State College Men Confer With Walker

Frank Capps, director of extension at State college, and E. W. Ruggles, assistant director, together with Professor E. W. Broshart, professor of vocational education at State college, were in conference yesterday with Dean Walker relative to the coalition of the credits of the two institutions.

DEAN MCCORMICK BACK FROM MEMPHIS MEETING

Dean C. T. McCormick of the University Law School has just returned from Memphis, Tenn., where he has been attending the sessions of the American Bar Association.

Dean McCormick also attended a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Association of American Law Schools, of which he is a member.

Music Department Professors Return From Northern Trip

Dyer and Kennedy Inspect Many Organs While Away.

Professors Harold S. Dyer and Nelson O. Kennedy have returned from a trip to inspect some of the larger organs of the country and to get bids on a new organ which is to be installed in the new home of the music department. The old library is now being remodeled and will be the headquarters of the University music department.

While on their trip Professors Dyer and Kennedy visited Kornegny Hall, New York. This building is one of the most noted buildings in the world. A new organ is being installed there, and it is to be dedicated on November 4. The organists there will be Pietro Yon who was formerly organist at Saint Peter's Cathedral and Vatican in Rome. Yon's present position is at Saint Patrick's Cathedral in New York city where a new organ is also being installed.

From New York the party went to Chicago and visited the Rockefeller Chapel at the University of Chicago where another large organ has been installed, and then came back to Hagerstown, Md., to inspect the factory of the Moller organ works. More than one organ a day is delivered by this factory.

The last stop before returning home was Washington, D. C. The party while there visited the Calvary Baptist church, the church of the late President Harding.

All of the leading organ factories seemed to have a great desire to install the organ in the University. This eagerness is due chiefly to the idea of the advertising in the south.

INA CLAIRE STARS IN "THE AWFUL TRUTH" AT CAROLINA THEATRE

Ina Claire, charming star in Pathe's all-talking production of "The Awful Truth," which comes to the Carolina theatre today, won her first recognition by David Belasco who later became her mentor by burlesquing one of his current plays in the Ziegfeld Follies. She was singing a parody of Marie-Odile and her gift of satire made the number one of the biggest hits of that season's show.

Because Miss Claire's burlesque of a Belasco star indicated a finer talent not inferior to that of the artist she was mimicking, Belasco made her a flattering offer. The next year, under his management, she was a Broadway star in "Polly With a Past." There follows a long string of successes which include "The Gold Diggers," "Grounds for Divorce," "Blue-beard's Eighth Wife," "The Awful Truth" and "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney."

Ina Claire says she does not know just when she first conceived the idea of going on the stage, but she made her debut in a song and dance act at the age of four. She was born in Philadelphia but lived most of her childhood in Washington, D. C.

Her reputation as the best dressed woman on the American stage preceded Miss Claire into Hollywood and, according to those who are authorities on the subject, she has lived up to that reputation both on and off the screen.

Even as women are indebted to Ina Claire for original and daring style creations, so do men admire her as a modern sort of Mrs. Sir Walter Raleigh. For it was she who first smiled down from the nation's billboards, announcing the fact that she loved to see a man smoke a pipe.

Airplane For Use Of Engineers Will Arrive Here Soon

A letter acknowledging receipt of the order from the University for an airplane has been received from the War Department by E. G. Hoefler, head of the mechanical engineering department of the University.

The letter states that the commanding officer of Fairfield air depot at Fairfield, Ohio, has been instructed to ship the airplane as soon as possible. Mr. Hoefler stated that the War Department is usually prompt in filling its orders, and the plane should arrive soon.

The plane, type VE-9, is being placed in the University by the War Department for the purpose of instruction with the understanding that it will not be used for actual flight.

Hobbs Will Speak At Mathematics Seminar

The first four meetings in the mathematics seminar to be held this year have been given over to the presentation of a paper by L. E. Bush on "General Quaternions." Mr. Bush's paper, which was based on work that he took at the University of Chicago during the past summer, followed the general trend of finding an integral basis for certain cases of the general quaternions.

