who attended, but likewise by the Raleigh newspapers. All resolutions passed by both houses are

Only Post With Three Runners

Bill Crisp, Dal Davis and Archie Hood in a three way race for the student council post of vice-president, make up something unique in the election of the top candidates as in no other department is there a three-way race.

Ciechanowski May Not Be In IRC Forum Here Thursday

A letter from the Polish Ambassador Jan Ciechanowski received yesterday by Buddy Glenn, president of the International Relations club, places a shadow around the probability of the diplomat's appearing Thursday night as scheduled due to his attendance at the Civil Aviation Conference in Chicago which may not adjourn until later in the week.

Walter Judd Called Back To Congress

Religious Emphasis Week, which was featured by the presence of Congressman Walter Judd who was scheduled to deliver several addresses in connection with the YMCA and YWCA planned program, came to a close last night.

Congressman Judd told members of the YMCA and the YWCA that if in the case that any important legislation came up he would have to cut short his program here. Judd is to appear in Congress today and will be unable to deliver the scheduled address tonight.

Judd made an outstanding impression in local circles with his speeches Sunday and it was the program leaders' regret that he could not remain to complete his discussions.

The scheduled forum sessions at various dormitories which was set for tonight was also called off yesterday which actually marked the end of the Religious Emphasis Week program.

Paul Young To Make Campus Debut In Hill Hall Tomorrow

Up in Vermont in the springtime when the maple sap rises and the snows melt on the hills, the birds have a courtin' song all their own, the mysteries of which will be expounded for music lovers by Paul Young tomorrow night at 8:30 as part of his concert in Hill Auditorium.

The young baritone, Young, is also going to sing a wide and varied program of classical and folk music including the great aria "Vision Fugitive" from the Herodiade of Massenet, "Tu lo sai" by Torelli, the "Widmung" of Schumann, three songs by Reger: "Waldeinsamkeit," "Wenn die Linde blüht," and "Mit Rosen bestreut", Burleigh's "Awake it is Day", and the "Trumpet Shall Sound" from the Messiah of Handel. The concert will start at 8:30.

Young is a recent addition to the music department of the University. His broad background in music includes solo and choir singing in many churches, teaching in public and private schools out west and in the north, and studying voice under several world-renowned teachers and opera singers in both Cincinnati, Ohio, and New York City. Such training has fitted him well for his self-imposed task of making good music attractive to the majority of students in Chapel Hill. When told that he could expect an average turn-out of about 75 people for his recital on Wednesday night, Young replied: "They will probably get lost in that big auditorium; it holds

Yucky Yack editors urge that in order to avoid leaving any campus organization out of the Yucky Yack Beauty Ball contest which will be one of the highlights of the Duke weekend, that fraternities and any other sponsoring groups turn in contestants names as soon as possible.

Each organization is eligible to sponsor three coeds for the contest. From the contestants a Yack queen and eight attendants will be selected. Tomorrow is the deadline for these entries and Cookie Maretz stated that the deadline would be strictly observed.

Other than raising the money for the tremendous cost of publishing the Carolina yearbook, the dance is sponsored in order that beauties for the Yack beauty section may be selected.

The selected queen will enter through an arch and proceed down the middle of the dance floor so that all may see. Attendants will follow. After this the beauty queen will be crowned and then she and her date will proceed to lead the dance after the intermission.

Freddie Johnson and his orchestra will furnish the music and added entertainment in the form of a floor show will be staged while judges are making decisions. Fred Caligan will offer several dance routines and Marian Gurney will be featured as a vocalist.

Tickets for the Yack Ball will be on sale at the Yucky Yack office and in the boys dormitories. Admission will be $1.00 for advanced tickets and $1.25 for tickets bought at the door.

No contestants other than Carolina coeds will be eligible for judging in the annual Yack Ball.

The ball is to be staged in Woollen Gymnasium from 9 till 12 after the Duke game, Saturday.
