

University Plans Extensive Celebration For Home-Coming Week Beginning October 19

Dedication of Library, Carolina-Georgia Football Game, and Educational Conference Features Week's Celebration.

A program, extensive in its proportions, has been planned by the University of North Carolina in celebration of North Carolina Home-Coming Week, which begins Saturday, October 19. Among the many features of the celebration will be the dedication of the new library, the second annual Conference on Education, and the Carolina-Georgia football game.

Details of the program are being arranged rapidly and will be announced shortly. Invitations are being sent meanwhile not only to the librarians represented in the Southeastern Library Association, the North Carolina Library Association, the Citizen's Library Movement of North Carolina, but also to leaders in education, public affairs and civic interests, to alumni, and to other friends of the University.

Dedication of the new handsome library will take place at 10:30 Saturday morning with a speaker of national prominence to deliver the featured address. The Carolina-Georgia football game at 2:30 P. M. will be followed immediately by a reception to the University's guests at the new library; and in the evening the guests will be entertained with a special performance by the Carolina Play-makers.

The program on Sunday will be featured by Union services for all denominations in a general University convocation at which there will be heard a preacher of national reputation, and by a concert by the University Glee Club at 4 o'clock.

The first formal sessions of the Conference on Education will get under way Monday morning in conjunction with the Southeastern Library Association, the North Carolina Library Association, and the Citizen's Library Movement of North Carolina. The conference will be opened with a notable address and will be continued through Tuesday on the general subject of "Libraries and the South."

"The whole intent and purpose of these conferences," said President Chase, "is to bring together a body of informed and interested public opinion to help furnish intelligent leadership for the advancement of public education in the South. The whole South is interested and concerned in the proposition of school systems which will be adequate, judged by the best national standards; it is interested that these systems shall be based on the lines of sound policy and that the relations among different parts of the systems shall be properly worked out. Public education is a matter which must concern every thoughtful citizen. On its problems ought to be a meeting of minds, an opportunity for the exchange of information, the arousing of informed interest. It is for such purposes that the University has initiated and continued what it believes will be a series of conferences of growing importance."

Enrollment Larger for 1929

Contrary to expectations the enrollment for the fall quarter for this year comes within 53 of the high mark enrollment set in 1927 and exceeds by 75 the 1928 mark. Yesterday morning 2578 students had already registered as compared with the 1927 record of 2631.

It is expected that a large number of students are yet to register and will probably boost the total for this fall well above the high mark.

MANY FROSH SEEK N. C. PAJAMA CLUB

Cool Weather and Rain Dampened Pursuit of Summer School Club.

Expecting to find the pajama fad, initiated by W. O. Saunders of Elizabeth City, in full swing in Chapel Hill, the home of Louis Graves, who first suggested the idea, many freshmen included in their wardrobes loudly colored pajama suits, with belt loops, suspender buttons, and plenty of other accessories.

Desiring to become a "Carolina Man" as quickly as possible, these freshmen have been going over the campus, inquiring about the Pajama Club that was reported to have been organized here during the summer. And if Jupiter Pluvius had not kept his appointment with the opening of the University, doubtlessly they would already have had a pajama parade.

MAGAZINE PLANS EARLY EDITION

Editor Mebane Working Hard On First Issue.

Plans for The Carolina Magazine, literary supplement to The Daily Tar Heel have about been completed, announces editor John Mebane, and the first issue will appear sometime in the near future, the exact date having not yet been determined.

This year's magazine will appear twice monthly in the form of a literary supplement and will contain eight pages an issue. Practically the same type of material will be printed as has been used during the previous years of its existence. More space will be allotted to articles and book reviews and a number of new sections have been planned.

The entire student body is free to submit contributions. The staff has not been selected as yet, but there will be a meeting of all those students interested in writing for the magazine Sunday night at eight o'clock in the Tar Heel office, basement of Alumni building. At this time plans for the year will be discussed and the type of material which the editor expects to print will be taken up. This meeting will last for only a short while, and all students who are interested in writing are urged to be present.