The mathematics seminar, which meets weekly, is a discussion group formed of the graduate students and the faculty of the mathematics department. At its meetings things of interest in mathematics and developments of science are discussed. Papers are presented, and discussion and criticism of them is given.

At the next meeting of the seminar, which will be held Wednesday afternoon, Professor A. W. Hobbs will present a paper on "Geometric Interpretation of Vieta's Transformation of the Cubic."

Grand Opera Appears In Greensboro Soon

The Pennsylvania Grand Opera Company will present three operas in Greensboro at N. C. C. W. auditorium on November 18 and 19. "Il Trovatore" will open the series on Monday night followed by "Martha" at matinee Tuesday. "Lucia" will end the run on Tuesday night.

Many noted artists will appear with the Pennsylvania company; it is known as one of the best traveling opera companies and cooperates with the Metropolitan company in the use of great stars. This set of artists is making a tour of the south, starting in Philadelphia and going to New Orleans and then ending up in Philadelphia again. Tickets are on sale now and may be secured by mail from the Corley Company in Greensboro.

Duke Official Will Interview Engineers

While in Charlotte attending the meeting of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers Wednesday and Thursday, Professor G. F. Bason, head of the electrical engineering department, had an interview with C. I. Burkholder of the Duke Power Company, and he reports Mr. Burkholder as being very interested in graduates in electrical engineering from this institution.

Mr. Burkholder stated that he would like interviews with members of the graduating class in electrical engineering who are interested in becoming connected with the Duke company.

Mitchell and Green Have Contributions In American Caravan

The American Caravan, year-book of American literature, carries in the recently issued edition a short story, "Cool Swamp and Field Woman," by Joseph Mitchell, alumnus of the University and last year assistant editor of The Carolina Magazine. Mitchell will be remembered by many students here as the author of numerous stories and poems in the magazine, and as Playmaker critic of the Tar Heel. The Caravan also carries Paul Green's play, "Tread the Green Grass." This play is also scheduled to be presented in the near future in New York City.

Edited by Alfred Kreymborg, Lewis Mumford and Paul Rosenfeld The American Caravan is published yearly and contains stories, verse, essays and novels by the young writers furthering the "new trend of literature." Paul Green, the University's famous playwright also contributed to the first American Caravan published in 1928.

Smith To Present Birthday Tickets

No student whose birthday occurs during the school year need bemoan his fate, for in accordance with the custom established last year, Manager E. Carington Smith of the Carolina theatre will present a complimentary ticket to each of the students whose birthday is in the school calendar.

A list of the birth dates of all students has been compiled, and invitations to attend the show are mailed in time to reach the student on the morning of his birthday. Freshmen this year have been surprised to find the tickets in their birthday mail, and many have called on Mr. Smith to thank him personally.

In the course of the average day between 30 and 40 tickets are mailed out. The complimentary passes may be used for any show during the day they are good. Birthday passes will be sent out throughout the school year.

Folk Lore Society Meets In Raleigh

The North Carolina Folk Lore society will hold its annual session in Raleigh at 3 o'clock on Friday afternoon, November 1, in the ballroom of the Hotel Sir Walter. Sessions of the state Literary and Historical association will be held during both Thursday and Friday, October 31 and November 1.

Programs for all these sessions will be interesting; that of the Folk Lore society will be as follows:

Presidential address, Mrs. S. Westray Battle, Asheville; lecture, "Ballads and Other Songs of the Kentucky Mountains," Gilbert Reynolds Combs, Charlotte; paper, "Treasure-Hunting in North Carolina," Frank C. Brown, Durham; paper, "Folk Customs"; business session with reports and election of officers.

Officers of the society are: president, Mrs. S. Westray Battle, Asheville; vice-presidents, Mrs. Josephus Daniels, Raleigh; Mrs. Maude Minish Sutton, Forest City; Miss Lucy Maria Cobb, Raleigh; secretary-treasurer, Frank C. Brown, Durham.

Graduate Club To Give Reception

The Graduate club will give its third annual reception in Smith building Friday, November 1, from 8:30 to 10:30 p. m. The University faculty and residents of Chapel Hill are cordially invited to be present. Following the reception there will be an informal dance from 10:30 to 1.

