Gardner And Chase Make Pleas For Greater Private Support Of North Carolina University Fund

They Insist That University Needs Are Far Greater Than Just Enough to Meet Bread And Butter Demands—Speak At Banquet of Atlanta Alumni.

(By R. W. Madry)

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 11.—Urgent pleas for a new attitude toward private support for state institutions was made here tonight by Governor O. Max Gardner of North Carolina and President Harry W. Chase of the University of North Carolina.

Speaking with direct reference to North Carolina, they declared that so far the State has been able to meet the bread and butter needs of its institutions of higher learning, but that there exists today a greater need for funds with which to provide for "excellence in the life of these institutions."

Governor Gardner and President Chase were the principal speakers at a banquet given by the Atlanta alumni of the University at the Biltmore Hotel. Through a widespread radio hook-up their addresses were broadcast throughout the South and as far north as Baltimore. A program by the University's 62-piece band, the members of which were all dolled up in new blue and white uniforms, was also put on the air. J. Shepard Bryan, former Superior Court Judge and prominent Atlanta attorney, was toastmaster. A large number of alumni attended, including many Tar Heels here for the Carolina-Tech game.

The addresses dealt for the most part with the appeal recently launched by the Alumni Loyalty Fund Council of the University, the purpose of which is to get the alumni in the habit of putting the institution in their annual budget, just as they give to their church or to their clubs.

Praising the "Graciousness and charm of Georgia hospitality," Governor Gardner pointed out that Georgia and North Carolina had long been connected "by intimate ties of kinship, history, and common traditions." He recalled with pride that the first state university to be chartered in America was the University of Georgia and that the first to be opened was the University of North Carolina.

He sketched briefly the story of higher education in the South, pointing out that just before the war between the States the University of North Carolina had a student body of 600 who came from 35 states, and that the institution had produced besides a president and a vice-president of the United States, 13 governors of other states and a score of cabinet officers and foreign ministers.

With the rise of mills and the rebirth of Southern industry came a new impetus in public education, which resulted in new frontiers of opportunity and achievement.

"In my judgement, we here in the South are today confronted by one of these frontiers," the Governor declared.

Freshmen to Rally In Memorial Hall

There will be a rally of the entire Freshman class in Memorial hall this morning at 10:30 in preparation for the Carolina-Duke freshman football game in Kenan Stadium this afternoon, according to an announcement by officials last night. All freshmen are asked to be present at this meeting.

KEOGH SPEAKS ON WORLD LIBRARY CONGRESS OCT. 21

Yale University Librarian To Speak Here Home-Coming Day.

The World Library congress held in Rome last summer will be the subject of a speech by Dr. Andrew Keogh, librarian of Yale university and president of the American Library association, Monday morning, October 21, at the Southeastern Library association meeting at Chapel Hill.

More than 1500 librarians attended the Rome congress, Dr. Keogh being among the American delegates who were received by King Victor Emanuel as well as by the Pope.

"The Citizens' Part in a Library Program" will also be discussed at the Chapel Hill meeting, in addition to county libraries, negro library service and public library standards.

Dr. Louis R. Wilson will be the other speaker.

ROOSEVELT WILL SPEAK IN RALEIGH

New York Governor to Attend State Home-Coming Celebration Tuesday.

Raleigh, Oct. 11.—(Special)—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, Thursday notified Governor Gardner and Josephus Daniels, that on Tuesday he would attend the North Carolina Home-Coming exercises here, and arrangements have been made for him to speak at the state fair grounds at noon and at the Golden Lights Jubilee celebration on Capitol Square Tuesday night.

The Home-Coming committee, of which Governor Gardner is chairman, and Mr. Daniels, vice-chairman, feared for a while that Governor Roosevelt would be unable to attend the Home-Coming celebration, but he states that he is planning to be in Raleigh Tuesday.

Governor Roosevelt will speak from the grandstand in the main building at the state fair.

Rhodes Candidates

Dean Hibbard announces that the four candidates for the Rhodes scholarship from the University for this year are R. M. Gray, Jr., Travis Brown, R. Hoke Webb and Jack Crow.

Syracuse university's football team will go captainless this year.

The Victor

Coach Collins may well be termed the victor in yesterday's contest between the Heels and Georgia Tech. The team has now had several years under the Notre Dame system, and this system played a big part in yesterday's 18-7 victory over the Techmen.

DRAMATIC ASSOCIATION EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE WILL MEET HERE TODAY

The executive committee of the Carolina Dramatic association will meet today at 10:30 a. m. followed by a luncheon at the Carolina inn at 1 o'clock. Plans for the spring dramatic festival and state tournament will be discussed. The committee is composed of six members connected with the University and six members chosen from different localities throughout the state. The committee attended Professor Koch's lecture on the development of the Carolina Playmakers last night and will be present at his reading of "The Taming of the Shrew" on Sunday night at the Playmaker theatre.

