N. C., S. C. Lead Enrollment For Summer Session

An examination of the enrollment figures for the 1953 Summer Session composed of approximately 2,400 undergraduate and graduate students reveals some very interesting facts.

Forty states are represented in the enrollment with from one to 69 students represented. This, of course does not include North Carolina which has 1,898 of the Summer School students enrolled.

The state of South Carolina leads with 69 students, Virginia is second with 66 students, Florida is third with 55, and Georgia is fourth with 54. New York, Maryland, New Jersey, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Tennessee and Alabama come in next fairly large delegations.

Another interesting fact is that there are 22 of the students representing 18 different foreign countries. Puerto Rico has three, Cuba has two, China has two and the other sections one each. Students are here from Parkistan Germany, the Virgin Islands, Brazil, Chile, Denmark and Egypt.

There are 475 male veterans on G.I. benefits. There are eight women veterans with similar privileges. A total of 232 students are veterans but are not on the G.I. benefit list.

There are 935 non-veteran male students and 730 non-veteran women students.

The General College has an enrollment of 572 students, the College of Arts and Science has 416 enrolled, Business Administration has 181, and Education has 189. These are all undergraduate classifications.

The total number of graduate students enrolled including Public Health and Library Science is 719. Of this number 407 are enrolled for graduate work in the School of Education.

The enrollment in education includes elementary teachers, secondary teachers, supervisors of schools and principals of all divisions. It also includes a number of people in special categories of guidance, health education and special services.

$ In Politics To Be Studied By University

A grant of $60,000 from the Edgar Stern Family Fund has been awarded the Institute for Research in Social Science of the University for a three-year study of the role of money in contemporary American politics.

Director of the project will be Dr. Alexander Heard, professor of political science and research professor in the Institute for Research in Social Science. Dr. Heard is author of the recent book on southern politics, "A Two-Party South?"

The research will investigate not only the obvious role of money in campaigning for office, but also in the operation of political parties, in the functioning of special interest groups, and in the behavior of public officials, as well as the general failure of attempts by state and federal legislation to regulate political finances.

Previous work in this area has often been limited to the investigation of campaign finances and has depended in large part upon official sources for its data.

In this project, official or published sources will be used only in the preparatory stages of research; the main body of data for this study will be collected in the field by Dr. Heard. Personal interviews with political financial managers, the major channels through
