

World War Officer Will Talk Chapel Period Armistice Day

Joseph Hyde Pratt Speaks Under Joint Auspices Local American Legion And University.

Col. Joseph Hyde Pratt will make the talk at the annual Armistice Day exercises held under the joint auspices of the University and the Orange County Post of the American Legion, which will take place this year in Gerrard hall on Monday, November 11, at 10:30 a. m. Col. Pratt was Colonel of the 105th Engineers—the engineer regiment of the 30th Division, which was recruited from this section of the south. His regiment saw service first in Belgium and was with the Thirtieth during both phases of the famous Somme offensive. It was in the first phase of the offensive that the Americans broke the Hindenburg line. The exercises this year will run only ten minutes into the eleven o'clock hour. So the classes of that hour will be able to assemble at 11:15 instead of at 11:30 as formerly.

U. D. C. Meeting

Mrs. G. K. G. Henry, president of the local chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, was hostess to the first meeting of the year. The plan of every member entertaining the chapter in her home was inaugurated, and met with great success—every meeting being asked for.

After the reports on the U. D. C. state convention had been read by Mrs. W. S. Bernard and Mrs. Henry Anderson, Mrs. Anderson presented the chapter with a picture of Gen. Robert E. Lee. This picture will later be hung in the University Y. M. C. A. building.

Each member of the local U. D. C. is asked to remember that in the future the meetings will be held the first Tuesday of each month at 3 o'clock.

Third Edition of American Caravan Now at Bulls Head

The Bulls Head book shop now has the third annual publication of the "American Caravan," a yearbook of the American literature containing the latest styles of prose, free verse and drama. England manifested much interest in the first issue and the styles presented by the American writers. The third edition, edited by Alfred Kreyenborg, Lewis Mumford and Paul Rosenfeld, displays still better styles.

Among the contributors to this edition are two prominent North Carolinians: Paul Green and Joseph Mitchell.

Mr. Green was born in North Carolina and educated at the University. At present he is a member of the University faculty, but has been studying recently in Germany on the Guggenheim fellowship. He is expected to return to the University soon. One of his plays, "In Abraham's Bosom," was produced by the Provincetown theatre and won the Pulitzer prize in 1927. The Caravan also contains "Tread the Green Grass," a folk fantasy in three acts and two interludes with music and dumb-show. This is the first play in which Mr. Green has used this style and it has met with wonderful success. This play is to be produced by the Provincetown theatre during the coming season.

Joseph Mitchell was also educated in the University, graduating last year. He worked as assistant editor for the Carolina Magazine and his work was published in that magazine and the New Student.

The New American Caravan contains works of many recent authors throughout the United States.

Editor Of Tar Heel Desires Information

A "Readers' Opinions" letter signed "A Girl" has been received by the editor of the Daily Tar Heel. Although he desires to publish the communication, he cannot do so until informed of the correct initials and address of the anonymous writer.

It is requested that the writer see the editor at the Tar Heel office this afternoon; or, if her maidenly modesty forbid this, that she furnish the necessary information via the telephone or anonymous writer.

"High Hats" and Otherwise

Again a Tar Heel team leaves for a game which has been played up by opposing sports writers in such a manner as to make the North Carolina team overconfident. Certain South Carolina papers have taken news despatches sent out by the University News Bureau and edited them in such a manner as to make the South Carolina players "fighting mad." In a recent despatch recounting past series between the Tar Heels and the Gamecocks, the words Tar Heels were changed to "High Hats." In another column in this paper a quotation is taken from the University of South Carolina's student paper dubbing the Tar Heels as "loquacious." All this is an obvious attempt to work the South Carolinians up for the game. A victory over the North Carolina team would boost South Carolina considerably in the Conference. A win for the Tar Heels is almost necessary as there is no reason for a loss. Too much stock should not be placed in the reports of the weakness of South Carolina. Whatever may be the team's weakness, Coach Laval will have those boys worked up for this game as for no other game this season. South Carolina wants to win. North Carolina should win.

First Issue of Law Review To Be Ready For Press Saturday

Student editors are completing final drafts for the first issue of the North Carolina Law Review which will go to press near the end of this week.

There has been a larger amount of acceptable material for the December Review than has usually been the case for the first issue. The final drafts of notes and comments on recent cases will soon be completed. The new assignments for investigation by the student editors will be issued immediately and the preparation for the second issue will begin as soon as the first goes to press. Arrangements are being made for the distribution of a certain number of copies to the lawyers in several of the neighboring states. In the past the Law Review has gone chiefly to the lawyers of North Carolina, libraries throughout the country, and other law reviews.

Y Cabinet Meeting

There will be a call joint cabinet meeting of the three Y cabinets tonight in Bingham hall 103. Rev. A. Herbert Gray will hold a discussion on the "Christian Adventure." All students other than cabinet members are invited to attend.

