Communists Active On UNC Campus; Circulars Appear

After nearly a year of relative calm on the communist activity front, new evidence has turned up here recently to indicate that the communists are still active in the University and in Chapel Hill.

Two weeks ago it was reported that petitions were being circulated through a number of the dormitories on campus denouncing President Truman's actions in the Korean crisis and demanding withdrawal of American forces from South Korea.

The leaflet said that American intervention was "bringing our country dangerously close to world-wide atomic war." It called on the people of the state to demand the administration to outlaw the atomic bomb.

The "peace" petition was also reportedly being circulated in Durham, Winston-Salem, and other cities in the area.

The petition first appeared in Durham about six weeks ago when Bill Robertson, ex-Carolina student, was seen securing names on the petition on Main Street.

Local police officers recently reported that Junius S. Scales had received a bale of handbills from New York in the Chapel Hill post office. The pamphlets began appearing here, appealing to readers to "sign for peace."

Scales is also a former University student who graduated three years ago. He is listed on the circulars as chairman of the Communist Party, Carolina district.

Another source reported that at least one Tar Heel congressman in the House of Representatives in Washington intended to turn over to the House Un-American Activities Committee a report of renewed communist activity on this campus.

The member, who would not give his name, said that he would ask the committee to conduct an investigation of this activity.

University Chancellor R. B. House, however, said early this week that he had heard nothing of any such investigation in connection with the University.

Three Professors Named To Dental School Staff

Three new members of the faculty, Dr. Roger E. Sturdevant; his son, Dr. Clifford M. Sturdevant, and Dr. Claude R. Baker, have been named to the teaching staff of the newly established School of Dentistry in the University.

Ex-student Honored

Miss Anne Wells, University graduate in the class of 1948, who during the past year has been studying for her master's degree at Radcliffe College has been awarded a Paul Harris Rotary Foundation fellowship to study abroad during the coming year, it was announced here by Dean Katherine K. Carmichael.

Miss Wells, who is the daughter of President Hugh Wells of Georgia State College for Women and Mrs. Wells, has been admitted to the School of Economics in the University of London and will begin her work there October 1. The fellowship is valued at $22.50 for one year's study and travel abroad.

Paintings By Student On Display

An exhibition of paintings by Gerard F. Tempest has been put on display in the Morehead Building at the University.

Among the fine works to be seen are several self-portraits, a study of Margaret, the wife of the young Rome-born painter, many still life studies, and copies of famous originals, including Venus and Adonis by Titian.

The exhibition is intended to show the evolution of a young painter's work, as his view is mellowed from the purely photographic through trial of various techniques, to the portrayal of the impression the artist has when he views the subject of his work.

Art has been in the Tempest family since Antonius Tempesta, Florentine painter and etcher, 1550-1630. Gerard Tempest came to this country in 1929 to join his father, who is an iron orator who learned his art in Turin, Italy.

He spent more than a year in Italy, visiting museums from Scotland to Spain and studying with the metaphysical painter Giorgio de Chirico, from whom he learned the litharge technique, a medium used for several pictures in the exhibition in the Morehead Building.

Tempest hopes to receive his degree in philosophy in the University after another year, after which he will concentrate on painting.

Furniture Institute To Be Here

The Southern Association of Furniture Manufacturers will hold a week's institute in cost accounting and control at the University beginning Monday, July 31, it was announced by James T. Ryan, High Point, Executive Vice-President of the Association.

Instruction and special materials will be supplied by the firm of Ernst and Ernst, certified public accountants, through the cooperation of H. R. Borthwick, resident partner at Winston-Salem.

Registrations of 21 firms from nine states have already been received, according to the University's Bureau of Business Services and Research which is conducting the institute.

John Wilson of the Boston office of Ernst and Ernst will be the principal instructor. He will be assisted by a review panel composed of Robert Connelly, Drexel Furniture Company, I. Foy Horton, Sandhill Furniture Corporation; E. M. Fennell, Hickory Chair Company; R. C. Spencer, Hooker-Bassett Furniture Company; Paul D. Hassler, Thomasville Chair Company, and Sigurd Johnson of N. C. State College.

