Government May Place 4-F Men In Defense Work

Byrnes Leads Way In Total Mobilization

Campus To See Male Decrease

James F. Byrnes, War Mobilization Director, who notified Selective Service Head Lewis B. Hershey to take whatever action necessary to secure additional men in the 18-25 age bracket for some type of direct war service and his proposals for mobilization has been the topic of conversation among civilian college students for the past week.

No mention has yet been made about what the government plans to do with the hundreds of 4-Fs throughout the country who are attending institutions of higher learning. Going by Byrnes' statements to the President it seems obvious that the college men classed as 4-F will fall into the same class as 4-Fs working in non-essential industry. By the time this issue of the Tar Heel is circulated there might be some definite information regarding the status of college students.

As it stands now, 4-F college men around Chapel Hill are wondering about the latter part of next month, which means the start of a new term. Whether to make plans for registration next term is the big question as college men at the present time do not know whether they will be attending class at 8 o'clock in the morning or taking in the swing shift at some vital defense plant.

There is no official information on enrollment predictions for next term, but if the government takes steps along the lines of Byrnes' proposals, the civilian ranks may be cut considerably at the start of next term.

If such a cut in civilian enrollment is merged with the decrease in V-12 men, the University will be able to accept more women who were turned down at the start of the year for lack of adequate facilities to take care of the coed demand. With the male ranks thinned, the University will have to depend on women for the bulk of enrollment as coed ranks have increased considerably in the last two years.

Some members of the faculty may be affected by the rules which will come into existence if Byrnes' proposals are applied by the 79th Congress. Due to the fact that there is no definite report as yet on the status of college men, it seems that the only thing the worried 4-Fs can do is to sit tight and hope that some decision is reached before the start of next term so they will know whether or not to register.

War Board Plans Campus Bond Rally For Next Month

Plans for a Campus War Bond Drive to be held in February were discussed at a meeting of the War Coordination Board Wednesday afternoon, January 3.

Appointed to make definite arrangements for the drive were Dal Davis, Ruth Doggett, Emily Singletary, Fran Cely, Faye Pushkin, Bob Wadsworth, Margie Pulham and Lib Schofield.

Ann Osburn was appointed by the Board to work with Jimmy Wallace, head of the CRIL Committee for collecting old clothes for Belgian War Relief.

Making a special effort to sponsor girls for the U.S.O., the Board suggested that girls be selected from one dormitory each week. Fran Cely and Faye Pushkin were put in charge of this committee.

It was reported by Emily Singletary that $300 in war stamps had been sold in the girls' dorms the last two weeks before the holidays. Total returns from the World Student Service Fund Campaign were $1,025, $75 of which went to the United War Fund. Ann Osburn announced that

Mag Editors Start Work On Next Issue

Editor Pleads For Writers

Shirley Hartzell, editor of the Carolina Magazine, announced that she and her staff have started to work on the next issue, which should be out by the end of this month. This will be the third of six issues to be printed this year.

A feature of the forthcoming Mag, to be continued in following issues, will be an unpublished article or story by a Chapel Hill writer. Noel Houston, of Chapel Hill, has tentatively been selected to begin the series.

Editor Hartzell says she is looking for writers of poetry or prose, fact or fancy, and would especially like to contact artists or caricaturists. Anyone who can do any kind of art work, and who is interested in helping out on the Mag, is asked to meet Sunday night at 8 o'clock in the Mag office in Graham Memorial.

Manuscripts for the next issue should be turned in at this office as soon as possible.

Staff Meeting

There will be an important staff meeting of all members of the Tar Heel staff Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

Di Senate Installs Officers

Weber Outlines Year's Program

The new officers of the Dialectic Senate were installed at its regular weekly session Wednesday night.

The incoming executives, who were elected at the last meeting of the Di, were Herbert Weber, who succeeds Bill Crisp as President, Robert Morrison as President Pro-tem, Bill Crisp as Critic, Banks Mebane as Clerk, Dick Mottman as Sergeant-at-Arms, and Julia Moody, who was re-elected as Treasurer.

President-elect Weber, in his inaugural address, reviewed the past history of the Di. Founded in 1795, the Di is observing its 150th anniversary this year and is planning to hold a sesquicentennial celebration. In the years before the Civil War the Di and the Phi were the student government on the campus, and in 1844 they founded a university magazine which was the forerunner of the numerous publications which culminated in the present Carolina Mag. They also endowed the library of the University.

