

LOCAL GIRL WINS ART SCHOLARSHIP

Daughter of Dean Braune to Study in New York and Paris.

Picked as the best non-professional artist in the state, Miss Anna Braune, daughter of Dean G. M. Braune of the university school of engineering, and Mrs. Braune, has been awarded a scholarship giving her a year of study in the New York school of fine and applied arts and then a year at an art school in Paris. The value of the award is $500 a year for two years.

Miss Braune recently left for New York to begin her studies. The scholarship was offered through Mrs. Sarah Polk Bradford, director of the Nashville museum of art, by Frank Alvah Parsons, president of the New York school of fine and applied arts.

Miss Braune's triumph came as the result of an examination of her work by a jury in Nashville, Tenn. One non-professional artist from North Carolina, Tennessee and Mississippi was to be chosen. After examining her drawings and paintings the jury decided that she led all competitors from this state.

Mrs. Bradford was chairman of the committee of award, and Mrs. Katherine Pentleton Arrington of Warrenton was North Carolina chairman of the award. Mrs. Mary Graves Rees, a member of Mrs. Arrington's committee, brought Miss Braune's work to the attention of the central committee.

Miss Braune had her first art instruction from Mrs. Rees, a well known Chapel Hill artist, and later studied at the Cincinnati school of art.

Ruthven Is Chosen U. of Mich. Head

Detroit, Sept. 30.—Dr. Alexander G. Ruthven, nationally known scientist and dean of administration of the university of Michigan, was named president of the institution at a secret meeting of the board of regents, it was announced today. Dr. Clare Cook Little, former president of the university, resigned January 21, when friction arose between the president's office and the board of regents.

The following bills are to come before the Phi assembly at the meeting tonight at 7:15:

Resolved: That the Phi assembly go on record as favoring Dean Hibbard's proposal that some group make a critical study of the various aspects of student life at the university in order to suggest a more satisfactory curriculum.

Resolved: That the assembly condemn the apparent coercion in regard to price, of the tobacco planters in this state, by the various manufacturers.

Resolved: That the assembly endorse the recent move by the university to eliminate canvassing in the dormitories.

Duke University School of Law Has 16 Top Students

Durham, Sept. 30.—Sixteen law students will be in their third year at the Duke school this year and are tentative candidates for the bachelor of laws degree, according to officials of the school.

During the past commencement Duke awarded the degrees of LL. B. to its first third-year law class of four members. Duke law school was founded in 1904 and during its quarter century of operation has graduated a large number of students who have taken leading places in the profession.

"The Hottentot," Stage Racing Hit, On Vitaphone

The thrill of the thundering hoofs; a dangerous race course; a terror-stricken and ludicrous rider wearing his sweetheart's colors, desperately trying to make high jumps; an uncontrollable horse, "The Hottentot," dashing to the finish line; the glory of achieving a great victory—

Such in one of the many colorful sequences in Warner Bros' latest all-talking Vitaphone production, "The Hottentot," adapted for the screen from the celebrated stage hit by Victor Mapes and William Collier.

All the clamor and glamour of the steeplechase and the fascination of watching trained and spirited horses forging to the front, are brought to the screen with sound and dialogue.

Edward Everett Horton heads the all-star cast, appearing in the role he portrayed with such remarkable success on the stage. The cast also includes Patsy Ruth Miller, Edmund Breese, Edward Earle, Stanley Taylor, Otto Hoffman, Douglas Gerrard and Maude Turner Gordon. Harvey Thew adapted the play for Vitaphone. Roy del Ruth directed.

"The Hottentot" comes to the Carolina Theatre Saturday.

Discussion Groups Formed

An interesting experiment is being conducted by the recently incorporated United Church of Chapel Hill in holding a regular Sunday evening discussion group, especially designed for the young men and women of the University and town. The group will be conducted along lines preferred by the members and will probably include a fifteen minute talk followed by brief discussion.

The United Church will welcome anyone interested in the movement it is launching, and will be especially pleased at the attendance of those having no church affiliations here. The United Church of Chapel Hill was formed by the union of the Christian Church and the Congregational.

CHASE MAKES APPEAL TO ALUMNI IN EFFORT TO INCREASE FUNDS

(Continued from first page) will be used, as in other state universities, to supplement state appropriations.

