

Selden Announces Final Casting Of Last Production

Samuel Selden, executive director of the Carolina Playmakers, announced today the final casting of the last major production of the season, Shakespeare's "The Taming of the Shrew."

The Old Bard's most spiteful comedy, involving the domesticating of a strong-willed woman by her madcap husband, will be directed by Prof. Selden and presented in the beautiful outdoor Forest Theatre.

Kathleen Arnold, of LaGrange, Ga., has been cast as the vixenish shrew, Katharina, while Kai Heiberg-Jurgensen, professor of dramatic literature, plays her apparently insane husband, Petruchio. James Warren, of Greenville, will appear as Baptista, Katharina's practical father.

The Shrew's more docile sister, Bianca, will be played by Martha Gillespie, of Maryville, Tenn. Richard Kiser, of Greensboro, is Bianca's lover, Lucentio. Other suitors to Bianca are William Schollmeyer, of New York City, and Fred Chamberlain, of Miami, Fla. Robert Burrows, Playmaker technical director, has been cast as Lucentio's father, Vincentio.

In the play's induction, Sherman Lazarus, of Sanford, will be seen as the old drunk, Christopher Sly, and Foster Fitz-Simons, the Playmaker designer, is the wealthy English lord who jokingly gives old Sly the most intoxicating dream of his life.

Other members of the cast are Anne Osterhout, Beaufort, S. C.; Randall Brooks, Charlotte; Merrill Hilton, China Grove; Dell Clary, Paris, Tenn.; Elizabeth Stoney, Winston-Salem; William Foister, Chapel Hill; John D. Nichols, Winston-Salem; Peter C. Robinson, Coolemeade; Eline Martir, Detroit, Mich.; Peter Long, Beaufort, S. C.; Lennie Eyster, Lewisburg, Pa.; and Sarah Spratt, Nebo, N. C.

spring sun and before a sizeable crowd. The arch rivals will meet again here and twice in Durham before the end of the season.

Carolina dropped its second game of the season to Camp Butler here last Monday, 7-5, as the soldiers from Durham way scored twice in the final inning to ice the affray. The Tar Heels collected 11 hits, but were able to score only five times as they left 11 men stranded on the bases.

Two hits in the first inning and one in the second failed to net a single run, and the locals were able to tally only one on three hits in the sixth. Tommy Andrew was the losing pitcher in the fray that saw Camp Butler get 13 base hits.

Senile Tree Planted Amid Much Splendor Falls Victim To Axe

By J. Maryon Saunders

Students on their way to and from classes who passed a group of workmen taking down a large maple tree on the campus near the Old Well here this week did not realize that in their casual glances they were witnessing an historic event.

The tree, adjudged by campus keepers to be a victim of old age, was the class tree of the University of North Carolina class of 1880. It was planted 65 years ago, in the spring of 1880, and much ceremony attended its planting.

The late President Kemp P. Battle in his history of the University described the occasion, which originated the custom of planting a class tree—a custom that continued for a number of years.

"A large audience of students, faculty and villagers was gathered in amphitheater shape in the open space in front of the College well. The class then marched from the front door of the South building, led by its president, Thomas H. Battle (son of President Battle, and father of Kemp D. Battle of Rocky Mount), carrying the class tree, a fine sugar maple, on his shoulders.

"After forming in line in front of the audience they sang their class song, written for them by Mrs. C. P. Spencer. A class history, a class prophecy, etc., were then delivered. Charles B. Aycock, whose fame as an orator and great educational Governor is now so well known, was one of the chief speakers. . . . (Another speaker was Locke Craig, another class member who became Governor) . . . The tree was then planted on the edge of the 'Forbidden Ground.'"

The class of 1880 was an historic class of the University. Two of its members—Aycock and Craig—became Governors of North Carolina. There were fifteen graduates.

preciation "for her services to Graham Memorial and all of her efforts made in its behalf."

Mrs. "Van," as she is known on campus, is the first director of Student Union that has not been a student enrolled at the University. She obtained her present position in July, 1943, and will continue as director until this July. She has also been house mother for the Phi Delta Theta fraternity on campus.