President Weber outlined the program for future activities of the Di, including a revision of its constitution, and made the following committee appointments: Executive Committee: See DI INSTALLS, page 4

CRIL, War Board Launch Drive To Gather Clothes

A campuswide old clothes drive for refugees and the homeless in Europe will be conducted throughout next week under the sponsorship of the Council for Religion in Life and the War Coordination Board, it was announced yesterday.

Dr. Haydon Gets Executive Post

Dr. Glen Haydon, head of the University's Music Department, recently returned from New York where he attended two meetings of national music organizations.

As retiring president of the American Musicology Society, he presided over sessions of that group and on winding up two years as president he was elected to the Executive Board for the coming year.

Dr. Haydon also represented the Musicology Society at sessions of the National Music Council held in New York at the same time.

CICA To Hold Important Meet

All members of CICA are urged to attend an important meeting Wednesday night at 7 o'clock in the Horace Williams lounge of Graham Memorial.

Pictures for the Yackety Yack will be taken at the meeting and the organization's candidate for "Miss Victory" will be selected. A debate team to participate in the Debate Council's annual tournament will also be selected. CICA is now in possession of the debate tournament cup, having won the tournament for three consecutive years.

At the meeting Wednesday night social plans for the next two months will be discussed.

Dance Committee

The University Dance Committee will hold a very important meeting in the Grail Room of Graham Memorial next Monday night at 8:30, and all members are asked to be present at that time.

Initiated by the Social Action Committee of the CRIL, the drive will be under the direction of Jimmy Wallace and Ann Osborne. All dormitories will be canvassed, and the week's activities will be topped off by a free show being given in one of the local theaters. Exact date of the showing has not been set, but will be announced in a future issue of the Tar Heel. Only admission to the show will be one article of old clothing in a reasonably good condition.

"Success of the drive will depend on everyone's cooperation," Kitty Kelly, WCB chairman said. "Every contribution will be appreciated." Collectors will include the members of the CRIL, the WCB committee, and any others who are interested. All those students who wish to participate are asked to be present at the regular weekly meeting of the CRIL in the Carolina Inn Cafeteria Saturday night at 6 o'clock.

It is thought that the clothes will be sent to Belgium as a contribution to the World Student Service Fund. Other college and university campuses are conducting similar drives with singular success. We should be able to do as well.

Debate Council Announces Date Of Intramurals

At a Debate Council meeting Tuesday night the council set January 22 as the date for their annual intramural tournament which was previously scheduled for before the Christmas holidays.

The topic of the tournament this year is: Post-war compulsory military training for able-bodied men, 18 to 21 years old. All organizations are urged to enter teams in the tournament, and individuals may debate independently of organizations. A $25. war bond will be presented to the organization of the winning team. Rules for the procedure of the tournament will be published later.

Herbert Weber, president of Di Senate was elected to the Debate Council from the squad in the Tuesday night meeting, and will serve on the council for the remainder of the year.

The council voted to plan two tours to be taken sometime in March. One of the tours will probably be north to New York and the other, south to New Orleans. A dual intercollegiate debate will be planned with Virginia Inter-mont.

Veterans To Meet

The University Veterans' Association will meet Wednesday evening, January 10, in Gerrard Hall. All veterans on the campus are asked to attend.

Broadcasting Will Start Tomorrow

Studio Located In Bynum Hall

Closed since June 1942, when Caldwell Hall was turned over to the Navy Pre-Flight School, the University radio studio will reopen in its new location in Bynum Hall Sunday, January 7, it was announced by Russell M. Grumman, chairman of the Radio Advisory Committee and Director of the University Extension Division, through which radio activities are administered.

During the period the studio was closed several University events were broadcast over remote control facilities in Memorial Hall, Hill Music Hall, and other campus centers.

Beginning Sunday, from 12:30 to 12:45 p. m., a program entitled "Voice of the Press" will be broadcast weekly over Radio Station WPTF, Raleigh. This series, under the general direction of Prof. Phillips Russell of the Journalism Department, will be a summary and digest of editorial opinion taken from leading North Carolina newspapers. Participants Sunday will include Kai Jurgensen of the Carolina Playmaker staff, and students Wayne Thompson, Nicholas Lindsay, Dan Anderson and Sherman Lazarus.

Another program series to be known as "The Carolina Round Table" will be broadcast over Radio Station WRAL, Raleigh, from 1 to 1:30 p. m. each Sunday, beginning January 7. This program is being arranged by the Southern Council on International Relations with the cooperation of the International Relations Club, a student organization at the University. Current problems in world affairs will be discussed by panels of faculty members and student leaders.

