The Eye Of The Horse

Roger Will Coe

"The horse sees imperfectly, magnifying some things, minimizing others..." Hippopotis; circa 500 B. C.)

THE HORSE was hiding in some bushes near the Arboretum and issuing unhorsely sounds, indeed.

"Moo! Moo-ou! Moo-ou-ou!" Where did he think he was, we wondered? Cow College?

"I'm trying to fool the National Administration," he said, clicking his eight-ball eyes at me and snatching a faceful of crape myrtle. "I'm trying to sound like a Worthy Devastated Area."

We thought he would look like one if he didn't stop eating the crape myrtle.

"This," he said through loud chomplings, "is Lager-stroemia indica. Look it up, Bud."

So what if it was the textbook name for it?

"I don't interfere when you are working on your Lager," he said reproachfully. "So kindly do not interfere with mine. Moo Mooou-ou-ouou!" He gave it up after a bit and sprawled on the ground next to me. "Cows are privileged people, and that is no bull."

How did he figure that? "Dincha see how Ezra Taft Benson beat it down to Texas to weep over the cows and the calves when the drought hit the Lone Star State. But what did he say when North Carolina got hit by hail and wanted to plant some peanuts out of the unused goober allotment?"

What had the Secretary of Agriculture said?

"He said 'Peanuts to you-all.' And in a way you can't blame him. The hungry children of North Carolina farmers are not nearly so appealing as hungry cows and calves. Besides, North Carolina was not included in the Second Louisiana Purchase. Also this Be-Kind-to-Cattle gesture will line up a lot of Western Democratic Senatorial votes."

Well, I was glad The Horse wasn't claiming any part of this was because Ike was from Texas. Or was it Kansas? No! It was Pennsylvania he was from, wasn't it?

"Where was he speaking at the time he made the claim?" The Horse horsed. "Aw, it's all part of our losing the Mexican Border War in 1916."

But we won that! "Yeah?" The Horse asked, picking his teeth with a hoof. "I thought we fought the Mexicans to make them take Texas back. I wonder if the Mayor of Carrboro knows about this?"

That was beside the point. "I suppose, in a way, you could say The Bull is the real symbol of the Republicans," The Horse mused, "so you can't blame them for running to the help of a state that has more bull to the square inch than Argentina has to the square mile."

Was he insinuating that mid-gets were Texans with the air let out of them? But come to think of it, didn't Teddy Roosevelt pose as a Rough Rider? Teddy, the Bull Moose Leader?

"He was one," The Horse said. "Or at least what passed for a rough rider until Pop-Gun MacKay, Chillin' Charlie Wilson, and Bad Ben Benson started to putting on their rodeo stunts. Yeah, it sure is sad to see the changes that forty years can bring."

As for example?

"From Bull Moose to Bull Mouse in one generation," The Horse sighed. He scrambled to his feet and said, "Well, I got to get to work again. I see some prospects of relief, yet. Moo! Moo-ou-ou!"

The poor, myopic Horse!

Fun Spots

John Gibson

Golf is a sado-maochistic game in which otherwise normal people beat the very devil out of a small harmless white ball. The ball, on its part, achieves some measure of revenge by rarely going where it is supposed to. This just makes the golfer madder and so the cycle gets even more intense.

I have always liked the idea of playing golf, but all that walking does not appeal to me. I have been waiting for someone to compress a golf course into a small yard. At last this has been done.

If you hike out on the air-port road a little ways, you will run into Chapel Hill's only miniature golf course. It is located right next door to the Ranch House, and is open from 7 to 11 every night except Monday. It is being run by the local chapter of a business woman's sorority and the proceeds will go to the cancer fund. So you can have some inexpensive fun (two bits for 18 holes) and help a good cause all at the same time.

Par for the course is 43, so you can easily shoot in the 70's. If you don't mention to your friends that you were playing miniature golf, 70 or so is a right respectable score. (And who ever tells their friends all the details of a golf game.) There is lots of parking space, and if you become completely overpowered by thirst you can run next door to the Ranch House and pick up a Coke. (I think the Ranch House sells Cokes.) Most folks like to go out in a group, with a foursome being the preferred arrangement. This provides company, and also you have someone to back you up in case you shoot a real good game. If you do go in a group, try and be the one who keeps score. This itself is worth about five strokes. (So far as I know, "correctin'" a golf score is not an honor code offense.)

Anyone who can go around the whole course in 18 strokes will have his (or her) name printed in The Daily Tar Heel. This is about the highest honor that a person can hope for. Good Luck.