Mrs. "Van" plans to go to New York after her terms ends in July and not return until fall.

24 Below Will Move To Y Court Tonight

The 24 Below club will be transferred from the basement of Graham Memorial to the "Y" court in front of the YMCA for tonight. For tonight there will be no admission charge, but the usual refreshments will be sold. Music, strictly off the record, will provide dancing under the stars. The club will be open from 8:30 until 12 o'clock.

Goldsboro Youth Wins Scholarship Valued At $2,000

Winner of the Herbert Worth Jackson Scholarship at the University of North Carolina is Charles Gordon Britt, 16½-year-old Goldsboro High School senior, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Gordon Britt of Goldsboro.

Valued at $2,000 and entitling the winner to four years of undergraduate study at the University here, the scholarship was awarded to young Britt following a personal interview with a committee of judges in Chapel Hill.

The original Jackson Scholarship was endowed in 1938 by the late Mrs. Annie H. Jackson of Richmond, Va., as a memorial to her husband, a University graduate of the class of 1886 and for 27 years president of the Virginia Trust Company, who died December 30, 1936. The present Scholarship was endowed by the three children of Mrs. Jackson.

Britt was selected from a group of 20 highly recommended high school seniors from various sections of the State who came to Chapel Hill Saturday to interview the committee charged with the responsibility of naming the winner.

Highly recommended for his qualities of leadership and scholarship (he made only two D's during his four years of high school and all the rest A's), Britt was president of his junior class at Goldsboro, and this year is editor in chief of the student annual, vice-president of the Eastern District of the North Carolina State Student Council, president of the national honor society, and parliamentarian of the student association.

Composing the committee of judges were Dean Dudley D. Carroll of the University School of Commerce; Frank Daniels, general manager of the News and Observer, and W. D. Carmichael, Sr., of Chapel Hill. One of the judges, Mr. Daniels, was selected by the two sons of Mr. and Mrs. Jackson, Samuel S. Jackson and Herbert W. Jackson, Jr.

Under the head of new business a number of bills were presented. They are as follows: a bill to provide for filling temporary vacancies in the student legislature, introduced by Gloria Chapman; a bill setting up the organization of the senior class of 1945, introduced by Walt Brinkley;

A bill to amend the constitution which would prohibit the speaker's suspending the rules in regards to the budget and bills dealing with amounts over $10, introduced by Bill Walker; a bill to open to all students any dance for which over $750 is spent, introduced by Cornelia Alexander;

Bill to set up a committee to study the re-organization of the Phi society and report to the legislature on its findings, introduced by Jim Traynam; a bill to appoint a committee which would take steps to provide for Music Under the Stars.

The AAU meet here next week will be probably the best display of track since the indoor classic last winter, and many of the leading schools in this vicinity are entering teams. Included among those expected are South Carolina, Pre-Flight, Duke, Cherry Point and some runners from Camp Perry, Va. Although not many schools are expected intact, several individual athletes from high schools, colleges, prep schools and army camps all over this section will more than likely enter the event. The meet is an open affair to all amateur athletes, and there will be just one division.

Five men from each team can be entered in each event, and the rules for the run will be the AAU rules of the United States and not those of the NCAA.

In connection with this AAU meet next week, Coach Ranson said that he planned to run every man in the roster if possible, getting the men in the half mile relay that he couldn't get in otherwise. It will be the first and only battle of the season in which all members of the team have participated and will terminate the activities of the track club for the year.

Johnson To Play Sigma Chi Ball

Sigma Chi will select "The Sweetheart of Sigma Chi" at its annual Sweetheart Ball to be held Saturday night, June 2, in Woollen Gym at 8:30 to 12 o'clock. Freddie Johnson will play for this semi-formal affair, which will crown the day's activities. The camps is invited to attend.

Besides "The Sweetheart," two runners-up will be announced at the Ball. The Sigma Chi derby will be held in Kenan Stadium Saturday afternoon. All members of every sorority, the Carolina Independent Coed association, and the Stray Greeks have been asked to compete.