New Parisian Magazine Carries Slangage Of 1929 For Students

(By Frank Manheim)

"Do horse-operas click with you or would you frigidate them in favor of a flesh and blood angel who had a nice puddle-jumper and wasn't any wows'er?"

If you can't read the above, and understand it, it is a confession that you are not keeping up with the slangage of 1929. The sentence, if translated, would read, "Do western motion pictures agree with you or would you snub them in favor of a beautiful maiden of charm who had a nice automobile and who wasn't any blue-nosed reformer?"

These and many hundreds of other expressions have been published in the magazine Transition, printed in Paris. The purpose of it was to enable foreigners to keep on contact with the slang-of-the-moment. But the great majority of the terms are as strange to our own ears as they are to a Frenchman's or a German's. For instance, would you recognize "heap" to mean an automobile, or a "Spanish guitar" to mean a cigar? A

Latin Professors Publish Handbook

Press notices are beginning to appear concerning "A Handbook of Classical Mythology" by Professors George Howe and G. A. Harter of the Latin department. This book was published last summer.

The book is a dictionary of Greek and Roman mythology arranged alphabetically. It contains articles about and identification of characters in the best known myths. The book is unique in that it is arranged alphabetically. There is such a book in German but this is the only one in English.

The Boston Evening Transcript says of it: "This little book fills a long felt want and does it in an almost perfectly satisfactory manner. . . . They have managed the difficult problem of inter-relationships and repetition in a thoroughly satisfactory manner. . . . The inner meaning of many of the grand old stories leaps surprisingly out at once in these condensed summaries. The authors have looked behind the mere legend and more than once have suggested the moral or the humor that was in the mind of the old storytellers."

The New York Sun says: "The little volume is uncommonly complete and useful."

partial listing of the words and expressions which may serve as an addenda to an English course is:

- On the up-and-up: in good faith, aboveboard, true.
- To lay an egg: collapse, flounder.
- kiss-off: dismissal, farewell.
- Horse-opera: western movie.

To Hold Supervised Study Experiment

An experimental supervised study class for a limited number of freshmen is to be conducted by a committee composed of Dr. M. R. Trabue, chairman, Dr. English Bagby, and Deans Hibbard, Carroll and Bradshaw. A group of 50 freshmen from the four academic schools will be invited by the deans of the schools. This group will hold one meeting a week during the rest of the quarter for supervised study. Members of the various departments having freshman courses are actively cooperating in this program.

Rumors That Gamecocks To Be Dropped; Graduate Manager Says That Shifts Are Being Made, But That Tar Heels May Still Meet South Carolina.

The following announcement has been released from Columbia, S. C.:

"The University of South Carolina will not play the University of North Carolina in football next year.

"Dr. R. K. Foster, director of athletics at the University of South Carolina, has received a telegram from the University of North Carolina authorities, advising that due to a switch of dates, there will be no place for the Gamecocks on the 1930 Tar Heel schedule. A two-year contract runs out this year."

Due to shifts in the tentative schedule for next year, the University of North Carolina will not be able to play the University of South Carolina next year on a date corresponding to this year's schedule, but, so far as North Carolina is concerned, the two institutions may play provided they can agree on other dates, Charles T. Woollen, Graduate Manager at the University of North Carolina, said last night when questioned regarding reports that North and South Carolina would not meet in football next year.

Several shifts are being made in the North Carolina schedule, and each shift so affects the other teams to be played that none of the changes can be announced until the complete schedule is fixed and approved by the Athletic Council, Mr. Woollen stated.

Mr. Woollen would neither confirm nor deny rumors that the University was negotiating for games with Tennessee, Vanderbilt, Alabama, Florida, Notre Dame, Princeton, and a hundred and one other institutions.

"To make public our plans now would be manifestly unfair to other institutions on our schedule," Mr. Woollen said.

Zimmerman To Speak At Debate Meeting

Professor Zimmerman will speak at the meeting of the debate squad tonight in 201 Murphey at 7:30. Owing to the fact that Carolina is to be represented on both sides of the disarmament question in coming debates, Professor Zimmerman will not confine his discussion to either side. The full statement of the query is: "Resolved, That the United States should advocate the disarmament of all armed forces, except those which are needed for police purposes."

All members of the squad who intend to compete in the tryout on the night of November 21 are expected to be present tonight.

Pharmacy Exam

The semi-annual examination of the North Carolina Board of Pharmacy will be held in the pharmacy building on November 26 and 27, for candidates applying for pharmacy license.

This board has made it a custom for the last few years to hold its examinations in Chapel Hill since most of the applicants are University students. About 15 students will take the examinations.