Watch that Tar Heel team go.

Entertainment Program for 1929-1930

FALL
October 16, 1929	Isadora Duncan Dancers
November 22, 1929	The Jean Gros Marionettes (Matinee and Night)
December 3, 1929	Bertrand Russell
WINTER
January 8, 1930	The Ben Greet Players
January 30, 1930	William Beebe
March 6, 1930	Ratan Devi
SPRING
April 7, 1930	Helen Pugh
May 10, 1930	Cincinnati Chamber Orchestra
May, 19, 20 and 21, 1930	Lorado Taft

Student Committee Selects Varied Entertainments For Coming Year; First Oct. 16

Isadora Duncan Dancers To Present First Performance Here Soon; Bertrand Russell Also to Appear.

(By J. E. Dungan)
The Student Entertainment Committee of the University after a deliberation lasting several months, during which time it has had under consideration some forty or more programs, announces a season's bill of nine strong and unusually entertaining events.

To inaugurate the second year of the University Entertainment the committee has chosen the program offered by the managers of the Isadora Dancers, proteges of the world renowned and stellar dancer of a few years ago, which will come to Chapel Hill Wednesday October 16.

Two other programs will be presented during the fall quarter with three each for the winter and spring quarters. The Jean Gros Marionettes have been engaged for a matinee and an evening performance November 22, and Bertrand Russell, the English lecturer, will speak the night of December 3.

During the winter quarter, the campus will be regaled by the world famous Ben Greet Players who will present some of their Shakespearean productions for which they gained their fame. On the night of January 30, William Beebe, a Richard Halliburton of the sea, but of a more practical and scientific turn of mind, will tell the University audience something of his adventures while collecting deep sea life for a New York museum. Ratan Devi will furnish the entertainment to be given March 6.

Helen Pugh of Asheville, a pianist whose work is attracting the attention of musicians of the country, will offer a recital April 7. May 10 the Cincinnati Chamber Orchestra is scheduled to play for the students and other subscribers of the Entertainment series. Lorado Taft, an excellent speaker and a famous authority on art, will bring the season's bill to a close with a series of three lectures May 19, 20, and 21 on the field of art.

The first number, the Isadora Duncan Dancers, is an importation from Moscow, where Isadora Duncan trained the members of the troupe from their early childhood at a school which she established there. The eleven girls comprising the company were selected from the several hundred associated with the school.

So fascinating and impressive are these girls in the interpretation of the classic dances that the staid and conservative
(Continued on page four)

TAR HEEL TRY-OUTS

All men who wish to try out for the Tar Heel staff are asked to meet in the Tar Heel office, basement Alumni Building, Sunday night at 7:30.

All members of the staff who expect to remain this year will meet at the same time.

GLEE CLUB WILL TRY OUT SINGERS IN PERSON HALL

Professor Dyer, New Head of Music Department, To Conduct Tryouts This Morning at Nine O'clock.

The board of officers of the University Glee club in conjunction with Harold S. Dyer, new head of the music department, issued a call yesterday for candidates for positions on this year's glee club. At that time it was stated that due to losses through graduation and other reasons there will be a large number of places open to persons who have never been in the organization before.

Tryouts for positions in the club will begin at nine o'clock this morning in Person hall, the music building, and will continue during the rest of the week. The membership of the club last year met yesterday afternoon to formulate plans for an auspicious program this year.

The officers other than Mr. Dyer, who will serve as director of the organization, are: Frank Jacobs, president; Paul Scurlock, vice-president; Steve Lynch, secretary and Homer Lyons, manager.

Mrs. Woodburn To Be Member Music Staff This Year

Mrs. Grace Woodburn has been added to the Music faculty at the University of North Carolina and will do quite a bit of music work in cooperation with the Extension Division this year.