The roundtable this Sunday will be on the subject, "Will Dumbarton Oaks Prevent World War III?" Several faculty members well versed in international relations will be the participants: Profs. E. E. Ericson of the English Department, former exchange professor in China; E. J. Woodhouse of the Political Science Department; James L. Godfrey of the Social Science Department, and Hugh T. Lefler of the History Department and co-author of the much debated New-some-Lefler North Carolina History textbook. Rev. William Potat, Assistant YMCA secretary, who was born in China, will serve as moderator.

Three Military Men Nominated To Fill Honor Council Post

Three nominations for the military representative at large to the Honor Council have been submitted to the elections committee. Two Navy V-12 men, Ed Gaither and Aaron Jeffe, and one Marine, Buck Tauscher, were nominated Thursday to run for the Honor Council post which was recently vacated by a Marine transfer. The election will be held next Thursday at Swain hall from 12:30 to 1:30 and from 6 to 7. Each candidate is allowed $5 for campaign expenses.

Last Call For Yack Pictures Announced

Cookie Maret, editor of the Yackety Yack, announced that undergraduates have one more chance to have pictures taken for the yearbook. The time to meet for the picture is from 1 to 2 this afternoon and from 2 to 4 Tuesday afternoon in Graham Memorial. This is definitely the last opportunity for undergraduates to have their pictures taken.

Inter-Dorm Council

The Inter-Dorm Council will meet Tuesday afternoon, January 9, at 5 o'clock. Place: Spencer.

Sound And Fury Packet Show Could Have Been Worse

By Charles Waldman

Extraneous talent and what have you on the campus got a chance Thursday night to rear its scaly head in a gusty series of events all wrapped up under the title of "Package Show No. 1." The bindings could have been made of cellophane as far as subtlety was concerned, and some of the offerings were strictly high school senior stuff.

The greatest assets of the show were pace (of which there was plenty, thank heavens), some pretty good music, and an angular Wolverine, out to get her a man, who traveled under plenty of steam and the title of Susie Dud. La belle Dud (Betty Lou Cypert) stole, in a word, what there was to steal. Combining somewhat the gestures of a Betty Hutton with the facial contortions of Cass Daly and the voice of a healthy peanut stand, she evolved a new type of hungry female; which, if the pending Byrnes' proposal goes through, may soon be—O sorry day!—as prevalent as the squirrels on the Carolina campus. Her musical material, "Nobody Wants Me," by Marion Gurney, was excellent.

The song, "Lost Love," by Bill Sasser and Nancy Jenkins, suited the sultry voice of "Purple, the Dream Girl," portrayed by Coline Smith. Miss Smith's appearance in a lavender spotlight brought howls (literally) of appreciation from the audience. Despite a few deviations from key, this number proved highly effective; as did the opening Hula dance which, if not strictly Hawaiian, managed to get its point across very well until it was spoiled by the entrance of some rain-coated jitterbugs who just didn't jitter.

Some off-stage triumphs go on record for the evening. The greatest of these was achieved by the voice of Bill Stubbs which provided the background for the "Young Man on a Date" number. The retiring Mr. Stubbs sang very well indeed; and the song, "Blind Date," a clever bit by Bill Crisp and Betty Harwitz, was ably pantomimed by the two young men in question, Joe Al Denker and Sandy Minnix. Second prize in the off-stage gyrations goes to the spot manipulators who kept the audience cheerful during prop rearrangement by making the babies chase each other across the curtain. Probably for the first time in history the sex life of a spotlight was bared to the public eye.

Several other routines, including a lukewarm tap number and a quartet fling at close harmony, not too successful, led inevitably to the finale. Here an attempt at precision dancing, fresh out of Dracula, resolved itself, surprisingly enough, into an effective modern dance sequence. Special laurels to Patty Harry, Peggy Stanton, and Fran Cheshire for thus bringing the curtain down on a note of pleasance.

By far the biggest gripe of the evening was the dream-theme-scheme backbone of the show. Since the days of Alice in Wonderland, it would appear, harassed heroes and heroines have been imagining this sort of thing; the famous last words in many a turkey have been: "My! What a strange dream I've just had!" Package Show No. 1 deals with the visions of a sailor asleep on a Pacific island with exactly the same trite effect. It seems to me that the producers of Sound and Fury could have circumvented this hazard, one way or another, at no loss whatsoever to the main ideas or entertainment value of the show.
