

BULLDOGS MEET TARS OCTOBER 19

Chapel Hill Prepares for Invasion of Georgians; Homecoming Game

The North Carolina-Georgia Tech and Georgia-Yale games are holding the Dixie spotlight this week-end, and next week-end two of these same teams will mix it up in another of the south's leading grid tilts.

The Georgia Bulldogs will invade Kenan stadium here in Chapel Hill to renew a 34-year grid rivalry with the Tar Heels.

Tickets for the football classic are moving at a rapid clip. Extra festivities, including dedication of the University's new $625,000 library, opening of the University's Southern Conference on Education, and a Homecoming Day program, promise to draw a tremendous throng.

The game has an interesting angle in that North Carolina and Georgia have perhaps their hardest games amassed in these two weeks.

North Carolina is set to strain a point to beat Tech and Georgia feels likewise about Yale this week-end; yet both teams have to look to saving some strength for next Saturday.

And from early season showings Tech and Yale are going to furnish great tests for the Tar Heels and Bulldogs. Tech whipped Mississippi A. & M. last Saturday, 27-13, showing much the same drive as the old national champions. Yale whipped Vermont by an 89-0 count.

TWO VIRGINIA MEN WIN IN NET PLAY

University, Va., Oct. 9.—(Special).—Two Cavalier tennis stars, who are playing in the Middle Atlantic Intercollegiate tennis tournament now being held at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., have entered the quarter finals of the competition after hard fought battles.

C. Alphonso Smith, Virginia net captain, turned in a straight set victory over F. X. Brevka of Washington and Lee. The Orange and Blue performer took the final set. The Mink netman tightened up and held Smith to a 7-5 battle.

Fred Johns, an outstanding Cavalier player during the past two years, was forced into an extra set before downing James Allen of Davis and Elkins college. The scores of the match were: 6-4, 2-6, 7-5. This proved to be one of the most interesting net battles of the entire tournament thus far and gave promise of Johns' finishing near the top of the ladder in the final accounting.

Many Students In Wake Forest Band

Wake Forest, Oct. 10 (Special).—The personnel of the Wake Forest college band this year was announced today by W. C. Troxell, director, who has recently come to this institution as instructor in music.

Thirty men comprise the musical unit for this session, and the entire organization will soon be equipped with regular uniforms consisting of a blazer of college colors, black trousers, and sash of old gold. W. L. Warford is student director.

DUKE FRESHMEN COME FROM MANY STATES

Durham, Oct. 10 (Special).—Twenty-one states and three foreign countries are represented in the new freshman class of Duke university. North Carolina leads with Pennsylvania, Virginia, New Jersey and South Carolina also furnishing a good share of the new men. Freshman co-eds come from ten states, according to the tabulations.

Gardner To Attend Game In Atlanta

Raleigh, Oct. 10 (Special) Governor Gardner and President Harry W. Chase of the University of North Carolina will attend the Tar Heel-Tech game in Atlanta today and will be principal speakers tonight in a radio hook-up program for University of North Carolina alumni.

Carolina alumni will hold a big banquet in Atlanta Friday night, and the program will be broadcast throughout the South Atlantic states, in which section about 85 per cent of the alumni reside.

There will be a hook-up of stations WSB of Atlanta, WBT of Charlotte and WPTF of Raleigh. The time will be 6:45 to 7:30 o'clock, Eastern Standard.

Judge J. Shepard Bryan, University alumnus and a prominent Atlanta attorney, will preside at the banquet.

Another feature will be the story of the Carolina-Tech game by Bill Munday, famous radio announcer.

Six Veterans Will Face Tornado Today

Six veteran seniors who have seen the Golden Tornado howl and crash with all its fury for two years running will be in the Tar Heel line that will face Georgia Tech in Atlanta Friday.

They will fill every post but center—Holt and Fenner at the flanks; Koenig and Adkins at the tackles; and Captain Farris and Eskew at guards. The only non-veteran will be Lipscomb at center, and Lipscomb was Harry Schwartz's understudy last year when the stellar Tar Heel captain gave Peter Pund such a scrap.

Farris was a wide pick for all-southern last year. All six were widely picked for all-state honors. On their veteran shoulders will undoubtedly lie the answer to the dopesters' contention that the Tar Heels have the best chance of upsetting Tech and winning conference honors that a Tar Heel eleven has had since 1922.