"Even the wealthiest state universities," the statement said, "in the most prosperous states in which the principle of the university support is largest and most amply established, have without exception found an important place for the utilization of funds from outside sources. This is indeed a universally recognized principle in the financing of the modern state university. It seems not to weaken, or diminish, but to supplement and stimulate state support.

"There are two problems regarding the maintenance of the university which confront the state. The first is that of provision for its routine needs—its student increases, maintenance of our buildings, routine increases in salaries, promotions, clerical adjustments, and so on. These things are the bread and butter of the university and they are being provided for by the state. Then there is the question of university growth and development. I do not mean growth in numbers, but growth in stature, in quality and standards. In this field of quality the state does what it can.

"But, after all, routine needs must be met this year, next year, and to the end of time. The state of North Carolina seems not yet to be at the point at which its financial provisions can go very much beyond this point. And here lies a very real danger to the university. It is none the less real because it is not as obvious as overcrowded dormitories and inadequate classrooms. It needs, perhaps, illustration. Let me list almost at random a few of our problems of today, that you may see more clearly what I mean.

"New responsibilities develop. With rising salary scales everywhere our salaries are not adequate and must be increased. A teachers' college for the systematic advanced and graduate instruction of men and women for positions of responsibility and leadership in our growing public school system becomes of great importance for the state, and can be most effectively maintained here. Religious instruction, physical education, projects for better teaching of freshmen and sophomores press their claims. Plans for a great collection of southern historical material are under way. Provision for a system of retiring allowances becomes of increasing importance.

"And so on and on. Every one of these things that I have mentioned, and a host of others, have been the object of consideration during the last twelve months. Some of them the state has been asked to undertake. Some must be done now or lost momentum and opportunity result."

Dr. Chase's announcement was printed in full on the front page of the Raleigh News and Observer and the Durham Herald. It was also given prominence in the Greensboro Daily News, the Charlotte and Asheville papers, and in many smaller papers throughout the state.

The Durham Herald expressed approval of the aims of the alumni loyalty fund. It's editorial said in part:

"Large numbers have given to private education, and to public education also, in other states, but in North Carolina gifts to public education have been distressingly few. One reason, of course, has been the poverty, the same poverty which also has kept the state from doing more.

"But hundreds of men, even thousands of them, have prospered in these later years. They love the state in which they were born and which has guarded and protected them and theirs throughout the years of their development and advancement. The appeal is to them to help their state by helping its institutions, and by helping its young people to reach the highest development of which they are capable."

LAW AND COMMERCE FACULTIES UNDERGO NUMBER OF CHANGES

In connection with his teaching this year he will be engaged in research in the history of taxation in North Carolina.

Professor F. R. Garfield is on leave this year doing research work with the federal reserve board in Washington. His teaching duties will be carried on by Mr. Macon. His work as chairman of the committee on the introductory course in economics has been assumed by Professor J. G. Evans.

A. R. Perkins has been appointed part time instructor to assist Professor E. W. Zimmerman in his course in resources and industries.

Professor C. P. Spruill has been granted an additional year's leave of absence to become a temporary member of the instructional staff in economics at Harvard university. During this year he will continue his researches on the public debt of Great Britain.

DEBATE COUNCIL TO HOLD 9 MEETS

the Speaker's Club having promised to notify the Debate Council of Dr. Foust's action before that time. In the event of the N. C. C. W. debate the squad will immediately begin work on the query, and the debate will be held about the middle of November.

The council plans to hold the second contest shortly after the opening of the winter quarter, or perhaps just before the Christmas holidays—this matter depending largely upon the date of the first debate.

After this, contests will come more often. The University of the South will be met at Chapel Hill. The Tar Heel speakers are then expected to meet the University of West Virginia team at Charleston. There seems to be no hitch in the way of engaging the University of Texas debaters at Austin, the Texans having journeyed to Chapel Hill last year. Kentucky is expected to send a team to Chapel Hill in the winter or spring. The annual Carolina-Virginia radio contest seems a certainty. Last season the Tar Heels met the Virginians at Richmond; this season the Cavaliers journey to North Carolina. In addition to these, efforts are being made to revive the old North Carolina-Tulane-Alabama triangle. It seems probable, however, that Louisiana State will be substituted for Tulane.

In all, the Council plans to have about nine intercollegiate debates.