This derby will be in the nature of "stunt-racing" by teams. The winning team will receive a trophy. Beginning Tuesday, May 29, the trophy will be shown in the window of the Varsity on Franklin Street.

was tabled at the last meeting after too lengthy discussion. A. B. Smith raised the hottest controversy of the night by moving that the bill be tabled till the next meeting and that the legislature go into a committee of the whole for a certain time during which suggestions concerning the bill could be made to the Ways and Means Committee for their consideration and possible incorporation into amendments.

Walt Brinkley, Clive Thompson, and Aaron Jaffre headed the opposition, stating that such a measure would waste the legislature's time and accomplish nothing. Mary Lib Barwick and Smith explained and clarified the proposal. The motion put to a vote was passed, placing the bill on the table.

Also passed was a bill providing for the setting up of a student-faculty committee to study the problem of returning veterans, the changes in post-war curricula, and other postwar problems.

Senior Invitations Due To Arrive Soon

According to contract, the Senior class invitations which were ordered several weeks ago are due to arrive on campus by May 31. Members of the Grail will be in the Y June 3, 4 and 5 to sell invitations to all students who ordered them. All invitations must be paid for at the time they are received or they will be sold to someone else, announced the committee.

PU Board Slates Meeting Monday

There will be an important meeting of the new PU board Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the Grail room of Graham Memorial.

Applications for Business Manager of the Yackety Yack and the Carolina Magazine will be considered at that time.

In an election last week the new board named Fred Flagler president, Linda Nobles secretary, and Carroll Poplin treasurer.

Tom Redfern Leaves For Christian Parley

An organization composed of students from 69 countries, the federation's purpose is to help students all over the world to continue their education.

The last meeting was held in Amsterdam one month before the outbreak of the present war. The present New York meeting is being held to plan the revival of the work of the Federation temporarily interrupted by the war.

figures in the Bretton Woods conference.

In addition to club discussions once a week and the presentation of noted guests to the student body, the IRC sponsors a thirty minute roundtable discussion over the air from WRAL in Raleigh every Sunday. Topics of current interest are debated. A faculty forum also meets once a month in Graham Memorial to talk over phases of the international scene. The club is now busily planning a study institute to be held in July on the current San Francisco conference.

Although the activities of the IRC consume much of Glenn's free time, he's also an active member of the Dialectic Senate, having previously held office as president pro tem. In addition, Glenn belongs to the Chapel Hill Rifle club and is a former member of the Debate Council.

By means of extensive reading this able speaker has at his fingertips ample information to hold his own while debating and in general campus discussion groups, a favorite pastime.

Ever mindful of the diplomatic approach, Glenn, with just a faint gleam in his dark eyes, says he finds women diverting from his extra-curricular pursuits. A native Carolinian from Shelby, N. C., he echoes the general campus sentiment of pleasure in being a student at Chapel Hill and expresses his enjoyment of the cosmopolitan population and the generally stimulating atmosphere.

Mary Stringfield To Give Season's Final Recital Here

Mary Stringfield, of Mars Hill, will give this year's second and final senior piano recital Friday night, June 1, at 8 o'clock in Hill Hall.

Miss Stringfield will play "Partita No. 5 in G Major," including "Praeludium," "Allemande," "Corrente," "Sarabande," "Tempo di Minuetto," "Passepied," and "Gigue" by Johann Sebastian Bach; "Sonata opus XVII No. 2," including "Allegro," "Andante," "Prestissimo" by Johann Christian Bach, J. S. Bach's son; and "Etudes Symphoniques," by Robert Schumann.

After the intermission, she will play "The Little Shepherd," "The Snow Is Dancing," and "Doctor Gradus ad Parnassum" from "Children's Corner" by Claude Debussy; "Martha Complained" from "Eight Bible Vignettes for Piano" by Nathaniel Dett, and "Rondalla Aroganesa" by Enrico Granados.

Miss Stringfield graduated from Mars Hill Junior college in 1943. She has been at the University as a music major, studying under Dr. Jan P. Schinhan of the University Music department, for the past two years. She is vice-president of the University Women's Glee club, a member of the University Symphony Orchestra, University band and University string ensemble. She was soloist at the concert given jointly by the Men's and Women's Glee clubs last Christmas. She is the niece of Lamar Stringfield, noted North Carolina composer and teacher.