Tech has the same Thomason and Mizell and Dunlap to give another great offense. North Carolina has a galaxy of at least 12 fine backs who have run up 13 touchdowns in just two games. Fans say the Tar Heel backs can't be stopped. If the Tar Heel line only holds—

The six veterans are all heavy and powerful. The ends weigh 180 apiece. Fenton Adkins with his 239 pounds is a power at right tackle. Bill Koenig is as powerful and faster with his 190 pounds at the other tackle. Captain Farris, left guard, weighs only 185 but is known as one of the hardest charging guards in the south. Bud Eskew, 180-pounder, is a close second in power at right guard.

The whole line averages 6 feet 1 in height, lacking a fraction of an inch, and 191 pounds in weight. The question is can this 1337 pounds of Tar Heel brawn and power hold Tech's mighty offensive drive?

Air Battle Forecast

Both Fordham and N. Y. U. spent much of their practices today brushing up on forward pass plays. Statements from rival camps indicate an aerial battle between the two Saturday.

PRESBYTERIAN TEA

The students of the University are invited to a tea in the social rooms of the Presbyterian church tonight at 8 o'clock.

VIRGINIA BOXERS FACE STIFF CARD

University, Va., Oct. 9.—(Special).—Although Coach John LaRowe has issued repeated calls for additional candidates both for the varsity and first year boxing teams of the University of Virginia, a scarcity of material has been very evident. Coach LaRowe is especially anxious that all veterans report for this preliminary practice since the extremely hard schedule for the year necessitates a well conditioned squad. Regular workouts are being held in the gymnasium at 4 p. m. every afternoon, and all men interested in the sport, whether with experience or not, are asked to report immediately.

Prospects for a star first year team this year are exceedingly bright with many candidates already getting down to hard work. Among the foremost of these are Goldstein, amateur champion of Washington; Haggard, McEachern, and Poss, former stars at Fishburne Military academy, and Payne of Augusta Military academy who was never defeated in prep school circles. The latter four however are at present working out with the first year football team.

Following is the schedule of the varsity boxing team for the coming season:

Jan. 18.—Virginia vs. V. P. I. at Blacksburg.

Jan. 25.—Virginia vs. V. M. I., home.

Feb. 3.—Virginia vs. Florida, home.

Feb. 8.—Virginia vs. North Carolina, home.

Feb. 15.—Virginia vs. Duke at Durham.

Feb. 22.—Virginia vs. Pennsylvania, home.

The site of the Conference championships has not yet been decided, but will probably be settled at the next meeting of the executive council.

Wake Forest Professor Writes Pharmacy Book

Wake Forest, Oct. 10 (Special).—"Pharmacology Notes," based on a series of lectures by Dr. T. D. Kitchen, dean of the school of medicine at Wake Forest College is the title of a book soon to be published by Arthur B. Peacock, Raleigh, and Victor T. Sullivan, Wilmington, of the 1929 medical class.

It is bound in red cloth, lettered in gold, is printed very legibly with voluminous notes which, when coupled with the extraordinary large appendix, will make it an excellent reference book.

Authenticity is insured through the reputation of Dr. Kitchen as an authority on pharmacology, and through his position as president of the North Carolina Medical Association.

Mr. Sullivan was awarded his Bachelor of Science degree in 1927, served his internship at the college hospital and was followed in these capacities by Mr. Peacock, co-author of the book.

Outgrow Fields

New York high schools are this year staging their big games in the Polo Grounds, Yankee stadium and Ebbetts field.

Captain Jack Martin of the Penn State team has a protege on his squad this year. Paul Moss, the recruit, is from Farrell, Pa., and learned his first football from his older townsman.

Gene McEver, great back at Tennessee, is also a star in baseball.

Government railways of Japan now own 4,000 locomotives.

Slavery was abolished in Cuba in 1880.

Great Demand For Georgia Game Tickets

Tickets for North Carolina's big homecoming day game with Georgia, carded for Kenan stadium here October 19, are going at a rapid clip, and the early seat sales give every indication of a record crowd for the Tar Heel-Bulldog clash, according to information from the University athletic association.

Georgia's "sophomore team" showed unexpected strength in a 27-0 win over Furman last Saturday. The Tar Heel backs have been running wild all season, and the game promises to be one of the south's real classics.

Other affairs in the offing give promise of adding to the size and colorfulness of the throng expected for the game.

It will be homecoming week for North Carolina and homecoming day for University of North Carolina alumni. As added features, the University will dedicate its $625,000 library on Saturday morning and open its annual southern conference on education, which should draw many noted educators.

The big Blue and White team will play six more games after the Georgia battle. Three of these will be home games—V. P. I. October 26, N. C. State November 2, and Virginia Thanksgiving day.

