"Miss Victory," to be chosen by bond and stamp buyers, will be honored at a Victory Dance on Saturday night, February 17, at Woolen Gym from 8:30 until 12 o'clock. All entries will be in the figure; the winner and the two runners-up as attendants, will reign over the dance. Dance chairs are Fay Pushkin and Fran Cely, and admission will be $1 in war stamps. Corsages of war stamps, made by coeds on the War Coordination Board, will be sold at the gym. Freddie Johnson and his orchestra will furnish the music.

Also at the Victory Dance the master of ceremonies, who is unannounced as yet, will conduct a raffle of articles of merchandise donated by local merchants. These are to be sold to those who pledge the highest amount of war stamps for them.

A bond booth opened in the "Y" yesterday morning and will remain open from 9 'til 5 every weekday until February 14, the official end of the drive. Emily Singletary, sales chairman, is in charge of coed volunteers staffing the booth. Stamps may be purchased here and bond applications may be filled out. Those buying bonds fill out blanks at the "Y" booth stating where they plan to buy the bond, at the bank or the post office, and cast their votes, determined by the maturity value of the bond, at the "Y." Bonds must be bought within a week.

A cardboard plane, made by Bob Wadsworth, has been set up in the "Y" to show progress toward the $25,000 quota. Also posted in the "Y" are to be pictures of coeds in the race for the title.

In the women's dorms stamp sellers will give coeds an opportunity to buy stamps. Service men and civilians, however, are asked to buy theirs at the "Y" booth.

Dr. Dykstra Lauds Carolina In Main Speech To Assembly

The one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the opening of the University to students was celebrated last night at an impressive ceremony held before a joint session of the state legislature in the hall of the House of Representatives at Raleigh.

Among the speakers who participated in the Founders Day ceremony were Governor R. Gregg Cherry, President Frank P. Graham, President Clarence Dykstra of the University of Wisconsin, Dean of Administration R. B. House, and Victor S. Bryant of Durham, who is head of the legislative committee set up to make plans for the celebration.

Dr. Dykstra, president of the University of Wisconsin since 1937, and former director of the Selective Service Board, presented the main address of the evening. The well-known educator saluted the modern University of North Carolina, and proclaimed it as one of the most significant among state universities and a bold

Two Eight Week Terms Will Be Held

First Session Starts July 2

Instead of the usual two term summer sessions of six weeks each the summer session this year will include two terms of 8 weeks each, the first term beginning July 2 and ending about August 29, according to an announcement released by Dean R. B. House Committee.

Director of summer school, Guy B. Phillips said that the committee has come to a final decision after careful study of the problems of operating a special session of one or two six week periods along with the 8 week terms that were promised when the university went on a semester basis. The problems of running two separate programs at the same time were presented to the heads of the various departments and it was their decision that it would be impractical to try this experiment.

Mr. Phillips said that one of the main reasons why two programs could not be run at once was the housing situation. The university is now filled to its greatest capacity in housing, and housing for special summer school students could not be arranged until after the spring semester.

Before this year summer school has begun early in June, and if the university had decided to run its six week terms along with the regular program the six week terms would have to begin in June. This would be impossible because of the housing situation. By dividing the semester into eight week terms a student has several choices. He may attend both terms, only one term, or he may just drop out until the November term.

The first of these terms will substitute for the usual 6 weeks' summer school. Courses will be offered for regular university students, new graduate and professional students, teachers and social workers, health workers and new freshmen and transfer students.

Work in these eight-week terms will be in complete units, and will receive the same number of semester hours as in a regular session. Classes which meet three hours per week during a regular semester will meet six hours per week during the summer sessions. It will be possible for a student to carry one half of the hours that he is carrying during the regular semester.

The planned vacation period will be held as scheduled after the March semester, but there will not be a vacation period between the two summer terms.

Fire In GM Causes Stir

Estimated Loss Set At $3,000

Quite a bit of excitement was caused early Saturday morning when a fire of undetermined origin was discovered about 7 a. m. in the store room located at the north end of Graham Memorial. The fire did damage estimated to exceed $3,000 at least part of which was covered by insurance.

Besides the damage done to the supply room and the supplies and equipment stored therein, the Yackety-Yack office was damaged considerably by the heat and chemicals used to extinguish the fire. The Yack office is located directly above the store room in the Thomas Wolfe lounge where it was moved only the day before the fire occurred.

The fire was extinguished by the fire department which responded promptly to the alarm which was turned in by one of the employees of the Graham Memorial Grill who discovered the fire on reporting for work Saturday morning.

PU Board Fills Circulation Manager Post

The Publications Union board took full advantage of a regular Friday afternoon session by naming the new circulation manager of the Tar Heel, appropriating additional money to the Carolina Magazine upon condition and authorizing the purchase of $7,000 worth of series G defense bonds.

Harrison Tenney was selected by the board to replace Jimmy Wallace, former Tar Heel circulation manager who resigned his position with the publication because of increased academic load. Five applicants appeared before the board seeking the job. Tenney was the only applicant who had worked in the circulation department previously and the board thought Harrison to be more qualified on this account. The actual cost of circulating the Tar Heel was discussed jointly by the board and the retiring circulation manager who suggested that the cost was a little out of proportion as compared with other departmental costs. The board lowered the allotment for circulating the Tar Heel from $24 per week to $18 per week.

Mike Beam and Marion Kerr, literary editor and business manager of the Carolina Magazine respectively, asked the board to grant the publication $60 per issue for the remaining four issues to meet engraving costs. Business manager Kerr told the board that the Mag had secured in the first two issues, almost half of the advertising predicted for six issues. The board consented to give the publication $60 for the January issue and other issues if the advertising were to keep the same pace as it has in the first two issues.

