Jockey's Ridge a 'cause'

Crusaders seek financial aid

by Nora Webb
Staff Writer

A desolate mountain of sand silently gleaming 140-feet above the Outer Banks on Nags Head, N.C. has become the heart of a crusade. The crusade to save Jockey's Ridge from developers has become, like many causes, a matter of finances. But, unlike other causes, the believers have triumphed politically and the goal is within sight.

All that is needed for complete success is $1 from every person in North Carolina and the dune will be preserved for as long as the sand and sea remain.

The state legislature has appropriated $250,000 for the purchase of Jockey's Ridge, one of the largest sand dunes in the world, and has declared it a state park.

The federal government is expected to match the amount the state and private resources raise, but another $250,000 must be obtained from individual donations.

A huge publicity campaign, spear-headed by Carolista Baum of Nags Head and Chapel Hill, is in operation to raise the needed funds. Balloons, bumper-stickers, kites and T-Shirts proclaim, "Save Our Sanddunes" and are sold at Carolista Jewelry Designers and the Galleon Esplanade on Nags Head. In addition, tickets are being sold for an awards night, when various items donated from local merchants will be given away. Tickets are available at the recently-erected information booth at Jockey's Ridge and at the two stores mentioned. Awards Night, under the direction of Eddie Green, will be held at the Lost Colony Theater and tickets will be sold all summer.

The local chamber of commerce has asked every hotel and motel along the beach to give a pamphlet concerning the dune to each guest. Posters and displays quote Carl Sandburg's, "Save the dunes. They belong to the people. They represent the signature of time and eternity."

A new song, written by Bill Mojo Collins, will soon be sung nationally and will become a part of the "People to Preserve Jockey's Ridge" repertoire, along with the record A Natural High: The Ballad of Jockey's Ridge

by Russ and Us.

The documentary film made by UNC students is being shown in an unfinished form at 9 p.m. every Thursday at St. Andrews-By-the-Sea on Nags Head. Steve Chapin of ABC's To Make a Wish is scheduled to broadcast excerpts from the film and representatives from NBC and CBS have expressed interest in the film, which will be finished by the end of June.

Newspapers and magazines throughout the country have printed articles and photographs concerning the dune and the fight to save it.

The Department of the Interior is considering proclaiming Jockey's Ridge a National Natural Landmark and will announce its decision soon. This status would be "one more stumbling block to the developers," says Baum.

Meanwhile, frantic efforts to raising funds matching state and federal funds are being carried out by the "People to Preserve Jockey's Ridge." This citizen's group is desperately trying to make the public aware of the project's financial needs. They are being helped by James Taylor, former gov. Luther Hodges and Andy Griffith. In addition to this publicity, private foundations are being contacted for donations, in an effort to raise the money by the end of July.

Anyone interested in helping to raise funds for the crusade in the Chapel Hill area should contact Carolista Baum at Carolista Jewelry Designers, Nags Head, N.C. Donations will be received there and at Carolista Jewelry Designers, Chapel Hill.

Program to locate off-campus housing

The UNC Housing Office has started a new program to help UNC students find off-campus housing. Housing Director James Condie announced Thursday.

The Housing Office will be open Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. to assist working students from out-of-town, or those who attend classes during the week, Condie said.

A housing staff member has been assigned to work full-time with off-campus housing, and an expanded up-to-date list of available rooms has been prepared.

"This is in an effort to help eliminate some of the housing problems we have had in the past," Condie said. "It is the first time our office has been open on Saturdays and the first time we have had a staff-member working with off-campus housing."

According to Condie, the University Housing Office subscribes to Affirmative Action and equal opportunity policies. "We will not list a place that practices discrimination based on race, religion, creed or national origin," he said.

UNC has dormitory space for about 6,630 students. The fall semester enrollment last year was about 19,000.

A Durham anti-poverty organization may be forced to close down its Headstart program due to the U.S. House of Representatives' vote last week to disband the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO).

The Community Action Agency, which is under OEO's auspices, provides 72 administrative personnel to Operation Breakthrough, a local non-profit corporation with federal funding. If the House action is sustained by the U.S. Senate and the proposal to disband OEO becomes law, Operation Breakthrough will be forced to search for local administrative sponsorship.

"It's an unusual situation," declared Fred McNeil, executive director of operation Breakthrough. "If OEO and Community Action are phased out as scheduled by June 30, we will have a program with money but no sponsor."

Hazel Liscome, director of Headstart, which involves 288 children, said the program faces problems if the Community Action Agency is disbanded. "We'll have difficulty in finding a sponsor in Durham," she said.

But McNeil is increasingly optimistic about congressional action. "Indications are that the Senate will give us a strong boost. I believe when the bill goes to conference there will be a better than 50-50 chance that Community Action will be continued." McNeil has been in contact with Representative Augustus Hawkins (D-California) and several other congressmen.

McNeil also said the move to save the Community Action Program has the support of 48 of the 50 governors, "as well as a long list of community leaders of all political persuasions all across the country."

McNeil attributes the proposed cutbacks to "President Nixon's desire to scuttle Great Society programs. OEO and related agencies have been viewed as Democratic hotbeds of political opposition. However smokescreened Nixon tries to put it, I think he simply wants to get the Democrats."

President Nixon has asserted that local communities can function as replacements for federal anti-poverty programs through revenue-sharing if they desire. Opponents claim, however, that no community can possibly continue the level of federal funding. They cite statistics which show revenue sharing contributes only 3 per cent to social services nationwide.

The Senate is scheduled to vote on the OEO dismantlement bill this week.