Oldtime Hazing Now Has New Name; Called Orientation

awhile to contemplate the mysterious and fearsome tombstones that shone white in the night. Dr. Henderson also remembered incidents that had a rougher aspect. He told of two freshmen from the western part of the state who, backed in Memorial hall, drawn knives in their hands, defied the raving, jeering sophomores to touch them.

"One virtuous idea alone lay back of the philosophy of hazing," said Dr. Henderson, "and that was the idea that a freshman was an undeveloped species of the homo sapiens, and that he needed first of all as a primary lesson in college life to have inculcated in him a more wholesome respect for the manly virtues which the upperclassmen necessarily imagined him.

While the old-time hazing had its weak points and serious defects, Dr. Henderson did not find it wholly bad and expressed the desire that the present policy of orientation not develop into a form of coddling. "It is, I am sure," he writes, "the purpose of the principle now in force at this institution both to inspire the freshman with confidence in his environment and in the atmosphere of feeling which he is to breathe; and also to make him appear that he is a man under guidance and that his future destiny on the campus lies in his own hands. The purpose of orientation is not to coddle but to guide with judgement and kindness."

How different the experience of the modern freshman as told by North Carolina's boy Edison, D. Allen Harrell.

"From the Dean of Students I received letters assuring me that I would find the University a splendid place from every standpoint; from the Y. M. C. A. I received the "Freshman Handbook," containing pictures and information about the University and its student activities; but most impressive of all was a letter from the president of the sophomore class, congratulating me upon my choice of schools, and giving me advice on the subject of my college career. In two days I felt myself to be a full-fledged Carolina man."

So there's the difference. Once it was hazing, but now orientation is the word. And before many years, if the present trend continues, people will grab their dictionaries whenever the word "hazing" is used. Perhaps the dictionary itself will add an "obsolete" after the word.

Best Is Original Telegraph Operator

for one reason or another, he buys the tickets nevertheless and leaves them at the box office, so that the children can use them at their first opportunity—and they generally don't fail him.

He has seen the rise and fall of many a picture star, but confronted with the question of his favorite, he found it difficult to answer. At last he decided Billie Dove was about the cream of the lot in his opinion, though he quickly added that he likes 'em all.

Mr. Best gets around to all the football games and the major events on the campus. He never has need of a ticket, since he is well known to everybody. His mind is keen and active, and it is one of his boasts that he remembers the calendar as far back as two hundred years. Given the date of the day, the month and the year, he will tell you at once the name of the day, as far back as you care to go.

He spent 22 years in the telegraph service, doing pioneer work, and has been pensioned for the last twelve years.

There is no one more proud than he is of the progress of the telegraph from the old slow hand key with its up-and-down motion, to the modern "bug," operated with a flick of the wrist at lightning speed. He is the father of telegraphy in the community, the Edison of Chapel Hill, and one of the last of the old-time, picturesque, and dependable "buzzer boys," the men who made the telegraph the useful instrument it is today.

Tobacco's
at its best . . . in a pipe

MEN'S preference for a man's smoke—the pipe—is plenty positive. But do you know why? We'll tell you.

First, pipe tobacco's different—for instance, Edgeworth. Second, tobacco smolders as it should in a pipe. And third, these mean you get more satisfaction—greater relish of the good old savory burley, soothing fullness of rich smoke.

There's even a fourth reason: you like good company. The pipe-smoking brotherhood is that.

Tobacco's at its best in a pipe. It gets a chance to be itself there—to loosen up as it comes to life, to expand and take in air and glow. Only the choicest leaves get that chance, moreover, for pipes tell the truth about tobacco. Choice leaves, choice blends, and mighty careful handling. Edgeworth comes up through eleven distinct processes before we're willing to pass it on to you.

If you keep on missing all this, that's your fault—for we're waiting to send you your first pipeful of Edgeworth. See the coupon? Fill it out, get a good pipe and the postman will bring you a neat little glad-to-meet-you packet of good old Edgeworth.

Edgeworth is a careful blend of good tobacco—selected especially for pipe-smoking. Its quality and flavor never change. Buy it anywhere—"Ready Rubbed" and "Plug Slice"—15¢ pocket package to pound humidors tin.