TVA Chairman Will Address Student Body In Hill Hall

The signing of David E. Lilienthal, chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority, for an appearance here January 30 has been announced by Carolina Political Union Chairman Jimmy Wallace.

The TVA chief is scheduled to speak in Hill Hall at 8 p. m., and efforts are being made to secure permission for V-12s attending the address to remain throughout.

Mural Debate Entry Deadline Set Saturday

Any Group May Debate

All entrants in Carolina's intramural debate tourney must be registered by Saturday night of this week, Rene Bernard, Chairman of the tourney, announced Sunday evening.

The third annual contest of its kind, the debate tourney this year will feature a national issue which in all likelihood will be debated on the floor of Congress for several months to come. The subject is Resolved: That the United States should adopt a post-war program of compulsory military training, the period of such training to begin between the ages of 18 and 21 for all able-bodied males.

Persons entering this tournament may represent a campus organization or may debate independently. It is hoped that many organizations will compete for the final prize of a $25 War Bond. The first round of debating will begin Monday night, January 22.

Complete bibliographies on this subject have been compiled by Mary Lib Barwick and a hundred copies are at the disposal of potential debate teams. The copies may be found on the Debate Council desk, situated in the Campus Organizations room on the second floor of Graham Memorial.

Debate teams must be prepared to discuss both sides of this resolution. Any team, however, may be comprised of from two to four persons so that no person has to debate that side which is undesirable to him.

Rules released by Chairman Bernard specify that each speaker will have only ten minutes at his disposal—six minutes for constructive speech and four for rebuttal. Debate schedules will be arranged to permit service men to participate, despite the 8:30 to 10:30 curfew.

Faculty judges will be provided by the Debate Council. Their decisions will be final. Each team, in all probability, will debate four or five times, the final winner not being disclosed until the tournament is completed.

Deadline for tournament registration is Saturday night of this week. Any team may signify its entrance in the tourney by either contacting a member of the Debate Council or writing a postcard, giving the names of the debaters, to Debate Council, Box 822, Chapel Hill.

Senators Expect Heated Debate In Di Tomorrow

When the Di Senate meets tomorrow night a heated discussion is anticipated concerning the bill, Resolved: That all 4-Fs who are not engaged in essential industry be drafted in the Army to serve in labor battalions and other non-combatant work and be denied all financial benefits granted to other servicemen.

Visitors are invited to attend the meeting and may assume the floor to enter in the debate.

The organization is conducting a special membership drive under Rene Bernard. Applications may be obtained from Bernard or at the Information Desk at the Y.

Discussion on the current topic is scheduled to begin at 9 o'clock on third floor of New West.

Second CPU speaker of the trimester, following Senator Lister Hill of Alabama, Lilienthal, much acclaimed for his giant success in steering the Tennessee power project, has made headlines in recent months as the recipient of attacks launched by Tennessee's Senator McKellar. Also gaining publicity for him lately has been the immense acclaim accorded his book, "TVA—Democracy on the March," which appeared last March. Pride of the New Deal, Lilienthal says, "I believe men may learn to work in harmony with the forces of nature, neither despoiling what God has given nor helpless to put them to use. . . . I believe that through the practice of democracy the world of technology holds out the greatest opportunity in all history for the development of the individual, according to his own talents, aspirations and willingness to carry the responsibilities of a free man. We have a choice: to use science for evil or for good. I believe men can make themselves free. These convictions have been fortified as I have seen them take on substance and become part of the life of this valley and of its people."

North Carolina's Jonathan Daniels has described Lilienthal as "a big man. . . . He grins, wide and shrewd, and there is none of the wide-eyed staring of the Utopian in his eyes. He can laugh as well as talk. A middle western man in Tennessee, he can be serious without violating Tennessee's traditional rule number 5: 'Don't take yourself too damned seriously!'"

"Current Biography" of June 1944 says of him: "Lilienthal is a good speaker who understands modern publicity and its value. A thoroughgoing realist, he is not very sensitive to personal criticism. Likes to refer to himself as an amateur athlete (he still boxes, plays badminton and rides a five-gaited horse), an amateur author (he's still puzzled by the success of his book) and an amateur administrator."

The success of the immense Tennessee Valley project, which affected 1,350,000 people living on 225,000 farms, has been attributed to Lilienthal's belief in gaining the confidence and cooperation of the farmers, businessmen, townsmen, and labor leaders in engineering a project, rather than pushing measures on them from above. He has no confidence in "progress that comes from plans concocted by supermen and imposed upon the rest of the

Newspaper Men To Convene Here

The annual meeting of the North Carolina newspaper institute will be held here January 25th and 26th.

Speaker for the opening session Thursday night, has not yet been selected.

The program for Friday, the 26th, includes group meetings and panel discussions on daily and weekly newspapers in the morning and afternoon, a luncheon at 1 o'clock and a dinner at Duke in the evening.

Mrs. Mark Ethridge, wife of the editor and publisher of the Louisville Courier-Times, Louisville, Kentucky, will address the news men at a luncheon which will be held in the ballroom of the Carolina Inn at 1 o'clock p. m. Dr. Phillips Russell, member of the faculty of the University journalism department, will preside as toastmaster for the occasion. Dr. Julian S. Miller, president of the N. C. Press Association and editor of the Charlotte Observer will preside over the Duke session. War bonds, given as awards in the weekly newspaper contest, will be presented by Governor Gregg R. Cherry.