Ticket Poop

In order to take dates to see the Tar Heels lick Duke in this fall's gridiron classic, students must order season date tickets now. Individual tickets may be ordered now for the Notre Dame game and all other games, with the exception of Duke, which is a sellout.

Notre Dame game tickets may be ordered now for $4.80.

Moonlight Hayride Scheduled Tonight; GM Slate Continues

With a moonlight hayride slated for 8:30 tonight Graham Memorial's regular round of social activities gets underway for the second session of summer school.

The dances, card tourneys, and music programs that proved popular last quarter will be continued for the remainder of the summer. A number of other events also have been added to the entertainment program.

Management Conference Held Here

The second Management Institute for Young Businessmen, which will consist of instruction, private conferences and consultations, got underway here Monday morning, July 24, and will continue through tomorrow.

Sponsored by the State Junior Chamber of Commerce, the program of the Institute will emphasize selling and marketing, buying, expanding a business, customer financing and meeting competition in today's market, according to Dr. Rex Winslow, head of the University's Bureau of Business Services and Research which is directing the Institute.

Dr. Earl P. Strong, Director of the Business Management Service of the University of Illinois, nationally known as a business management expert, will be in charge of instruction. He will be assisted by a panel of North Carolina businessmen.

Article Honors Late Dr. Connor

High tribute is paid the late Dr. R. D. W. Connor, Kenan professor of history in the University, who died last February, in an article in "The American Archivist", publication of the Society of American Archivists of which he was a former president.

The tribute was written by Thad Page, who was Dr. Connor's administrative assistant when he was in Washington, D. C., as United States Archivist.

Mr. Page writes: "As the first Archivist of the United States and as one of the founders and a former president of the Society, Dr. Connor contributed indispensably to the development of archival procedures and the archival profession in the United States."

Vespers Services Will Be Tonight

Vespers services will be conducted as usual tonight at 7 o'clock in the arboretum just east of Davie Building.

Dr. Habel of the First Baptist Church of Chapel Hill will be guest speaker for the services. In case of rain the services will be moved to Gerrard Hall.

Vespers are held regularly each Thursday night in the arboretum.

Wagons are being commandeered for tonight's affair and it is hoped that there will be a large turnout. Deadline for reservations is noon today. Rosalie Brown, who is making arrangements for the ride at Graham Memorial, asks that all be prompt in making reservations and that all boys who want blind date contact her.

A full moon is in the offing for tonight and, providing the weather is clear, the wagons will journey through the surrounding countryside.

Again this quarter bridge and canasta tournaments will be held in the main lounge of Graham Memorial each Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. Cash prizes will be given at the end of the quarter for the highest scores made on any one night.

One new feature of the weekly schedule will be Bingo playing at 8 o'clock Wednesday evenings. Prizes of cigarettes, chewing gum, and larger prizes of merchandise will be given for the various games.

The Rendezvous Room will be open on Thursday afternoons at 5 o'clock for tea dancing.

Over the weekends there will be square dancing in the Y-Court at 8:30 on Friday nights, dancing on the Graham Memorial patio on Saturday nights at 8, and concerts in the main lounge Sunday afternoons at 4:30.

Smorgasbrod Fete On Wednesday

A Smorgasbrod supper will take place on the lawn in front of Graham Memorial this coming Wednesday night, August 2, between 6 and 7 o'clock.

The meal will be prepared by Danziger's kitchen and the bill of fare will include assorted fish and meat cold cuts, salads, and other delicacies that have made the Scandanavian custom popular over the world.

Although the regular price of this dinner at Danzigers is $2.25 for two, the price will be a flat $2 per couple on Wednesday.

Folk Ballads

An evening of traditional folk ballads will be given by Forrest Covington in The Playmakers Theatre here tonight at 8:30, as the first entertainment attraction of the second session of summer school.

Mr. Covington, who has appeared numerous times in local musical productions and in guest appearances in this area, has a colorful collection of the songs of tradition.

He will use an ancient guitar for accompaniment, an instrument which was given to him by Charles Valentine, cabinet maker who lives in Chapel Hill.