College Boys Are Not Spendthrifts

Berkeley, Calif.—The popular conception that college students are youths with their own cars and lots of spending money does not "hitch" with the figures given out here by the alumni bureau of occupations of the University of California, which reports that last year students at the university earned a total of more than one million dollars while taking their regular courses.

The bureau this year is seeking to increase the earning power of the students to two million dollars. Five thousand students at the school are said to be either totally or partially self-supporting.

Duncan Dancers At N. C. C. W.

Greensboro, Oct. 9.—The Duncan Russian dancers, headed by Irma Duncan and accompanied by Russian musicians, are the next offering of the lecture course at North Carolina college, this city, to the 2,000 or more patrons attending the programs of the course.

Miss Duncan's group, composed of 12 dancers, is scheduled to appear at Aycock auditorium Friday evening, October 18, at 8:30 o'clock. The dancers are said to be the first ever invited to appear as soloists with the Boston Symphony orchestra.

The latest count of students at North Carolina college gives the present total enrollment at the institution, exclusive of 400 pupils at Curry training school, as 1839, according to Miss Taylor Moore, registrar.

Flying Is Optional In Aviation Course

(Continued from page one) versity to emphasize intensely this engineering phase and to train for the directive and designing side of the aeronautical industry. This requires a thorough study of rigorous mathematics, mechanics, and thermodynamics before aerodynamic studies can be begun.

In the University course, the junior year is on the cooperative basis, so that the student spends half his time in school and half time on some job connected with the aeronautical industry. It is possible in this plan that the student may obtain flying and ground school instruction.

FROSH HAVE THREE MORE GAMES AFTER BLUE IMP CONTEST

Will Play Maryland, Virginia, and N. C. State Yearling Teams.

With the Roanoke game behind, there remain only four more scheduled games for the freshman gridders. The fracas with the Duke yearlings tomorrow afternoon is expected to be one of the most bitterly contested games of the year, and should prove the mettle of the Tar Babies.

For their next game the freshmen will journey to College Park, Md., where they will meet the University of Maryland freshmen Friday, November 16. The University of Virginia yearlings will be met at Charlottesville Friday, November 23. The last game of the season will see the State college freshmen pitted against the local gridders with Raleigh the scene of battle. This game will be played on Friday, November 30.

Duncan Dancers Will Appear Here Oct. 16

New York Herald-Tribune—"The gospel of the Duncans is interpretive dancing carried to the point where it is essentially recreative. In a large degree, the present delegation attains to these ideals. Like their famous mistress, many of these girls are heavily built and opulently developed, without the lithe natural grace of person and trimness of limb to which the American eye is accustomed on the dance platform. But they had in their artistic make-up more priceless gifts; a splendid vitality of understanding and a complete grasp of symbolic thought translation, a joyous freedom and abandonment to rhythm and movement, a thorough discipline of mind and muscle.

The Isadora Duncan Dancers will be presented here by the Entertainment Committee, October 16.

Alumni Loyalty Fund Appeal Is Not An Emergency Measure

(Continued from page one) Grant has been in the full employ of the council and developing plans for private giving to the University, not as an emergency measure but as an integral part of the University finances, running parallel with state appropriations, student fees, and gifts from the educational foundations."

LEAD IN "3 LIVE GHOSTS" A BROADWAY STAR AT 23

A Broadway stage star at 23! This is the unusual achievement of Robert Montgomery, handsome New York actor, who plays one of the principal roles in "Three Live Ghosts," United Artists' all-talking comedy-drama, featuring an all-star cast, which comes to the Carolina theatre today.

Leaving school at 15, young Montgomery, who recently celebrated his 23rd birthday, decided upon a career as a short story writer. He felt that to write successfully, he must first learn something of life, and of people.

Fired with ambition, he hurried to New York, where he launched upon his literary work. He wrote several stories—classics, he thought—but publishers thought otherwise and promptly rejected them. Discouraged, and without funds, Montgomery landed a job as assistant stage director with William Faversham. Subsequently he played several small parts in a Faversham production. Parts in other stage productions followed. Then came his first big chance—leading man with Grace George in "The Garden of Eden," after which he played leads opposite Laura Hope Crews, Margaret Lawrence and others.

Montgomery had just concluded a starring engagement with Margaret Lawrence in "Possession," when Thornton Freeland, the director, remembering Montgomery's excellent characterization, decided he was the youth to play the American in "Three Live Ghosts."

Montgomery declared it all seemed like a dream now that he is in Hollywood and getting a big break in talking pictures. Montgomery has an excellent speaking voice.