Before coming to the University of North Carolina Mrs. Woodburn was State Director of Music in Florida. She will aid Mr. Dyer in building up a wider interest in music in North Carolina and will be a leading figure in the music faculty.

Mrs. Woodburn will largely do field work by going out into various communities of the state and conducting schools of music for teachers.

Try-outs for Daily Tar Heel staff to be held Sunday night.

Dr. H. W. Chase's Talk On Education Features University's Opening

The President

Dr. Harry W. Chase, one of the South's foremost educators, featured the opening exercises of the University with a talk on student objectives.

MR. DYER TAKES CHARGE OF MUSIC STAFF THIS YEAR

Former Southwestern Man Succeeds Paul J. Weaver as Director.

Mr. Harold Dyer, of Southwestern College, Kansas, has taken over the duties of director of music at the University of North Carolina as successor to Paul J. Weaver who has been with the music department at U. N. C. for the past ten years.

For the past three years Mr. Dyer has been dean of the Choral Music at Southwestern College and has accomplished remarkable results in that field. He is accounted an authority in this field of the work and has written several books, among them being "The History of Choral Music in America," which is now in the process of publication. Prior to his position at Southwestern College Mr. Dyer was Dean of Teachers College of Wisconsin for nine years. In addition to these offices he has had quite a bit of experience in Symphony Orchestra Music.

Mr. Dyer has been one of the main factors in the development of Southwestern College as one of the finest schools of
(Continued on page four)

Local Airport To Give Show Sunday

The Chapel Hill airport, located two miles from the city, has planned a program of attractions for next Sunday, September 22, featuring Dick Hunter of Greensboro in a delayed parachute jump. The jump will take place in mid-afternoon from an altitude of 2,000 feet, and Hunter will fall several hundred feet before opening the parachute.

A bus will leave the Smoke Shop every hour carrying passengers to the field free of charge. Special rates have also been arranged for those wishing to take airplane rides, a penny a pound being charged for each ride.

President of University Says That Chief Objective Is Education; Chapel Exercises Mark Formal Beginning of 136th Session.

With the constant increase in extra-curricular activities in colleges and universities all over the country, students entering upon a career within the academic walls today should keep always in mind the fact that their chief mission is to get an education.

Such was the admonition that President Harry Woodburn Chase gave the University of North Carolina students yesterday as they set out upon a new year.

The formal opening marked the beginning of the 136th year of the oldest state university in America. The exercises were held in Memorial Hall, with Francis F. Bradshaw, Dean of Students, presiding. Dr. Chase delivered the address, and Rev. Eugene Olive, pastor of the Baptist church, conducted the devotional exercises. Appropriate musical selections were rendered by the Carolina Tar Heels orchestra, under the direction of Alex Mendenhall.

Welcoming both old and new students, Dr. Chase urged them to make the most of every opportunity for growth during the year.

Participation in social organizations, athletics, and other extra-curricular activities is fine and commendable, but students should bear in mind that their main objective, after all, in coming here is to get a college education.

Studies come first and should not be allowed to suffer because of participation in the various student activities, although the latter are important, Dr. Chase admonished.

"Don't live in a partial world, learn to live steadily and as a whole and not in the compartments and sections in which some of us are prone to pass our existence," he advised.

"Take part in athletics, join a fraternity, or take part in any of the numerous extra-curricular activities, if you wish, but don't forget that you are an individual and that your own development is the main thing. Use your organization and work through it, but don't let it dominate your individuality.

"The tendency to be all alike is one of the unfortunate things about American colleges today.

"The real question you must face four years from now is whether you have a college education. It's entirely possible for a man to go through college and come out essentially an uneducated man. An educated man is one who makes some progress in understanding the world in which he is living."

"Your instructors can't force education down you, but the opportunity is here and it is your privilege and duty to grasp it."

Phi To Hold First Meeting Tuesday

The Philanthropic Assembly will hold its first meeting of the year next Tuesday night, September 24, at 7:15 o'clock. There will be business of considerable importance, including the installation of new officers.