New Course Included In University Law School

Only Three Colleges in the United States Give Instruction of This Character; Designed for Creative Leadership.

With the development of a new course in the administration of justice, with the appointment of four salaried student research assistants to the faculty, and with the largest and best prepared student body in its history, the University of North Carolina school of law opened its eighty-seventh year this fall just as Professor Atwell Campbell McIntosh began his second quarter century of law teaching.

The course in the administration of justice will be conducted by the entire faculty, in cooperation with visiting judges and members of the bar. Meetings of the class will be held monthly for half day periods. The work in preparation for the class meetings will consist largely in investigations into actual practices. The course is designed to prepare for creative leadership on the part of the legal profession in the solution of the larger problems of the administration of justice. The University of North Carolina is one of but

PLAYMAKERS WILL GIVE DRAMATIC READING - SUNDAY

"Taming of the Shrew" To Be Given at 8:30 Tomorrow Evening.

The series of dramatic readings which the Carolina Playmakers present on the second Sunday evening of each month at 8:30 will be begun this season, as has been the custom from the first, by a rendition of one of Shakespeare's plays. This year the play will be Shakespeare's lively comedy, The Taming of the Shrew.

Petruchio is one of Mr. Koch's favorite roles. He played this part in the production of The Taming of the Shrew in the Forest theatre in 1923, this being the only time he has acted in any of the Carolina productions here.

The public is cordially invited to attend this reading.

DUNCAN DANCERS' PERFORMANCE IS DRAWING FEATURE

Russian Girls Make Big Hit in Boston and New York; Packed House Expected Here.

The student entertainment committee which secured last year many notable artists and attractions for the University is to be credited with another achievement in securing the sensational Isadora Duncan dancers from Moscow for a performance here October 16. Last fall the committee brought Paul Whiteman to the Hill as its first program. This year the coming of the Duncan dancers is attracting as much comment as did the coming of Whiteman.

These young and beautiful dancers are the direct and authorized artistic proteges of Isadora Duncan, who trained them from early childhood at the school which she established in Moscow. The eleven girls comprising the company were selected from the several hundred associated with the school.

So fascinating and impressive are these girls in their interpretation of the classic dances that the staid and conservative Boston Transcript was moved to state: "Vital flesh at one rhythmic spirit, disciplined abandon, fluent gesture, light, quick harmony of motion—these the Isadora Duncan dancers gave." All Boston responded to these marvelous artists when they appeared there as soloists with the Boston symphony orchestra at Symphony hall for a full week's engagement, May 6 to 11.

Branch Runs Back Punt for 55 Yards and Touchdown; Hudson, Farris, Adkins, Lipscomb Line Stars.

Grant Field, Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 11.—(Special)—Opening its siege guns early, Carolina's football eleven smashed its way to an 18-7 victory over the powerful Golden Tornado of Georgia Tech this afternoon. When the final whistle blew there was little doubt in the minds of the 25,000 spectators as to the supremacy of the Heels. They outcharged, outpassed, outran, and outplayed the Techmen throughout three quarters of the contest.

Any illusions Tech supporters entertained as to victory were dispelled early in the game. A line that yielded not and a host of backs who have not yet learned the lesson of defeat were representing the Heels. They were in the game to play football. They played from the opening whistle to the final gun.

Tech threatened three times. Once they scored. Following Tech's march down the field early in the game and unsuccessful try for field goal, Carolina punted out of danger. However, Mizell's long boot put the ball back on Carolina's seven yard line. Branch's kick was short and Thomason and Co. held the ball on Carolina's 25 yard line. "Stumpy" pulled his best play of the game here, going around end for a score. His boot was good and Tech led 7-0.

This touchdown was Tech's greatest effort. They tried often to score but Carolina was hungry for a victory.

From that touchdown on except for a few minutes in the third period the game was Carolina's. The line was doing great work and the combination of backs used by Coach Collins was knocking down or intercepting the Tornado passes.

Carolina received Thomason's kick-off and started for a score. With Nash doing great work on the receiving end of passes and carrying the ball through the line, Carolina carried the ball to Tech's 27 yard line. Jim Magner started through the line. There was no stopping for the speedy Pennsylvanian. He scored The try for point was wide.

A few minutes later he scored again from the seven yard line. Tech had been penalized 30-odd yards for rough playing, placing the ball on its 37 yard line. Magner passed to Nash for 20 yards. Nash added ten more yards in two tries and then Magner went through for another score.

"Shorty" Branch furnished the big thrill of the game with his 55 yard return of Mizell's punt. Twisting, turning, and slipping, the little Carolina quarterback brought the stands to their feet with the longest run of the day. "Shorty" outstumped "Stumpy" today.

The Heels outplayed the Jackets from the beginning. They held when Tech threatened. They scored on every opportunity.
